Bombs for Patmos.
No Cash for Uncle Sam.
The Wirt Mystery.
Poor Old Trotzky.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

BEAUTIFUL, INTERESTING Island of Patmos, in the Aegean Sea, at the far eastern end of the Mediterranean. It is close to Samos, where the proud tyrant stood on his roof and a servant brought him a magnificent ring that he had dropped into the sea. His cook had found it inside a fish just caught.

Ancient Greeks and Romans wrote about Patmos and lived on the little island with its thirty to forty miles of coast line.

St. John the Evangelist lived there in exile, and there wrote the Apocalypse with the four horsemen, red, white, black and pale, and the "four angels standing on the four corners of the earth," the elders, the four strange beasts, the seven angels with the seven trumpets and all the other marvels.

THEY STILL show you on the side of a hill the grotto in which St. John saw the heavenly vision. Nearly nine hundred years ago Saint Christodolus established, near the grotto, the Monastery of St. John that still exists, though with fewer monks and fewer priceless manuscripts.

All this leads to the fact that Mussolini, annoyed by the conduct of Greeks on Patmos and nearby islands, has bombed Patmos from the air, killed ten and seized the ancient monastery. If St. John had seen and heard those roaring Italian planes, dropping fearful explosives, he might have written another exciting chapter of Revelation.

The monastery of Patmos is highly indignant about that bombardment and the seizure of its property. It is a Greek church monastery, however, not Roman Catholic.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN, in charge of British finances, tells happy fellow countrymen that conditions are good in England, "the past fiscal year has shown a profit of $200,000,000," and "the atmosphere is distinctly brighter."

It is not brighter for your Uncle Sam. Mr. Chamberlain also announced that "he did not propose to make any provision for the payment of war debts to America," and the statement was loudly cheered. It is to be hoped that President Roosevelt will in his own time make a reply that will be "loudly cheered" on this side of the water.

MONEY CAN be collected from England and other countries by a tax on all shipping entering our ports.

We still own the ports and the docks, at least that is the popular theory. They could not well retaliate since we own little shipping. The United States would like to hear President Roosevelt say to the British, the French and the others, "there are several ways of skinning a cat, and I propose to show you one or two of them."

YOUNG LADIES attending the fateful Virginia dinner, at which Dr. Wirt thought he heard somebody call President Roosevelt "only the Kerensky in the revolution soon to be replaced with a genuine Stalin," testify that nothing of the kind was said.

In fact the young ladies agree that the dinner started with a monologue by Dr. Wirt which outlasted the dinner. Nobody else could say a word.

YOU FEEL SORRY for poor old Trotzky, despite the color of his politics. Fate put him in the Russian revolution, raising him to the heights. Stalin threw him out, into Turkey, he wandered to France and guilelessly started organizing a "fourth internationale" to "put an end to all organized government." The French government puts him out of France, and he doesn't know where to go.

He thinks the United States, but what with Professor Wirt and one thing and another he can hardly hope to get in here. England used to receive all revolutionaries, but some other countries may reject Trotzky, to avoid offending the younger, more poweful Stalin.

NOTHING IS more pathetically futile than trying to overthrow government at an inopportune time. Governments overthrow themselves. Nobody can do it for them. Prudhomme said it long ago:

"Monarchies perish through poverty, republics through wealth."

Poverty, misery and the bloodshed of a stupid war destroyed the czars.

Wealth stupidly used and abused in the United States has made Professor Wirt and others feel a little shaky. No Lenin or Stalin could have produced the Russian revolution. A big war and twenty millions killed did that.

Napoleon knew it, when he said, standing by the grave of Jean Jacques Rousseau, on "the Island of Pines:"

"But for Rousseau there might never have been any revolution. But for the revolution there would never have been any Napoleon. It might have been better if neither of us had lived."

HERE IS a startling sequence, amazing sincere prohibitionists.

Peter Pollen, of the town of Conception, Trinidad, celebrated his one hundredth birthday feeling well.

Celebrating, he plunged into a rushing stream, "Wyma," near his dwelling, swam thirty-five yards, half a New York block length, under water, came to the surface, crawled out and said:

"My recipe for a long life

500 BATTLE EVICTION, ONE SHOT

100 Policemen Mass In Woods Run to Quell Disturbers

Angered at the eviction of a North Side family from a Preble avenue flat, a rioting mob of nearly 500 persons battled today with 100 police armed with tear gas, riot guns and clubs.

One of the rioters was wounded by a bullet from the revolver of a policeman, who previously had been severely beaten with a bed slat, and eight persons, three of them women, were arrested.

All were charged with inciting to riot.

Roy Bellic, 40, unemployed iron worker of 72 Ontario street, was the only serious casualty of the riot.

He is in St. John's Hospital, suffering from a bullet wound in his left leg.

POLICEMAN BEATEN

Plainclothesman John Scanlon of the Woods Run Police Station, directly across from which the riot took place, also was in St John's.

Scanlon was treated for cuts and bruises suffered when he was knocked to the pavement by 15 or 20 men and severely beaten, allegedly by Bellic, with a bed slat.

Bellic was ordered held on a rioting charge.

George Chubeck, 40, and his wife, Nancy, 27, who had occupied the upper flat at 3007 Preble avenue, returned to the address about noon, just as Deputy Sheriffs Robert Brown and William Braun, executing aw rit of eviction, had piled their furniture on the street.

Chubeck remonstrated and allegedly called upon neighbors to help him move the furniture back into the flat.

Brown and Braun asked Woods Run polices to aid in keeping order.

Scanlon and several fellow-officers responded.

Crossing the street, they were met by 15 or 20 men who had gathered shurriedly. Scanlon was knocked to the pavement, kicked and beaten.

FIRES ON ATTACKERS

While on his back, he drew his revolver, firing three shots at the feet of his assailants. One of them hit Bellic.

Riot calls were sent to police of Central and North Side station, Detective Bureau and the Sheriff's office. Meanwhile, the crowd had swelled to nearly 500.

After approximately 100 officers had been concentrated on the scene, the rioters began to disperse, but not until after eight arrests had been made.

WIFE AIDS MATE

Mrs. Chubeck, who joined her husband in resisting the eviction, collapsed after she had been booked at the North Side Police Station.

Said to be an expectant mother, she was taken to St. John's Hospital, while officials of the City Welfare Department made arrangements to find another home for the Chubeck family.

Others arrested besides Chubeck, his wife and Bellic were John Kushik, 40, of 37 Doerr street; his daughter, Katherine, 17; Adelle Pretshold, 37, 3170 Brighton road; Edward Pretshold, 40, same address, and Tony Wuboya, 42, 3053 Preble avenue.

LIQUOR BOARD CLAIMS PROFIT

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, April 18.—The State Liquor Control Board today denied that it was "broke."

In a formal statement, the board declared it has already paid liquor bills in excess of $7,000,000, has a present cash balance of more than $1,500,000 and shows a net profit of $1,250,000 since beginning operations last January 1.

The board admitted charges made in a newspaper article in Philadelphia that estimated consumption was greatly in excess of actual consumption, but declared its liquor purchases were made on the basis of estimates of the Treasury Department in Washington, and after a study of federal tax records of the prohibition years. The board explained:

"It would appear that a large part of the public, not being financially able, is not spending money for liquor. Likewise, the 15 years of prohibition seems to have had a marked effect upon the public demand for liquor.

"People are simply not drinking as they once did."

STEEL MEN ACT ON LABOR BILLS

In an unexpected move today the convention of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers prepared to act on a resolution indorsing the Wagner-Connery labor bills pending in Congress.

M. F. Tige, international president of the organization, was blocked in an attempt to have convention rules suspended and bring the resolution before the delegates today in order to communicate their action to President Roosevelt before he meets tomorrow with his cabinet.

His motion failed to receive the unanimous consent necessary for suspension of the rules.

Tighe will urge the convention to adopt the resolution at once, so that telegrams may be dispatched to the President, Secretary of

'Two Toms' Apply Arts To Warden's Problems

Friends, meet Tom Dolan, librarian, and Tom (Goose) Goslin, keeper of the Jailhouse records.

The two Toms, you recall, were mixed up in that Monaca Club matter and sentenced to six months in jail as gamblers.

But you wouldn't know them now.

Mr. Dolan today was appointed jail librarian by Warden John McNeil. Perhaps the warden thought Dolan's knowledge of book-making would prove useful.

And Mr. Goslin, who kept the accounts of the Monaca Club, has been assigned as jail clerk. His duties will be to check in the new "guests," assign them to proper quarters and see that they get a clean towel once in a while.

The third member of the three Toms, Mr. Coyne, who also was convicted, is at liberty pending appeal.

RANSOM CASH OF LINDY'S FOUND

'Jafsie' Asked to View Picture of Suspect In Boston

BOSTON, April 18.—(AP.)—United States Marshal John J. Murphy today asked New York federal authorities to have Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon, ransom conveyor in the Lindbergh kidnaping case, come here to view a photograph believed to be that of the mysterious "John" who received the ransom money.

Marshal Murphy declined to divulge where the photograph had been obtained but indicated it had come into his possession in connection with the recovery of some of the ransom money. The request that Dr. Condon come here was forwarded to the United States Marshal at New York.

Dr. Condon gave $50,000 to the stranger in a New York cemetery in what was to have been a step toward ultimate return of the child to its parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh. The finding of the child's body not far from the New Jersey home of the Lindberghs later revealed that whoever received the money could not have fulfilled his part of the bargain.

George West, acting chief of the New England section of the division of investigation, Department of Justice, confirmed the report of the finding of some of the ransom money. Beyond that he withheld comment.

PROBE PARIS TIP

PARIS, April 18.—(AP.)—French suspicions that Stewart Donnelly, of Chicago, wanted in New York on confidence game charges, knows something about the Lindbergh kidnap money will be investigated by two American detectives who arrived today to take him back to the United States.

French police said they believed when the American was arrested here last September he had in his possession some bills John F. (Jafsie) Condon paid to purported kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby.

NEW YORK, April 18.—(AP.)—Police said today that Stewart Donnelly, of Chicago, arrested in Paris, is not wanted for questioning in the Lindbergh kidnaping case.

6 READY TO DIE IN 'LIFE' TEST

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18.—(AP.) — The Examiner says a woman and five men have volunteered as subjects for tests for a life-restoring process devised by Dr. Robert Cornish, of the University of California, and which has hitherto been tested with partial success only on dogs.

Their offers have been declined by Dr. Cornish, who is research associate in the university's institute of experimental biology.

One of the volunteers was a 21-year-old Pittsburgh youth, who wrote:

"I offer myself as a human experiment either in this line or any other experiment whatsoever. My purpose—the cause of science."

Dr. Cornish's process consists of injecting a solution into the blood stream to prevent clotting of the blood and to stimulate heart action. Tried on dogs that had been asphyxiated, it restored life for several hours although the dogs did not return to consciousness.

Girl in Coma Month Wakes For Ice Cream

COLDWATER, Mich., April 18.—(AP.)—Rosalie Swagerle, 17-year-old Peru (Ind.) girl, regained consciousness today for the first time since she suffered a neck fracture in an automobile accident on March 18.

The first words she had spoken in 744 hours conveyed a request for chocolate ice cream. She got it.

A Rescue for Aviation

TO BRING order out of the chaos into which American aviation has been plunged by the wrecking of the federal air mail, Senator McCarran, of Nevada, has introduced in the Senate a measure of tremendous importance.

This is the McCarran bill for the future regulation in the public interest of commercial aviation.

The McCarran bill provides:

First, for the issuance of a certificate of public convenience and necessity to all air transport companies which were in operation on a fixed daily schedule on the first of the present year.

Second, for the creation of a federal air commission to regulate in the public interest commercial aviation in much the same way that the railroads are regulated by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

AIR TRANSPORT companies, having contracts with the government to carry the mail, under the legislation proposed by Senator McCarran, would operate under a certificate of public convenience at reasonable rates to be fixed by the commission.

The commission would receive applications of new air transport companies seeking to obtain mail contracts. After a public hearing, the commission would then decide whether the public interest required the granting of such a certificate.

These and other important decisions regarding the carrying of the federal air mail and the regulation of air transport would not be subject to the whims of pork-barrel politicians. They would be made by the federal air commission, which would be an independent and impartial tribunal.

THE NEW commission, for which the McCarran bill provides, would also be charged with fixing all the conditions under which the air mail should be carried.

It would protect the rights to fair treatment of the air transport pilots.

It would protect the stockholders of the companies obtaining contracts for carrying mail.

It would protect commercial aviation from exploitation and safeguard it as a vital auxiliary of the national defense.

It would authorize the President, in time of war, to take over all air transport for the carrying of troops and materials of war.

THE M'CARRAN bill embodies the carefully considered recommendations of the ablest authorities on commercial aviation. Its enactment into law would not only revive American air transport. It would also protect all commercial aviation in the future from the melancholy blunders that have recently wrecked the federal air mail and dealt a hard blow to commercial aviation in America.

Roosevelt Balks At McLeod Bank Payoff Proposal

By JOHN P. COWAN
Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Some encouragement for the relief of depositors in closed banks was offered by the administration today.

While President Roosevelt let it be known that he opposes legislation for the payoff of depositors, he nevertheless announced that officials of the Treasury Department and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation are re-examining the assets of all closed national banks of the country with a view of establishing a more liberal policy and thus affording higher payoffs and more speedy action.

This announcement was made in the course of the President's comment on his conference yesterday with Representative Clarence J. McLeod (Rep.), of Michigan, author of the McLeod bill; A. Mitchell Palmer, former Attorney General, and Chairman Jesse Jones, of the R. F. C.

Mr. Roosevelt declined to be quoted in detail as to his views on the payoff legislation. This fact,

His face and head cut and bruised, Frank P. O'Neil, of Detroit, reported to police early today that he had been beaten and robbed of $35 by two strong-arm men in Oak alley, near the Aldine Theater.

M'NAIR LIMITS BLUE LAW POLL

Mayor McNair's second postcard poll—on Sunday movies—is under way.

Some 50 cards, not yet sorted into for and against, were received this morning.

Profiting from experience in his daylight saving poll, McNair has placed restrictions on this expression of public opinion, excluding petitions, letters and standardized printed cards. He said:

"The printed cards were something that wasn't fair in the last poll."

No date has been set for the ending of the poll. Nor has any action been planned on its result.

TIEUP SEEN WITH VARE, GRUNDY

Story Fails to Dim Hopes of Rivals in Governor Race

By G. EVERETT DOYING
International News Service.

HARRISBURG, April 18.—Efforts of Republican leaders to achieve common support on one of the 16 candidates for Governor in the Republican primary today gave added momentum to the campaign of Attorney General William A. Schnader.

While there was no confirmation of a report in Philadelphia that the forces of William S. Vare, Joseph R. Grundy and the Mellons in Pittsburgh were prepared to throw their support to Schnader, it was evident Republican leaders were holding the Attorney General forth as the leading harmony candidate.

Other candidates, however, refused to accept Schnader's reported predominance in the struggle without resistance.

RIVALS IN RUNNING

Lashing out against any handpicking by political powers, Judge Harry S. McDevitt reiterated he was in the fight "to the finish."

Judge Marion D. Patterson, of Hollidaysburg, whose campaign gets formally under way tonight in Altoona with a huge rally of Republican voters, said:

"Mr. Schnader has by no means clinched the nomination."

Judge Patterson said his candidacy was gaining strength in Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania.

The political spotlight today was focused on the traditional "candidates' dinner" to be held by the League of Women Voters in Philadelphia tonight. All candidates for state-wide offices have been in-

Walker Wed Year, Celebrates in London

DORKING, Eng., April 18.—(INS)—In celebration of their first wedding anniversary, James J. Walker and his wife, formerly Betty Compton, went to London this afternoon to spend a "quiet day."

The former New York Mayor said:

"Just another quiet day of perfect happiness, like all the others since our marriage."

Fire Truck Reveler Paroled for Year

Atha Quigley, 25, of West View, admitted today to Judge W. Heber Dithrich that while intoxicated New Years Eve he had driven the borough fire truck home from a fire.

He pleaded guilty to driving an automobile without the owner's consent and was paroled for one year and ordered to pay the costs.

Beer Baron Arrested As Robbery Suspect

LOS ANGELES, April 18.—(INS.)—A man police identified as Edward J. (Spike) O'Donnell, voluble Chicago beer baron, was arrested early today in a Hollywood beer parlor on a charge of suspicion of robbery. Police said he had $1,000 in cash when arrested.

Parse Pinchot Platform, Win McNair Model!

Mayor McNair is going to offer to give away his toy model of McNair Manor tonight.

He will present it as a prize, he said, to any high school child who can explain the campaign platform of Gov. Gifford Pinchot, candidate for Republican nomination for the Senate.

The Mayor indicated, however, that there was a possibility that no one would be bright enough to carry off the replica of the little house by the jail wall. He said:

"I can't understand it (the platform). But we ought to give the school children a chance."

The ceremony will take place at 8 o'clock tonight in the Larimer Avenue School, Larimer avenue. The Mayor, of course, is running for Democratic nomination for Governor, but his favorite campaign enemy seems to be Pinchot.

As an added attraction the Mayor will present on the stage the two local candidates whom he has come nearest to indorsing, Harry A. Eigenrauch, Jr., candidate for Senate in the Forty-fourth District, and Frank Policastro, for Legislature.

Eigenrauch, president of the Fourteenth Ward Democratic Club, was active in McNair's campaign.

Policastro, McNair has announced, has his "moral support."

ROOSEVELT BACKED IN HOUSE ON STOCK MARKET CONTROL

HOME BUILDING PROGRAM TO MAKE JOBS

President Silent on Silver Bills Now In Congress

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(AP.)—Leaving in a sharp form favored by President Roosevelt, but opposed by stock exchanges a committee of House members today voted forward the Fletcher-Rayburn market control bill.

Fresh upon renewed White House advocacy of a bill with "teeth," it was decided to recommend to the full Interstate Commerce Committee the inclusion of a 45 per cent marginal requirement. That is, anyone buying stock would have to put up 45 per cent of the value in cash.

On the re-employment phase of the administration program, meanwhile, it became known that "Federal Mortgage Associations" will be asked of Congress to advance funds for home building and modernization. Representative Smith (Dem.) of Washington gave details of the plan to newsmen.

LOANS OUTLINED

As reported by Smith, the new plan would allow construction loans up to 80 per cent of the value of the mortgaged property and run for 20 years at 5 per cent.

Home modernization loans would bear the same interest, be limited to a $200 minimum and $2,000 maximum, for repayment over 10 years on monthly or quarterly bases.

The plan embraces a "federal mutual mortgage insurance corporation" to insure mortgages covering the property on which loans would be made by the federal associations.

The latter would have $5,000,000 federal capital each, with power to issue bonds up to 15 times the capital, all bonds to be covered by the insurance corporation. The Home Loan Bank Board would charter the associations.

DARROW'S REPORT

Conclusions of the National Review Board, set up with Clarence Darrow as chief to study effects of NRA codes, were being put into a report for presentation to the President Saturday. It looked as though the document would be critical of the Recovery Administration's proceedings and results, but Darrow refused comment.

With regard to Congressional work, legislators had the benefit of a reiteration concerning some legislation President Roosevelt does and does not want enacted in the usually hectic days of a closing session.

Through the medium of the press, a definite, but not all-inclusive list was supplied in supplement to the Presidential views already given legislative leaders directly. There was no development as to the multiple silver bills, however.

THREE BILLS URGED

The list showed on the "aye" side:

Income tax revision compromise.

Potent stock market regulation.

A new capital-labor mediation agency.

Among other legislation taken for granted as desired is that for reciprocal tariff bargaining power. Then there are the usual routine appropriation bills and an augmented relief-public works fund.

After meeting with reporters who almost surrounded his desk the President invited railroad managers to the White House for another effort to settle the rail wage dispute.

Plans evidently include one for him to communicate with Congress on war debts that fall due again in June, but probably to report the situation rather than ask legislation. Instead of invigorating old, running arguments, the Capitol apparently looks for him to press only that legislation considered imperative—to bring about adjournment before June.

The sugar limitation bill engaged the Senate in more debate.

The House approved and sent to the Senate the compromise with the other chamber on federal guarantee of home loan bonds.

Steel Rally Worker Shuns Handbill Trial

Arrested after he had assertedly tributed handbills advertising eeting of steel workers to urge sage by Congress of the Wagner labor bill, Stanley Neff, 34, of 1517 Fifth avenue, Duquesne, forfeited $10 bond when he failed to appear for trial today before Burgess E. L. Jones of Munhall, where Neff was arrested Saturday.

STEEL MEN ACT ON LABOR BILLS

Labor Perkins and other members of the Cabinet. Tighe said:

"The hopes of labor depend upon these measures. The collective bargaining program of the NRA has been a step in the right direction, but has so far proved ineffectual and impractical."

AIMS OF MEASURES

The Wagner-Connery measures would outlaw employer-dominated unions and provide for a 30-hour work week.

Efforts to prevent Senator James J. Davis from addressing the convention, launched yesterday, were to be resumed today in a plan to seek a showdown with Senator Davis himself.

Mention of his coming visit split the gathering yesterday into two groups when a delegate from the Gary (Ind.), district declared that he ought to be barred from speaking.

NEW FIGHT LOOMS

An attempt to put such a resolution before the convention was ruled out of order by International President M. F. Tighe, who indicated he will continue to fight the motion.

The veteran labor leader, still known to the trade as "Puddler Jim" because he once was an iron puddler, arrived in Pittsburgh at noon, prepared to address the convention at 4 p. m.

He professed ignorance of the trouble over his appearance on the program and refused to comment. He said:

"No comment is necessary. In a steel workers' convention such as this there are 1,000 voices and each has the right to be heard. Anything they may say to me or I may have to say will be said on the floor of the convention."

Members of the Indiana delegation declared, however, that they will do all possible to prevent Davis from speaking. If they do not succeed they will demand that Davis explain why he "played ball" with representatives of a Gary company union, and failed to visit Amalgamated headquarters in Gary, delegates said today.

Davis has been a member of the Amalgamated for many years, retaining the membership from the days when he worked in the mills.

After hours of discussion, which occupied the entire afternoon session yesterday, all delegates were finally seated and the real work of the convention will begin today, according to Tighe.

CLASH OVER DELEGATES

The seating of delegates from a number of the newer lodges was accomplished only after heated debate, it was learned, and leaders of the younger element in the organization declared this was a victory for them.

Existence of any struggle between the old leaders and younger members of the union was denied by Tighe, who said:

"That's all hooey. There isn't anything of the sort."

Whatever struggle may exist will take place behind closed doors, for the remaining sessions of the convention will be private. The only exceptions will be when Davis, Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of the Governor, and other prominent speakers address the group. Mrs. Pinchot is scheduled to speak tomorrow.

LIQUOR GLASSES MURDER CLUE

By DOROTHY ROE
International Service.

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., April 18.—Three sets of fingerprints, one believed that of a woman whose footprint was found on the nearby Long Island Sound beach, today spurred Connecticut police in their investigation of the mysterious beach cliff murder of Arthur Todd, 72-year-old recluse.

At the same time, the impending opening of three safe deposit boxes held in Todd's name in Norwalk banks may shed new light on a hoarded "hermit's fortune" concealed by Todd from the relatives for whom he established a $200,000 trust fund.

The three sets of fingerprints, found on highball glasses on a table in Todd's 22-room mansion when his death was discovered Saturday, bore out police assertions that the finding of two men and a young woman may do much to clear up the murder mystery.

The safe deposit boxes will be opened today when Todd's will is read.

Belief was expressed that a considerable sum of money may be found by executors and police when the boxes are unlocked.

Three Nash Plants Open as Strike Ends

KENOSHA, Wis., April 18.—(INS.)—Production was resumed today in all plants of the Nash Motors Company following settlement of a strike that lasted seven weeks.

Plants took up operations again in Kenosha, Racine and Milwaukee, where the Nash affiliate, the Seaman Body Corporation, is located. Immediate employment was given to 4,700 men.

Shaw Playlet Makes World Bow in Texas

DALLAS, Tex., April 18.—(AP.)—A short play by George Bernard Shaw, "Village Wooing," which passed almost unnoticed in the latest bound volume of Shaw's works, had its world premiere last night on the stage of the Dallas Little Theater.

NEW AIR ROUTE LINKS CITY, N.Y.

A new air service between Pittsburgh and New York was assured today as the County Commissioners executed a one-year contract for use of the County Airport with the Central Air Lines, Inc.

The new company, headed by J. D. Condon, as president, and Theodore Taney, as general manager, is said to be a reorganization of the old Pittsburgh Airways, Inc., which ceased operations in 1931 after failure to obtain air mail contracts.

Two round trips daily are planned to start tomorrow or Friday between this city and New York, under the contract. Service will be extended if the new company is successful in landing air mail contracts, Director of Parks A. M. Marion informed the Commissioners yesterday.

Foe of Huey Long Leads for Congress

BATON ROUGE, La., April 18.—(AP.)—With only 23 precincts missing in the Sixth District Congressional primary, J. Y. Sanders, Jr., anti-Huey Long candidate, held a lead of more than 1,700 votes over his nearest opponent, Harry D. Wilson, Commissioner of Agriculture in the Long-Allen state administration, but complete returns will be necessary to determine whether a second primary must be called to settle the contest.

PROBER DOUBTS 'RED PLOT' DENIALS

Congressman Doesn't Believe Stories of 6 Named By Wirt

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The six dinner guests who denied Dr. William A. Wirt's charges of social revolutionary conversation were assailed today by Representative McGugin (Rep.), of Kansas, member of the Wirt investigating committee.

Deriding Congressional demands that Wirt be prosecuted for perjury, McGugin declared that he could not believe the sworn statements of the dinner guests.

Meanwhile, a report by a majority of the House investigating committee declaring Wirt had failed to prove his charges of plans within the administration to overthrow the established social order, was forecast.

The Democratic majority on the committee was prepared to declare the inquiry ended, after having heard Dr. Wirt's story of a dinner party held last September in Virginia and the version of six others who attended the dinner.

Democratic members assailed Dr. Wirt's statement of the conversation as false, as did the six other guests who were accused.

Reports that the committee would ask the federal district attorney to prosecute Dr. Wirt for perjury were flouted by Chairman Bulwinkle and Representative O'Connor (Dem.), of New York. Both said they would fight any committee report to this effect.

PRESIDENT ACTS ON RAIL WAGES

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(AP.)—In a renewed attempt to settle the railway wage dispute, President Roosevelt today conferred with railroad managers.

Negotiations started before the President left for his Florida fishing trip and in his absence, Joseph B. Eastman, federal railway coordinator, attempted to bring the controversy to an end.

However, Eastman said he was unable to make any progress as long as there was a higher authority to which the disputants could appeal.

The railway managers want to cut wages while the employes want an increase.

NRA DIRECTS ARBITRATION

Orders were received last week from Washington, empowering the state compliance director of the National Recovery Administration to refer flagrant cases of code violations to the Federal District Courts in Pennsylvania.

Before referring those listed for prosecution to the federal attorney, however, final notices were sent in the hope of obtaining equitable settlement out of court.

Since the approved codes have been in effect, the Pittsburgh office of the NRA has adjusted hundreds of complaints that include violations of both labor and trade provisions of the code.

Mr. W. R. Hearst,
Los Angeles Examiner,
Los Angeles, California.

Mr. Richard W. Robbins, president TWA, together with the undersigned, deeply appreciate the fair, forceful and helpful position you have taken with reference to the tragic air mail situation and we are deeply grateful to you for it. These are strenuous times and prove to us who the real friends of aviation are in this country.

There is a bill up for consideration in the Senate at this writing, known as Senate bill 3187, offered by Senator McCarran, and another similar bill in the House of Representatives, offered by Congressman Wood, of Georgia, known as H. R. 8953, which we believe offer the best solution of the tremendous setback resulting from the cancellation.

We would appreciate anything you feel free to do to secure early passage of the McCarran bill.

The temporary contracts on which bids have been asked, will not only not solve the present situation, but will confuse it still further, and we certainly hope that permanent legislation, as represented by the McCarran bill, will be passed by Congress before April 20th, when these temporary bids are to be opened.

The outstanding features of the above bill are:

1—Creates federal aviation commission consisting of five members—not more than three from one party—appointed by the President for 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 years from July 1, 1934.

2—Issues certificates of public convenience and necessity, automatically, to lines which have operated over 250 miles or more for six months prior to January 1, 1934. Every carrier shall provide passenger, mail and express facilities.

3—Commission will value property of air lines.

4—Commission will prescribe accounting system.

5—Commission will fix, from time to time, fair and reasonable rates pending determination of mail rates. The compensation for the first 50 pounds will be 5 mills per pound, for the second 50 pounds, 3 mills per pound, for the third 50 pounds, 1 mill per pound, and thereafter ½ mill per pound with a maximum payment of 50 cents per pound mile; also passenger and express rates shall continue as now.

6—Commission has power to arbitrate labor disputes and settle complaints from the public.

7—After 90 days after this act, no extensions, abandonments, acquisitions, reorganizations or mergers without consent of the commission.

8—After 120 days no stocks or bonds can be issued without consent of commission.

9—After December 31, 1934, no interlocking directors without consent of commission.

Once more thanking you for your splendid co-operation and with kind personal regards, I am,

Yours very truly,
H. W. BECK,
Assistant general traffic manager.

CANNON TO AID FOE'S CHARGES

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(AP.)—At the request of the defense in the trial of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., subpenas were issued today for letters and speeches made by Representative Tinkham (Rep.), of Massachusetts, demanding that the Southern Methodist churchman be prosecuted.

Tinkham was the first to say publicly that Bishop Cannon had not reported all the contributions he received in 1928 to oppose the presidential candidacy of Alfred E. Smith.

The Bishop and Miss Ada L. Burroughs are on trial on a charge of conspiracy to violate the federal corrupt practices act by failure to report to the clerk of the House all of $65,300 received from Edwin C. Jameson, New York insurance executive.

Tinkham made his assertions on the floor of the House and later repeated them outside after a challenge from Cannon. The Bishop sued for $500,000.

AIR MAIL SUITS BRANDED PLOT TO BEAT LAW

Farley Has 20 Days to Reply in Legal Fight Over Contracts

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(AP.)—Karl A. Crowley, solicitor of the Postoffice Department, today characterized airmail suits against Postmaster General Farley as "a weak effort to evade the law which says that the United States government cannot be sued without its consent."

Four aviation companies whose airmail contracts were cancelled today asked the District of Columbia Supreme Court to enjoin James A. Farley from enforcing the cancellation order and to award them damages.

The exact amount of the damages sought was not specified. Attorneys said the companies had not yet been able to calculate their losses. The companies were Boeing Air Transport, Inc.; National Air Transport, Inc.; Pacific Air Transport and Varney Airlines.

20 DAYS TO REPLY

The court gave Farley 20 days to show cause why the injunction should not be granted.

Crowley pointed out that Transcontinental and Western Air's efforts to obtain a similar injunction failed in a New York Federal Court because it was directed against the government.

Attorney General Cummings, he said, would direct the defense.

Meanwhile, Senate airmail investigators heard Mark L. Requa, California Republican National Committeeman, deny he had volunteered to call former Postmaster General Walter F. Brown "on the carpet" in 1931 in the interest of Century Air Lines. He likewise denied he had sought aid for the company from President Hoover.

FRIEND OF HOOVER

Chairman Black (Dem.), of Alabama, yesterday read the committee letters which said Requa, a close friend of Hoover, had volunteered his aid to the company in obtaining an opportunity to bid for an airmail contract.

Black today read into the record more communications between officials of the Century Air Line referring to Requa's friendship with former President Hoover and his purported disagreement with Brown's airmail policy in 1931.

Requa, in reply, said he did assure Young he would do his best to obtain favorable consideration of the Century company.

Black questioned Requa at length about a conference of Republican National Committeemen and others prominent in the party in New York last week, which Requa said he attended.

TELLS OF CONFERENCE

Requa conceded frankly that the meeting was to discuss "how in Hell the National Committee was going to pay its debts," and raise money for the coming campaign.

Others at the meeting, he added, included Charles D. Hilles, George Getz, treasurer of the National Committee, and Walter F. Brown.

The House Postoffice Committee, meantime, agreed to lay aside its own permanent air mail legislation and report to the House soon a bill to give President Roosevelt the commission he wants to make a broad study of aviation policies.

The Senate yesterday began considering a bill to provide the commission, but turned to another subject today.

Chairman Mead (Dem.), of New York, of the House committee, said the new bill would be ready for House action "in the next two or three days."

This agreement, he said, definitely stops possibilities of Congressional enactment this session of a permanent bill. Consideration of such questions as holding companies, interlocking directorates and rates will be referred to the commission for study, Mead said.

NRA Wrong if Right, Episcopalians Told

PHILADELPHIA, April 18.—(AP.)—Protestant Episcopal Church leaders opened their sixtieth congress last night with a blistering attack on the National Recovery Administration.

The NRA was condemned both as "too radical" and "too conservative" in its social reforms.

The Rev. Dr. Floyd Van Keuren, executive secretary of the social service commission of the diocese of New York, credited the recovery program with abolishing child labor and helping industry to cleanse itself of bad conditions, but said he saw these improvements eclipsed by "grave dangers of too much reform and too little recovery, of too much government ownership, of too heavily mortgaging the future in the race between recovery and survival."

The Rev. William B. Spofford, executive secretary of the Church League for Industrial Democracy, said efforts of the administration to restore profits are efforts "to solve the paradox of poverty in the midst of plenty by removing the plenty."

He criticized the NRA for what he said was its failure to eliminate sweatshops and child labor, and declared the fight of labor to organize under leaders of its own choosing instead of unions dictated by companies has not been won. Wages now are lower "than when Gen. Johnson began his ballyhoo," he said, and "big business is not being made to behave."

Unselfishness Wins Two Women Orchids

Two lifetimes spent in unselfish service to others today won "Winchell Orchids" for Miss Myrtha F. Shriver, merical director of the Allegheny County Emergency Relief units, and Mrs. Josephine Elliott, of 713 East North avenue.

Noted for her work among the poor, Miss Shriver is directly responsible for cheer in scores of households.

Chief among her interests is the care through years of a crippled boy. Another child she rescued from poverty to take under her wing is a young girl, now a pupil at the Western Pennsylvania School for the Blind.

Miss Shriver spent seven years as health nurse of Butler County and from 1930 to 1933 was superintendent of the Pittsburgh Free Dispensary and the Falk Clinic. She was named to the Allegheny County Emergency Relief staff March 1.

A similar service was that of Mrs. Elliott, who 17 years ago mothered a family of three boys whose father was in France and whose mother was ill, simultaneously nursing to health the baby in the family but refusing compensation.

These two women are among the 12 persons in the Pittsburgh district to receive "Winchell orchids" through the local members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, on nominations sent the Winchell Orchid Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

TROOPS ROUT MOB BENT ON LYNCHING SLAYER OF GIRL

3,000 RIOTERS STORM JAIL, DARE GUNS

Louisiana Guardsmen Hurl Tear Gas To End Siege

SHREVEPORT, La., April 18.—(AP.)—Soldiers of Louisiana guarded a confessed girl-slayer today from any attempted renewal of the mob violence that swirled for hours last night around—and even inside—Caddo Parish's million dollar court house.

The mob, growing in numbers during the night until around midnight it numbered nearly 3,000, was after Fred Lockhart, 38-year-old salesman of artificial butterflies. Earlier in the night he had confessed to Sheriff T. R. Hughes that it was he who attacked and killed 16-year-old Mae Giffin.

Stragglers from the mob milled about the jail early this morning, and there were reports that many men from outside the parish were on their way to join them. Officers were confident, however, that any further attack could be stopped by the two companies of National Guardsmen, hurriedly called to duty by Gov. O. K. Allen.

CONFESSES SLAYING

Sheriff Hughes said that Lockhart confessed to luring the girl from the home of her widowed mother, and slaying her.

Members of the mob, cursing and shouting, took possession of the basement and first floor of the combination courthouse-jail, threw bricks, swung clubs and cut fire hose until the National Guard from Shreveport began assembling shortly after midnight. Lockhart was in the jail on the seventh floor.

By 2 o'clock the rioters inside the building had been driven to the outside and the howling mob began breaking up.

Under orders from Gov. Allen, Col. Hollingsworth Barrett took command of the situation, releasing the tension that had existed in the siege laid against some three score parish officers, city police and special deputies who commanded the stairway leading to the second floor with machine guns, pistols and tear bombs.

One company of militia from Minden, La., and another from Ruston were ordered to his assistance. Tear gas bombs were set off throughout the night to drive back the invaders.

GIRLS SPUR MOB

As the mobsmen outside the courthouse swirled about in disorder early in the night, they were spurred into a furious assault on the courthouse entrances by two girls mounted on a truck, who shrieked:

"You men are a bunch of dirty yellow cowards."

Several hundred of the leaders rushed the basement and the main floor, smashing windows of the beautiful building with bricks, yelling at the top of their voices:

"We want to get him. We want to lynch him. Let us through."

A crowd broke into the first floor with a heavy railroad rail, but policemen headed by D. D. Bazer, chief of police, fought them with bare fists.

Four or five members of the mob climbed to the third and fourth floors from the outside of the building, which placed them above the heavy steel gate locking the jail section, but officers stationed above quickly ejected them from the building.

Sheriff Hughes reported that Lockhart had confessed to slaying the girl last Thursday after obtaining her mother's consent for her to attend his ill wife. Her body was found Sunday in a wooded section near Cross Lake on the outskirts of the city and was mutilated from stab wounds.

She Hunted for 'Mickey Mouse'

MISS MARTHA JANE RICE, 3...LUNCHEON GUEST OF PATROLMAN MARTIN FLAHERTY

'MICKEY MOUSE' QUEST BALKED

A golden-haired, blue-eyed movie fan, aged 3, boarded a street car in Squirrel Hill today, intent on seeing "Mickey Mouse."

When she alighted at Fifth and Sixth avenues, Miss Otilla Schell, of 166 North Dithridge street, who had observed the little girl in the car, followed and questioned her.

Miss Schell took her to the Police Traffic Bureau, City-County Building, where the alert miss told police she was Martha Jane Rice, of 1011 Devonshire street. Her father's name, she said, was W. J. Rice.

While her parents were being notified Martha Jane told the sergeant she not only wanted to see "Mickey Mouse" but "Alice in Wonderland." She finished eating a "hot dog" and milk which Patrolman Martin Flaherty bought for her just as her uncle, Thomas W. Breiner, same address as Martha Jane, rolled up in a limousine with a chauffeur. He said Martha Jane would get to see "Mickey Mouse."

WOULD STAGGER MOVING DAY

Abandonment of Pittsburgh's May 1 lease system and the substitution of a "staggered" program were urged today by Hugh Potter, president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Potter, here to address the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board at a dinner tonight in Schenley Hotel, said:

"It appears to me that a spreading of the leases over the year would be sensible and fair to all individuals and businesses affected by a transfer from one house to another."

This observation was made by Potter after he predicted a rise in real estate prices and gave this advice:

"This is the time to buy real estate and not sell it. Price of property is destined to rise. I can't say just when; it may be in six months or may be in three years."

But he holds that no real start in real estate recovery can be made until the mortgage structure is loosened either by the government or private sources.

5TH YOUTH HELD IN WALL KILLING

Sought as the fifth youth implicated in the slaying of Constable Martin Pluter, of Wall, Paul Harden, 22, was arrested by county detectives today in Monessen. He had been hunted since late Monday night when Pluter was found shot to death with his own revolver.

The others held are John Arendas, 23, of Seeley avenue; Zeke Zikovich, 24, of Wall avenue; Andy Plenesik, 20, of Fifth street, and Mike Petrovich, 23, of Valley avenue, all of Wall.

Detectives said the four youths admitted encountering Pluter on their way home Monday night, but said that after an argument they left him talking with the fifth youth. Young Arendas was wounded in the foot, but police said he was unable to explain how he received the wound.

CULT RIOTERS STONE POLICE

International News Service.

DETROIT, April 18.—Police interference with the cult of "Islam," a strange organization which has taken root among the Negro population of Detroit, resulted in a riot at the doors of police headquarters today.

Ten policemen were stoned, beaten and slashed with knives before riot squads and the entire mounted division could disperse the maddened crowd. Four officers, including Inspector William G. Rick, chief of the first precinct station, suffered severe injuries.

The mob sought to march to the courtroom of Judge Arthur Gordon, where 16 leaders of the cult were to be arraigned on charges of contributing to the delinquency of children, by operating a cult "university."

The 16 leaders were arrested in a raid on the "University of Islam," after Negro leaders had complained the "university" was taking hundreds of Negro children from the public schools to be instructed in the weird beliefs of the cult.

The cult has taken a strong hold on the Negro population of Detroit. Two years ago a Negro professing to be an "Islamite" laid another man on an improvised altar and "sacrificed" him with a knife.

MOTHER JAILED FOR RUM AS AID FAILS

Woman Juror, Accused In 3 Liquor Cases, Tried to Acquit

A woman juror who on three occasions had been defendant in federal liquor prosecutions was excused from further service today after she had assertedly deadlocked a Criminal Court jury for three hours in an 11 to 1 vote for conviction of three accused state liquor act violators.

She is Mrs. Ida Danenberg, 60 Roberts street, Third Ward, and the case in which she was the sole holdout for not guilty verdict was that of a mother, her son and daughter. She later voted for conviction.

Mrs. Mollie Goltsman, 56, of 2216 Forbes street, whose court appearances in liquor cases have not been infrequent but who had escaped with either fines or probation, was the chief defendant in the case. She was fined $300 and sentenced to six months in jail.

Mrs. Goltsman's son, Frank, was placed on two years' probation in addition to a $300 fine. Jennie Goltsman, a daughter, was assessed $319 as tax for liquor assertedly found during a raid by police on the Forbes street address last January 5. She was not fined.

The case against the Goltsmans was given to the jury late yesterday. Deliberations were held up more than three hours. Visiting Judge Harry James, of Bedford County, ordered an investigation by county detectives after which it was learned, he said, that Mrs. Danenberg held up the verdict.

Federal Court records here revealed that on three occasions she had been charged with Volstead Act violations.

MILLEN JURORS NOW TOTAL 4

International News Service.

DEDHAM, Mass., April 18.—The jury which will decide whether or not Murton and Irving Millen and Abe Faber parade to the electric chair was expected to be completed today at their trial for the murder of two policemen during a machine-gun holdup of the Needham Trust Company.

Four jurors, including two carpenters, a mechanic and a salesman, have already been selected.

The members of the alleged trio of wholesale killers on trial are themselves expert mechanics and carpenters. Ingenious knowledge of deadly weapons, radio and aviation were among their qualifications in their criminal excursions, according to police.

In their lattice-like iron prisoners' cage placed in the center of the courtroom, the three young defendants play an actual part, according to Massachusetts law, in the selection of the jury. Despite the meagerness of the role, they seem to enjoy the spotlight to the utmost.

TROTZKY SEEKS TURK HAVEN

International News Service.

ISTANBUL, April 18.—Leon Trotzky, exiled Russian Communist leader, today was reported to have telegraphed the Turkish government asking permission to return to Turkey.

Ordered to leave France as soon as possible after he was discovered living secretly near Paris and plotting new "world revolutions," Trotzky was reported to be seeking to settle down permanently in Turkey.

The Turkish island of Prinkipo, near Istanbul, was for years Trotzky's exile home after his banishment from Russia as a result of his feud with Dictator Josef Stalin. Trotzky left Prinkipo last year to go to Corsica, French territory, but instead settled in France proper.

Peggy Worth Hurt When Motor Skids

LONDON, April 18.—(INS.)—Peggy Worth, American actress who announced her engagement to the wealthy young Marchese Vicenzo Regoli, of Italy, four days after she met him, was injured at Chiswick today when the car in which she and the marchese were riding skidded into a truck.

M'CREADY PAID BY FIANCEE

Four days before they were married, his bride-to-be gave him a $1,000 check for "professional services," Dr. R. J. McCready, aged Sewickley physician, testified today in his attempt to upset his wife's will giving most of her $1,509,797 estate to charity.

He is seeking to have set aside his pre-nuptial agreement with Mrs. Matilda McCready, giving him $1,000 a month, and to claim a larger share of her estate.

One of Dr. McCready's contentions is that he wasn't able to do "one-sixth" of his previous medical practice following his marriage, because of his wife's demands upon him.

The day they started on their honeymoon in 1924, he said, Mrs. McCready gave him power of attorney to sign checks for her. He testified he had not used this authority.

He also explained that he has a son, Dr. E. Bosworth McCready, whose physical condition places a double responsibility on him.

INFANT KILLED BY CANCER

International News Service.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., April 18.—Robert Duane Foster, 5-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Foster, was dead today, believed to be the youngest child to die of cancer in modern times.

The child's illness attracted attention recently when he was sent home to die from Riley Memorial Hospital in Indianapolis after doctors gave up hope for recovery. Treatments failed, and because of the patient's tender age no operation could be performed.

Physicians said the cancer undoubtedly was of pre-natal origin. It first became noticeable as a lump under the left shoulder when the child was two months old. At the time of the baby's death the growth had affected the greater portion of the back and the left side.

When the infant was sent home to die physicians predicted it would not live beyond its fourth month. It exceeded this prophecy by six weeks, however, due to unusual stamina.

Two World Broadcasts Mark Anniversary of International News

International News Service.

NEW YORK, April 18.—The outstanding news events of the past 25 years will be reviewed in two world-wide broadcasts to be made Saturday in connection with the twenty-fifth anniversary of International News Service.

Arthur Brisbane, famous editor and columnist; William A. Curley, editor of the New York Evening Journal; Floyd Gibbons, noted "headline hunter," and Joseph V. Connolly, president of International News Service, will take part in the two broadcasts.

Mr. Connolly will deliver an address over the Columbia broadcasting network at 4:45 p. m., eastern standard time. His subject will be "The Twenty-five Years That Changed the World." Mr. Connolly will be introduced by Harry Von Zell, widely known radio announcer.

At 6:30 p. m. Floyd Gibbons, whose stories from Shanghai during the Sino-Japanese fighting around that city attracted world-wide attention, will speak over a National Broadcasting Company nation-wide hook-up on the 25 greatest news stories of the past 25 years as selected by Mr. Brisbane, and tell why Mr. Brisbane selected them. Mr. Brisbane himself had intended to speak but was forced to cancel the engagement because of a cold. He will be present at the broadcast, however, and will say a few words if his cold permits.

Mr. Curley also will be introduced to the radio audience at Mr. Gibbons' broadcast and will speak on behalf of International News Service clients. Mr. Curley, as editor of the Los Angeles Herald, the Chicago American and the New York Journal, has been a client editor of the International News Service for 23 years and has witnessed the growth of the service virtually from its inception.

Both of the programs will be carried to all parts of the world over short-wave broadcasts. One short-wave broadcast will go out from a station on the Atlantic Coast and another from a station on the Pacific Coast.

AIR CRASH KILLS FOUR IN GALE

LEWISVILLE, Tex., April 18.—(AP.)—Four charred bodies, those of two men and two women, today were freed from the twisted wreckage of a cabin plane that carried its occupants to death in a forced landing two miles northwest of here late last night.

The dead are: Harry Fowler, 36, Dallas, pilot; Jack Poole, 40, Dallas; Lillian Rose, 18, Dallas, and Mrs. Jewell Morgan, a divorcee.

First reports the plane was struck by lightning were later discredited. However, the plane was flying through a terrific electrical storm.

Witnesses said the plane burst into flames when it struck the ground. Then an explosion hurled fragments hundreds of feet.

The plane, a Bellanca six-passenger cabin ship, was privately owned.

DOG DRAGS PAL FROM CAR PATH

While motorists and street car motormen looked on impatiently and then with admiration, Bray, a German police dog, tied up traffic on the North Side last night to drag his companion, Wimpy, a canine of the same breed, to safety, after the latter had been struck by an auto.

Wimpy, escaping from a battle with other dogs, ran in front of a car in West North avenue and was badly injured. A short distance away, Bray recognized her feeble bark.

Darting in front of traffic, he reached her and autos and trolleys were held up while Bray did his hero act. But police found Wimpy seriously hurt and they had to shoot her.

Bray and Wimpy watched over the Allegheny "Y" Garage, Eloise street.

League for White Collar Class Started Here

America's "white collar" class is at last coming into its own.

It has some rights, it has been discovered.

And so the White Collar League of America, a non-profit incorporated organization designed, according to Eugene A. Holland, president, "to work in the interests and for the welfare of that group of United States citizens commonly known as the 'white collar' class," has made its appearance.

Mr. Holland

The birth of the idea came as the aftermath of a two-year parade of hopelessness before the eyes of Mr. Holland, a Pittsburgh insurance man. Holland said:

"For two years I watched a steady stream of white collar men, straining their last resources by cashing in on their life insurance. It was disgraceful.

"There are 15,000,000 potential members in the white collar class. Many have drained all of their resources. But you don't find them in the bread lines; their middle-class pride prevents them from making any appeal."

Describing the organization, Holland said:

"This is no racket. It's a straight, clean-cut proposition. The wheel that squeaks gets the most grease. That's why so much publicity has been given to the capitalist, the laborer and the farmer. The long-suffering and silent white collar class must be protected."

The league proposes to take necessary action toward relief and to prevent imposition of additional burdens by using the power of mass protest.

Other officers of the organization are Ward W. Wasson, vice president, and Charles G. Cunningham, secretary-treasurer. Offices are located at 1925 Grant Building.

Tipsy Gobs and Gay Girls 'Not True to Navy'

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(AP.)—A painting depicting a group of drunken sailors ashore with a number of women, the work of a Civil Works Administration artist, was ordered removed from the Navy Department today by Secretary Swanson. He said:

"I simply didn't want it. It was right artistic but not true to the Navy."

The painting was done by Paul Cadmus and sent to the Navy by CWA. Assistant Secretary Henry L. Roosevelt personally supervised its removal. He had it sent to his home, Roosevelt told reporters:

"It's out of sight and will continue to be out of sight."

Swanson personally scrutinized the picture after Admiral Hugh Rodman, a retired officer, had written a lengthy letter protesting against it. Rodman wrote:

"It represents a most disgraceful, sordid, disreputable drunken brawl, wherein apparently a number of enlisted men are consorting with denizens of the red-light district. This is an unwarranted insult to the enlisted personnel of our Navy . . . and evidently originated in the sordid, depraved imagination of someone who has no conception of actual conditions in our service."

BRITISH DEBT 'TOKEN' LIKELY IN JUNE

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Great Britain's failure to make budgetary provision for payment of the debt installment due the United States in June serves to complicate an already well complicated situation.

The action is tantamount to notice that the British government plans either to ignore the debt or make another insignificant "token" payment on the $85,670,765 due June 15.

The impression prevails here that she will again resort to the small token payment to avoid the onus of complete default.

President Roosevelt has indicated he will communicate with Congress on the whole question of the foreign debts, but no hint as to the nature of this communication has been forthcoming.

BRITAIN LOSES FAVOR

Meanwhile, negotiations for amelioration of the British debt, begun last October, are completely suspended. So far as is known there are no plans for resuming them in the near future.

There has been a considerable sentiment in Congress for amelioration of the British debt, because Britain made the first settlement agreement, and at stiffer terms than the other debtors. This sentiment, however, has been largely dissipated in the past year, beginning with Britain's "token" payment of last June, followed by another and smaller token payment in December.

It was pointed out in Congressional quarters today that Britain can well afford to make the payment due next June. The British treasury has closed its fiscal year with a surplus of about 200 million dollars, as against the 85 millions due the United States. At the same time, the chancellor of the exchequer informed the House of Commons of a reduction in British taxes.

U. S. DIFFICULTIES CITED

Members of Congress pointed out that the United States is raising taxes, and faces the largest budgetary deficit in history. Under the circumstances, Congress feels that default at this time and under such conditions comes in particularly bad grace.

No dime-on-the-dollar settlement will be approved by Congress. Rather than accept any such settlement, the sentiment is overwhelming on Capitol Hill to let the whole business go by default, with the defaulters taking the onus therefor.

Congressional feeling is aptly phrased by the common remark heard on the hill:

"Let 'em pay, or let 'em default."

'HIGH BLOOD' MYTH HIT

International News Service.

CHICAGO, April 18.—The popular notion that blood pressure is strictly a modern disease caused by the twentieth century whirl of high pressure living was under fire today at the eighteenth annual clinical session of the American College of Physicians.

Although the disease is often called a product of the modern age of wear and tear "it is doubtful that it is a modern disease," Dr. Soma Weiss, of the Boston City Hospital, pointed out.

High blood pressure occurs frequently among the populations of quiet farming villages, he said. Dr. Weiss dismissed, as single independent causes, several factors, including tobacco and alcohol.

Dangers that go hand in hand with weight reducing by the use of drugs were pointed out by Dr. Edward L. Bortz, of Philadelphia. Use of drugs without the advice of a physician, he said, may cause serious diseases.

Sleuth Dies in Duel, Bandit Suspect Shot

CANTON, O., April 18.—(AP.)—Detective Albert Bush, 38, was killed and Frank Edward Miller, 28, was wounded probably fatally late yesterday in a gun duel in a Canton rooming house. Miller, identified by Police Chief Earl W. Hexamer of Akron as the former treasurer of the Akron Car Drivers' Union, was said by the chief to be wanted in Akron for the alleged theft of $945 of the union's funds and for questioning about the holdup of Akron dress store.

Boy's Brief Whirl At Taxi Driving Fast and Dizzy

CHICAGO, April 18.—(AP.)—When 8-year-old Warren Dawes got up early in the morning he was ambition to become a taxicab driver, but when he went to bed he had changed his mind. Here's why:

A taxi driver left his machine standing, with the engine running. Warren climbed in and began pulling gadgets to see what would happen. Almost everything did. Traffic was demoralized.

The boy driver forced to the curb a car in which Joseph Brady and family were riding. Then he tangled fenders with another car, killing his engine.

COUNTY TO SUE FOR BRIDGE PAY

The county law department today is seeking ways to force the Pittsburgh Railways Company and other utilities to pay a proportionate share for the use of county bridges and highways.

The action followed a report by Thomas O. Hasley to the effect that a sunken approach to the Jacks Run Bridge, California avenue, North Side, was to be raised, but that the railways company refused to pave between the tracks and the foot on either side.

Commissioner C. C. McGovern seconded Commissioner C. M. Barr's motion to enter suit to force the utilities to pay a fair share for their use of county property.

Hayward, Finance Expert, Mourned

NEW YORK, April 18.—(INS.)—The banking fraternity today mourned the death of Robert Otis Hayward, 47, vice president of Dillon, Read & Company, and an expert on foreign government financing.

Last October Hayward was called before the Senate stock market investigating committee to explain financing involved in a $23,000,000 bond issue for the Bolivian government, which he arranged. The issue later was declared in default.

POWDER BLAST KILLS 3 WOMEN

DAYTON, O., April 18.—(AP.)—An explosion at the United Fireworks Company plant near here claimed three lives and caused serious injuries to four other persons. All the victims were young women.

The dead are Elizabeth Bradley, 20, of New Lebanon; Mrs. Lottie Pollock, West Alexandria, and Mrs. Thelma Woodyard, 23, of Dayton.

The women were making firecrackers when the blast occurred yesterday. It destroyed two small buildings and shook houses or blocks around. One powder drum exploded and the detonation set off others. The cause of the blast had not been determined.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

Business Outlook For Summer Puzzling

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The alphabet soup is going to be recooked, boiled down.

During the next six months or a year you will see all the government emergency agencies (NRA, AAA, PWA, et al) melted down into permanent government setups, differing in tone and even in personnel from the existing emergency organizations.

At least, the long range thinkers for the White House already are working on the broad outlines of such a new theme song. The NRA reorganization probably will come first.

Sole exception is the relief outfit (RWA). No one has an idea what the demand for relief will be. Hence, no long range formula for it is being considered at present.

BASIS

This is to be the second phase of the New Deal, the permanent reform phase to replace the passing emergency phase.

In general, it will represent a moderation of the original strong doses, elimination of duplication and conflict between the various agencies, a weeding out of misfits, a settling down of government policy to a long range basis.

The term "radical" or "conservative" is not used by those who are thinking the thing out. They profess to want to keep away from either extreme. Instead, they want to make a practical solution based on the experience gained from the emergency program.

They have in mind that most of the rest of the world has reorganized its governmental methods since the war. In Italy, it was Mussolini; in Russia, the Soviets; in Germany, Hitler. France is now starting out on a similar path, although no one can see yet what way her organization is going to go. England's was worked out rather mildly through the Laborite and National governments.

You will gather from talking to the planners that ours is to be the Democratic equivalent of the reorganizations in the rest of the prominent nations of the world.

BACKGROUND

The planners admit that the hastily concocted alphabet soup was not strictly along Democratic lines, that it was highly seasoned with coercion as a temporary necessity. It is their idea that the second phase will be better rooted in principles of democracy.

Another thing they have found is that good soup cannot be cooked as fast as this one was. Too many sour onions get in it.

Thousands of employes were selected on 48 hours' consideration. When one of the relief organizations was set up, it was impossible to choose the best available men, or even to know what kind of men were being picked. The need for haste is now passing.

That consideration seems to furnish the whole background of tone for the new thought—calmer, more deliberate working out of the various problems.

This means that any new or revised legislation found necessary will await the convening of the next Congress in January.

AUTHORITY

These deductions all rest upon "off the record" assertions by those competent to speak. It is what they have in mind. It is the administration side of the story and is possibly colored with that authority, but it fits in basically with what the insiders here are expecting.

It also is rather unspecific. The New Deal always has been that way, preferring to lay down general outlines within which it has comfortable leeway for movement.

The best news about it is that it assumes there will be no further need for strong business stimulants. No more hypodermics.

BUSINESS

Specifically, the administration has no inside data on summer business expectations.

We are now at the probable peak of spring production. We are bound to get a seasonal moderation, beginning in May. For instance, the automobile industry hit a new high output for last week, but its confidential schedules indicate that it is watching consumer demand very closely. The bigwigs of the industry say frankly, in private, that they will produce only enough to satisfy the market; that they are not going to stock up with cars.

In that case (which is representative) it is impossible to estimate how far production will decline.

Industrial recessions will be met, in part, by acceleration of the home building, PWA and private building programs, but no sensible person will try to guess how much.

There are good reasons for believing that the summer recession will be less than seasonal, but that is as much predicting as can be done now.

NOTES

There is some inside talk about switching Commerce Secretary Roper to Postmaster General Farley's job and letting Farley handle the Democratic National Committee, but nothing definite has been done about it . . . At a dinner here recently attended by nearly everyone who amounts to anything in Washington, ex-Senator Jim Reed received a bigger hand than most of the active practicing statesmen . . . One reason the newsmen were half-invited to the Astor yacht for a fishing investigation was to let them see the President and stop all the Wall street rumors about his being ill . . . Some of President Roosevelt's associates wanted him to make a radio speech last Sunday night so badly that they tentatively reserved time for him on the air . . . The Liberals, who are dissatisfied with the way the stock market bill has been torn apart, are being blamed for it, although they deny it. Apparently Mr. Roosevelt did not want to be rushed into anything.

(Copyright, 1934, by Paul Mallon.)

FRANK C. WALKER IS ONE OF THE CHARTER MEMBERS OF THE ROOSEVELT-FOR-PRESIDENT CLUB. HE CAME TO WASHINGTON WITH THE 'NEW DEAL' BUT HAS CONSISTENTLY KEPT OUT OF THE SPOTLIGHT. HOWEVER, MR. WALKER HAS A BIG PART IN THE ROOSEVELT SHOW AND PULLS MANY STRINGS IN COORDINATING THE ADMINISTRATION'S PROGRAM.

HILL BILLIES GO NATIVE, SPURN RIDICULE HINT

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 18.—(AP.)—Ozark hill folk danced and sang to the strains of "hill billy" music today, apparently unconcerned by the expressed disapproval of the Springfield Chamber of Commerce.

While men, women and children from all sections of the Ozarks poured into Springfield intent on participating in the first Ozarks Folk Festival, the Chamber of Commerce, through its president, John T. Woodruff, protested the celebration might bring ridicule instead of renown to this city.

WRITERS ASSAILED

Woodruff told sponsors of the affair that writers on Ozarkian subjects are "a lot of carpet-baggers" and that Harold Bell Wright, who first "touted" the Ozarks, knew little about them and had depicted characters not truly representative of the region. He added:

"The Ozarkians are a loyable people. Never get the idea they are uncouth, illiterate and mean. The real Ozarkian is high minded, patriotic and God-fearing, and he made here as nearly perfect a civilization as it is possible to make in a wilderness."

Meanwhile the show went on, with old and young dancing square dances to the music of hill country fiddling tunes handed down through generations.

SING OLD BALLADS

Voices rang out, singing in old-fashioned style such ballads as "Barbary Allen," "The Rainbow Willow," "Fair Charlotte" and "I Was Cast on Board to Serve My King."

Among the judges was Vance Randolph, Pineville (Mo.) author of Ozark stories. Bascom Lunsford, Asheville (N. C.) "Minstrel of the Appalachians," who claims ownership of the largest personal collection of ballads in existence, also was a judge.

The program includes contests for group singers, mountain bands, folk plays, square dances and hill folk party games. The winners will compete in a national folklore festival to be held in St. Louis beginning April 29.

BIRTH CONTROL HIT AT PARLEY

CLEVELAND, O., April 18.—(AP.)—Harmful effects of an improper regard for marriage were described here today in addresses before the first regional meeting of the Catholic Conference on Family Life. Numerous priests, members of sisterhoods, and prominent laymen attended.

Presenting one of the conference views on the subject, Dr. Henry C. Schumacher, of Cleveland, the organization's president, asserted:

"Strange forms of marriage are being openly advanced. Its indissolubility is more and more being ignored.

"Selfishness of both husband and wife with utter disregard for the primary purpose of marriage is the order of the day. Continence and self-control are sneered at. Licentious behavior is ever on the increase.

"Birth control movements are daily becoming more open and blatant in stating their ultimate aim—the complete ruin of the family and with it the state."

NORRIS TO URGE POWER PROBE EXTENSION

By PHILIP PEARL
Universal Service

Washington, April 18.—Senator George W. Norris announced today he will ask extension of the Federal Trade Commission's investigation of the power ring's political activities to include every state in the nation.

The commission's probe is now entering its final stage with its report to the Senate due to be submitted by July 1. As yet it has had no opportunity to concentrate on the utilities' efforts to influence legislation, the recent disclosures of conditions in New York and Kentucky having been brought out incidentally to a financial inquiry of the Associated Gas and Electric System.

URGES WIDER INQUIRY

Asked whether the investigation would be shut off after July 1, Norris, leading foe of the power interests, said:

"That is unthinkable. The evidence involving State Senator Warren T. Thayer and other members of the New York Legislature is only a drop in the bucket that could be brought up with a thorough search.

"I intend to ask that the Federal Trade Commission be given further time in which to file its final report, so that it can take up the power trust's activities in every State Legislature."

It is understood that commission officials would not be averse to continuing the political probe during the coming summer and fall if they were given until January 1 to turn in the final report.

From "leads" already in their possession, the commission's investigators are confident they can bring to light conditions similar to the Thayer case in many localities outside of New York.

N. Y. Passes 5 More Utility Control Bills

ALBANY, N. Y., April 18.—(AP.)—Virtually all of Gov. Herbert H. Lehman's drastic program for strengthening public control over the utility companies had the approval of the New York Legislature today.

The Assembly, lower House of the Legislature, voted, 97 to 49, for the Governor's chief bill permitting cities, towns and villages to go into the electric and gas business. All opposition came from the Republican side. This bill and four others were passed late yesterday and sent to the Governor.

The four other bills are intended to: (1) Charge utility companies part of the cost of rate investigation; (2) permit the 52 villages which already have electric plants to extend their lines beyond the village limits; (3) limit the uses to which utility companies may put their revenues, and (4) require the companies to turn over unclaimed customers' deposits to the state after 15 years.

Three other bills in the 11-point Lehman program have been passed.

Until three weeks ago the Lehman bills languished in committee. A few hours after letters purporting to have been written by State Senator Warren T. Thayer, Chateaugay Republican, to the Associated Gas and Electric Company in 1927 and 1928 when he was chairman of the Senate Public Service Committee, were read to the Federal Trade Commission, the Lehman bills were reported out of committee and began to move toward enactment.

COUNTY MAY AID UTILITY FIGHT

The county is considering today the city's plan to enlist all municipalities in the fight to reduce the income allowable to Pennsylvania utilities from seven to six per cent.

Attached was a resolution. The Commissioners took no action on the resolution.

RIVER BILL HELD FOR STUDY

Legislation to regulate waterway transportation will not be enacted at this session of Congress, according to dispatches from Washington.

The Dill Senate bill which would have provided regulation of inland water traffic here as well as other river centers, has been eliminated by President Roosevelt from his list of urgent legislation. Secretary of War Dern advised the Inland Waterways Corporation at its quarterly meeting.

It was said that members of the corporation are divided on the question of supporting the bill. Maj. Gen. T. Q. Ashburn president, said President Roosevelt desired that the measure be given further study.

The corporation decided more study should be given to the question of rates existing between rail and motor lines and navigable waterways.

Pay Bank Depositors

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES CONGRESS:

As an important help toward national recovery, the undersigned urge passage of the bill introduced by Representative McLeod, now before Congress, which provides for paying in full depositors of closed banks which belonged to the Federal Reserve System.

Toward this end we urge that the RFC make loan arrangements with the closed banks.

This procedure would give positive stimulus to business by converting frozen, idle and at present useless bank deposits into immediately available purchasing power.

We urge immediate Congressional action on the bill introduced by Representative McLeod.

MOYER OUSTERS FOUGHT BY 2

Two former sanitary inspectors discharged by Health Director Ray P. Moyer, were ready today to fight to regain their jobs before the Civil Service Commission.

The two, Charles F. Scheuring and Frank X. Zulawski, were dismissed after Moyer had filed formal complaints against them, the former charged with sleeping while on duty; Zulawski charged with negligence in making an inspection. They will receive a hearing before the Commission Friday.

Moyer charges that Scheuring on March 29 was asleep in the Frederick street trolley station, Overbrook.

Scheuring, in his statement of defense, says he was in another part of the city at the time.

RIGA, Latvia, April 18.—In proceedings marked by unusual secrecy, a Riga court has granted Laura La Plante, noted star of American silent motion pictures, a divorce from William Seiter, it was disclosed today.

Mysterious procedure preceded granting of the decree. Unconfirmed reports to this effect were published several weeks ago.

TEDDINGTON, England, April 18.—(INS.)—Laura La Plante don't know whether to laugh upon being granted a divorce from William Seiter, or to cry (she still loves him), she told International News Service today in halting sentences.

She was a little embarrassed, and quite surprised.

$25,000 Houston Estate Left Widow

A terse two-sentence will, written in long hand, was filed today for probate, disposing of the $25,000 estate of John Howard Houston, service station operator, who ended his life with a bullet on April 9.

The will, dated the day of Houston's suicide, leaves the entire estate to his widow, Mrs. Winifred S. Houston. Houston was a former executive of the Green Cab Company.

M'LEOD BILL OPPOSED BY ROOSEVELT

together with his announcement of efforts to liberalize the government's policy in the handling of closed banks, are regarded as particularly favorable omens by Representatives and Senators in Congress who are working for the McLeod bill, indicating that the administration is impressed by the sentiment throughout the country urging the payoff of bank depositors as a recovery measure.

In considering all proposed payoff legislation the President is perplexed as to how far back in the depression period the law could be effective, and how it could apply to banks already liquidated where depositors received total dividends of much less than 100 cents on the dollar.

STRIVES FOR JUSTICE

He let it be known that he is trying to afford justice for all the people, including those where liquidation is completed in closed banks and those whose funds are still "frozen."

The arguments advanced by proponents of the McLeod bill that the payoff would be important as a recovery measure and would restore confidence have been cheerfully admitted by the Chief Executive.

The House Rules Committee took no action today toward reporting the McLeod bill to the floor.

WAR HERO'S PAY VETOED BY ROOSEVELT

President Roosevelt today had vetoed a bill to pay a Bridgeville war hero for military service after he deserted the Marines to join the Army and get to France, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Washington.

The veteran, Miles Thomas Barrett, joined the Marines at the outset of the war. After vainly waiting to see action, Barrett deserted the Marines while on leave on May 3, 1918, and joined the army. He got to France, saw action, but was finally returned to the Marines.

He won the croix de guerre from the French government and was cited for gallantry in action by Gen. Pershing. He was honorably discharged by the Marines, but the Army refused to pay him $175.

The President said he was mindful that Barrett was actuated by an ardent desire for active duty, but that war records showed he had been paid for most of the period covered by the bill. He suggested his objection would not apply to a bill covering the actual period Barrett was not paid.

CHANGES MIND, MOTHER FREED

After making a decision which caused her mother to be sentenced to jail for three months, Mrs. Irene Sarney, beer parlor operator at 3120 Brereton avenue, fainted in Criminal Court late yesterday. When she recovered and realized what she had done, she hastened before Judge W. Heber Dithrich, withdrew her adverse decision, and thereby procured the release of her mother on a three-month parole.

The mother, Mrs. Mary Wesolek, 55, had been arraigned on a charge of violating the new liquor contral act, and pleaded guilty. W. H. Beachy, liquor enforcement officer, testified raiding officers had found a still and moonshine in the mother's apartment in the rear of the building in which the daughter has a restaurant with a beer license.

Judge Dithrich, after hearing the evidence, said he would parole the mother if the daughter would agree to surrender her beer license. A recess was taken while a court interpreter explained the situation to the mother and daughter. The daughter refused, whereupon Judge Dithrich sentenced the mother to three months in jail.

BANK FORMED ON NORTH SIDE

Plans have been approved by Secretary of Banking William D. Gordon for a proposed new bank to be known as the Real Estate Bank of Allegheny, replacing the former Real Estate Savings and Trust Company of Allegheny.

The new bank, which is to occupy the quarters used by the trust company at 516 Federal street, will have a capital of $200,000 and a $100,000 surplus.

The depositors' committee of the proposed bank, composed of North Side businessmen, has been authorized to solicit subscriptions for stock. The committee reports the subscription of more than two-thirds of the required capital and surplus. Support of the proposed bank by depositors of the closed trust company will assure its opening by June 1, according to the committee. By June 1 it is expected the receiver of the closed trust company will have approximately $1,350,000 for release to depositors.

AUTOIST LOSES TAG BATTLE

Alexander J. Bielski's two-year-old fight with the city over auto tags had turned against him today. In County Court yesterday Judge Richard A. Kennedy adjudged him guilty and fined him $48 and costs, or 10 days in jail, for 18 tags. Bielski has four days in which to appeal.

Judge M. A. Musmanno, then in the County Court, made the first ruling in Bielski's favor, holding that the city should have brought action against Bielski within 15 days of the alleged violation.

But the City Solicitor won a second hearing on the contention that the city had passed later legislation which prevailed over the state law.

March Traffic Fatalities Lower

During the first three months of this year traffic accidents were 37 per cent higher than in the same period of 1933, City Traffic Engineer Lewis W. McIntyre announced today. However, for the first time this year the traffic deaths of one month are lower than the corresponding month of the previous year. March, 1934, had a total of nine deaths as compared with 15 in March, 1933. The three-month total for this year is 37, nine of them involving children.

Police Dog Bites Policeman Who Rescued Him

NEW CASTLE, Pa., April 18.—When a dog bites a policeman that's not news, but when a police dog bites a policeman after the policeman has rescued the police dog—well that's ingratitude, according to Motorcycle Officer Ray Showalter.

A month ago Showalter plunged into the icy Neshannock Creek to rescue the dog. Yesterday he stopped at a filling station where the dog is being kept, and the dog parked his teeth in Showalter's left leg.

Showalter drew his gun, but the dog was quicker, and fled into the garage.

BIDDING CUTS BALLOT COSTS

The Pittsburgh Printing Company again, as it has for many years, received the county contract for printing the ballots.

But for the first time in many years, it received the work on competitive bidding, being the lowest of three bidders. The County Commissioners awarded the contract for $22,784, several thousand dollars less than last year, although the ballot for the primary next month is much larger.

The contract for binding was awarded to Imperial Printing Company, which presented the low bid of $2,975.

'Ride' Victim Names One of His Attackers

CHICAGO, April 18.—(INS.)—Thomas Koliver, 30, was taken for a gangland "ride" today, but was able to name his would-be executioner even though he was shot in the head and an automobile had been run over his body four or five times.

Taken to a hospital where physicians said he has a chance to recover, Koliver named Johnnie Dolf, an ex-convict, as one of the two assailants. He could give no reason for the attempt to kill him.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS! :-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-: By MARION BRUNOT

Love Diagnostician's Test Loses Beau for Her

Honey is a girl who was quite sure she was born to be a DIAGNOSTICIAN of LOVE.

And like a real chemist, she made up her mind a few months ago she would be satisfied with no heart emotion which did not respond to TESTS.

So she began a try out on her boy friend.

And now she is in all sorts of trouble. For the young man didn't react at all according to the way Honey thought he would. And what has he done? VAMOOSED.

Marion Brunot

And not only has he vamoosed. But he has anchored himself in the sitting room of another girl. One who has no dreams of being a CHEMIST, I would say. A girl who doesn't deal at all in MAKE-SURE PILLS.

Dear Miss Bunot:

I am in a terrible fix. About four months ago I quit going with my boy friend, one who had been a steady thing for a year and a half.

This boy was very nice. Very attentive. And I loved him very much. I still do. That is the trouble.

I wanted to quit, so I could go around with other fellows and find out if I was really in love with the one fellow. Also I wanted to see what would be his reaction in absence. But he couldn't see my plan at all. So he only made one more date, and quit.

And he has taken to going with another girl.

I was out the other night with a friend of his who looks so much like him that it set me thinking. And I was unhappy. I saw the real one the next day, and had a talk with him. I asked him to think of me again, and to come back. Of course I did this casually. But he demurred, saying he scarcely could be so silly as to think he can come back. Yet he kept calling me "Honey" all the time. He called me again in the evening, and said he hoped I would keep on thinking of him.

CANNOT FORGET HIM

Now, Miss Brunot, what shall I do? I think continually of him, and cannot forget. At this time I go out with some very nice fellows.

What shall I do. Shall I keep on trying to get the old fellow back? Should a girl give up everything, even girl friends, for her beau.

His father objects to me because I am not of his religion. Please tell me what to do.

Sincerely,
HONEY.

In a question of religion, I cannot settle such a matter for you. That will have to be entirely between you and the young man. However, Honey, I do think you have learned your lesson in the trying out of love. You have found out it is something not to be trifled with. You cannot diagnose it and cure it as you would appendicitis or the measles.

You scarcely can blame the young man for not rushing right back to you. Yet I believe he cares. You see, he believed you were trying to get rid of him when you suggested his staying away. He did not realize you were merely trying to find out if your emotion was a real one. After all, a young fellow has no other way to be sure of a girl, unless she shows a desire to be with him, and a preference for him over the other young men. And when she begins playing antics, how can he be sure they are just antics. And not a genuine desire to see him on his way.

He may be going out with this other girl, just as you are going out with other boys. Be pleasant and show by perseverence you are not playing with him. And I feel sure he will be your boy friend once more.

NEVER GIVE UP FRIENDS

And, Honey, don't pass out the MAKE-SURE PILLS, again. Never give up all friends, even girls, for anyone.

Dear Miss Brunot:

There are two young men who like me. I think they are in earnest. Yet neither one has proposed. The one never seems to care what I do when he is away from me. And when I begin telling him he just says: "That's your business, dearie, why should I care?" The other fellow is very jealous and sulks all evening if he knows I have been running around with anyone else. The first one takes me out a lot and shows me a swell time. But the other one enjoys sitting home, with dim lights. Which one do you think, Miss Brunot, has the deeper affection for me?

IN DOUBT.

The very fact that neither of these fellows has mentioned marriage to you leads me to wonder why you are weighing their affections and wanting to find out how to grade them. The first young man appears to be the better sport, and the more agreeable. He seems to me to be the better all-round matrimonial venture. A man does not have to be sulky to show genuine affection. And also if he has reasoning ability which most men have, he knows he has no right to monopolize your time unless he has let you know his attentions are seriously meant.

If I were you, In Doubt, I would let affairs drift a little while longer. Maybe one or the other will decide the matter for you, himself. However, watch out for the home-sitter, the one who likes dim lights and who mopes in fancied jealousy. He has a selfish aura to me.

Miss Brunot will be glad to answer letters submitted to her by readers.

Few "sweeties" get as much out of their rich boy friends as is supposed.

Luxurious apartments often belong exclusively to the rich men. A series of girls has temporarily occupied them.

Furs and finery are frequently got at wholesale prices through friendships among the men.

The apartment and flash are provided mostly to do credit to her patron, rather than herself.

"Sweeties" are easy to get—and easy to get rid of. Rich men may be foolish, but they have smart men to protect their interests.

No young, pretty girl, even with advisors who hope to share in her gains, can outwit such.

Settlements out of court have been amazingly small.

It's a poor racket for a pretty girl. She usually ends without anything.

Edith Pleads to Remain With Injured Man

Katherine's crisp command to send for the doctor at once, given after she had taken one look at Dicky's colorless face, fairly numbed me with terror. For a palsied second or two I was incapable of sound or motion. Then Edith Fairfax's frantic voice behind me brought me back to quivering consciousness.

"What do you mean?" she asked, not shrilly, but with such anguished terror in her voice that my nerves felt as if they had been knouted. "Is—is—there danger? Dicky! Speak to me!"

Katherine spoke but two words.

"Shut up!" she said. But her words had the effect of a whiplash. Edith, though nervous and highly strung, is capable of self-control, and I knew that Katherine's admonition had both stung and shamed her.

But Katherine was content with the silence her command had brought. She nodded to Lillian, standing close to me with her hand on my arm.

"Take her out and keep her out," she said in a low voice, but one which I knew carried perfectly to Edith's ears. "I have work to do. I can't be bothered with hysterical women."

In an incredibly short time she had staunched the blood, bandaged the wound and eased Dicky into a comfortable position upon the improvised bed, after administering the restorative which he so plainly needed. Then she bent over him, watching his pallid face and listening to his almost inaudible breathing.

COLOR RETURNS

It seemed an eternity before she straightened herself, but in that period of apparently endless time my eyes, fixed with hers upon Dicky's face, had seen a faint color coming into his cheeks, and my ears had joyfully caught a stronger note in his breathing.

"There!" Katherine said softly, as she flexed the muscles of her back and arms, "he'll do now until the doctor comes."

"He ought to be here now any minute," Lillian answered as softly. "I had told Ronald to telephone for him when I sent Carolyn for you, and told Marion to get the hot water ready."

Katherine smiled affectionately at her.

"Always little Johnny-on-the-spot," she said. Then I saw her figure stiffen as she saw behind Lillian the drooping figure of Edith Fairfax. Absorbed in her care of Dicky, she had not seen, as I had, Edith's stubborn, stiffened resisting figure as Lillian tried to lead her away in obedience to Katherine's mandate—had not heard Edith's low, pitiful moan:

"Oh, let me stay near him! Don't make me go away where I can't see him! I won't utter a sound, I promise, if you'll only let me stay."

It was the wail of a woman who sees the human being she loves best in danger of dying. But it aroused no feeling of jealousy or anger in me. At that moment of suspense, of not knowing whether my husband would live or die in the next few minutes, I had room for nothing else in my soul but a frantic prayer for his safety.

FEELS ASSURED

I do not think my feeling would have been different if I had believed that Dicky had ever returned the love which Edith was evincing so openly. Nothing, I believe—not even a knowledge of his disloyalty to me—could have had any weight with me in that agonized hour.

But no such test was my portion. Instead, I had the blessed memory of his rousing to championship of me against Edith's admonition to get down and let the men attend to him, and of his affectionate, clinging grip on my arm—a grip which I had been compelled to loosen tenderly but forcibly—when I climbed down from the car.

That memory did something else for me. It released my common sense, temporarily banished by Katherine's curt command to send for the doctor, and gave me the asurance that a man able to speak as Dicky had done in the car was in no immediate danger of death.

Soothed by that conviction, I was able to put a hand upon Katherine's arm, as she stood looking sternly at Edith with all the offended dignity which only a trained nurse who has been disobeyed can demand.

"I don't mind," I said softly, "Let her stay."

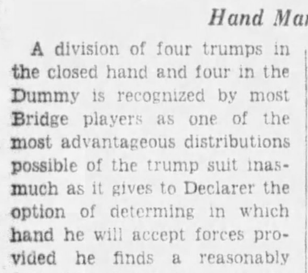
Contract Bridge :-: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Hand Management

A division of four trumps in the closed hand and four in the Dummy is recognized by most Bridge players as one of the most advantageous distributions possible of the trump suit inasmuch as it gives to Declarer the option of determing in which hand he will accept forces provided he finds a reasonably favorable distribution of the adversely held cards. However, even with four trumps in each hand the Declarer should stop, look and listen before immediately deciding to ruff the first trick he can. There may be a better and more subtle play, as West, the Declarer on the hand below discovered to his sorrow. To make a bad matter worse, he not only made the opening error of winning a trick which he might better have lost, but he formed an entirely wrong plan of the play of the cards, which brought his game contract down in disaster.

East, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	3 N T	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

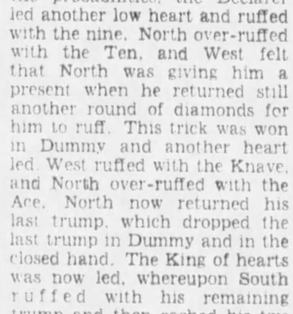
The bidding of the East and West hands, it must be confessed, presents a rather difficult problem. West particularly had a hard choice in finding a correct response to his partner's Opening bid and eventually decided on the sub-shaded spade suit. East probably should then have bid four spades at once rather than temporize with the bid of three hearts, which West could well have passed. In view of the fact that West did keep the bidding open, however, the bid of four spades came as a matter of course.

Against the contract of four spades North, having a variety of poor leads, decided to open his fourth-best diamond. When the Dummy was spread upon the table it seemed that four-odd must be made and that there was a good opportunity for West to make five-odd. The club finesse was a certainty, as North knew although West did not, and the trump suit appeared to be solid save for the loss of one trick. Had West taken a simple precaution, no play by the defending side could have defeated him. However, the hand looked so safe to him that he did not take the trouble to consider what might happen in the later play. He ruffed the diamond with the spade 4 in Dummy, then laid down the Ace of hearts, and followed with another heart, which he ruffed in his own hand. Dummy was reentered by leading another diamond, which was ruffed with the spade 5. Now, hoping to break the hearts 3-3, which is against the probabilities, the Declarer led another low heart and ruffed with the nine. North over-ruffed with the Ten, and West felt that North was giving him a present when he returned still another round of diamonds for him to ruff. This trick was won in Dummy and another heart led. West ruffed with the Knave, and North over-ruffed with the Ace. North now returned his last trump, which dropped the last trump in Dummy and in the closed hand. The King of hearts was now led, whereupon South ruffed with his remaining trump and then cashed his two remaining diamonds. Thus the game contract was defeated 250 points. Obviously, had West adopted a sound plan of play rather than an unsound one, his contract would have been fulfilled.

West's correct play to the first trick is quite obvious. The club five should have been discarded from Dummy so that the trump suit could not be weakened in both hands, and the concession of the first diamond would have assured West of the fulfillment of his contract.

Tomorrow's Hand

South, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Carbon Monoxide Gas a Constant Menace to Life

In a recent article I gave the causes of carbon monoxide poisoning and advised you as to its prevention. I briefly outlined a few emergency measures to be used to revive the victim. So many inquiries have come to me that it seems desirable to go somewhat into detail regarding this important subject.

Dr. Copeland

To the average man and woman carbon monoxide poisoning means poisoning from deadly fumes of a gasoline motor, from an automobile, for example. Carbon monoxide is a deadly gas found in the exhaust from the automobile, but is also a constituent of natural gas, coal gas and illuminating gas. Please bear in mind that this menace to health and life is present in leaking coal and gas stoves, gas tubing and defective gas jets.

The nation was recently horrified by the deaths from carbon monoxide poisoning of nine fine young men, overcome while asleep in a college dormitory. The deadly gas entered the bedrooms of these youths from a defective flue.

I cannot overemphasize this danger. The presence of carbon monoxide gas in a house is usually due to improper banking of fires. Also it comes from defective chimney flues, defective boilers and from hot air furnaces having cracked fire pots.

In my recent article, I advised that in every case of gas poisoning you should call a physician and immediately notify the nearest hospital of the accident. I also advised not to move the patient and to avoid all undue exertion, because any physical effort might prove a fatal strain to the already damaged heart.

Of course, if the victim is unconscious or has difficulty in breathing, you should immediately resort to the usual methods of artificial respiration. The "Schafer prone pressure" method of resuscitation is the best method to be applied to persons rendered unconscious by the absorption of carbon monoxide gas.

Clear the room of the gas and allow the victim to have as much fresh air as possible. Keep him well covered with warm blankets and place hot water bags at his feet. As the patient improves, he should not be permitted to walk or to exert himself, as I have said, because there is danger of heart failure.

In a recent survey of experiments conducted in regard to carbon monoxide poisoning, the best treatment was found to consist in the early administration of exygen or oxygen plus 5 per cent dioxide. This treatment should be continued at the place of accident until the carbon monoxide is completely eliminated from the blood. Of course, this treatment is best given under the personal supervision of a physician or by men trained in this work.

Carbon monoxide poisoning is a serious menace to every home and community. Its prevention can be accomplished only by a thorough campaign against the conditions resulting in such an accident. Every safeguard must be enforced to protect the lives of children and adults from this unnecessary calamity.

American Women Keep Paris Society Aflutter

Countess Believed Secretly Divorced In New York

By JANE EADS.
Universal Service Special Wireless.

PARIS, April 18.—When and where the American-born Countess De Vallombrosa has secretly divorced her handsome husband, Count Paul De Vallombrosa, was the question which intrigued Paris society today.

The social lights have just learned that the recent separation of the couple has achieved a "that's that" status in "some court somewhere."

Those who ought to know say the Countess, who was the former Ruth Acheson Obre, will soon become the bride of Andre Dubonnet and thereby, sister-in-law of the world's best-dressed woman," the former Jean Nash, who is now Mme. Paul Dubonnet, wife of the head of the Dubonnet wine interests. The Dubonnets have just returned from New York.

The Countess, whose first husband, Walter Goldbeck, a painter, left her a fortune, separated from the Count several months ago, went to America, and then returned to Paris.

Andre Dubonnet sailed across the ocean and back again on another boat at about the same time. It is believed the Countess may have obtained her divorce while in the United States.

* * *

Princess Mdivani, the former Barbara Hutton, is as popular as ever with the young men of Paris. In fact, Prince Alexis, her husband, has a hard time going anywhere in public without accumulating an unofficial bodyguard of five or six young men.

In white satin brocade etched with gold flowers and a tiny cape lined with red velvet, the blonde heiress and her Prince were among the spectators at the formal opening of "Brick Tops," a new Harlem style cabaret, the other night.

* * *

Anent Hollywooders and former Hollywooders: Lily Damita showed she is an artist in more than one way when she jumped on a chair in the fashionable Le Touquet restaurant the other day and drew caricatures of several friends on a steamed window, causing a rush of diners for autographed sketches.

Pearl White, who has forsaken the films for horses, registered a victory at the Enghien track last week when her horse, Les Bossons, a 14 to 1 outsider, captured the April steeplechase handicap.

* * *

The heaviest loser and winner at the Casino last week were both American women. Mrs. Vivian Cornelius, the former Jessica Browne of the Ziegfeld Follies, and once the wife of the Earl of Northesk, had a streak of luck at baccarat, winning several thousand francs in 12 consecutive coups.

Mrs. Walter Spencer Burns, the former Ruth Evelyn Morgan, of New York, was reported a steady loser. It is said she is more than 100,000 francs poorer since she arrived, but is still hopeful.

* * *

Paris, pining for absent Yankees whose gold was once freely spent, has the "missing American blues." The bars of the pleasure capital of the Continent are relatively empty and the night clubs and peek-a-boo shows are in the doldrums.

The hotels are in dire straits. One famous one—the Plaza Athenee—frequented in the rosy days by the Rockefellers, Henry Ford, Louis Sherry and others, has been forced to close. Paris theaters, including the most daring musical revues, have found their receipts cut almost in half.

The "Roosevelt dollar" has even apparently put a stop to the marriage of American beauties into the French nobility. There no longer seems to be much of a premium on American heiresses here.

The French still say:
"Paris c'est Paris."
But she ain't when she used to be.

* * *

Most people want to rid themselves of white elephants. But not Cecile Sorel, famous French actress. She was delighted to take a tiny (live) one off the hands of the King of Siam, who presented her with a dwarf white elephant which will never grow bigger than a lion.

Cecile sent him to her villa in the south of France. She scorned the idea of using him in her musical revue, stating:

"It is a sacred animal."

* * *

Mrs. Marshall Field, Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt and the latter's sister, Lady Furness, are among the society folk arriving in Paris recently.

* * *

Mrs. John W. Garrett, wife of the former American ambassador to Italy, was a week-end guest of Lady Mendl, the former Elsie de Wolfe, of New York, at the latter's Versailles home.

* * *

Mrs. Jesse Straus, wife of the American ambassador to France, has just bought two smart costumes for her spring wardrobe. One is black wool trimmed with white and the other is a pale yellow coat with a marine blue alpaca dress trimmed with a double jabot of white pique.

LINK MELLONS TO SCHNADER CANDIDACY

vited to be present and state their platforms.

Grundy and Representative John M. Flynn, of Elk County, conferred with Senator David A. Reed, who is opposing Gov. Gifford Pinchot for the Republican senatorial nomination, at Washington yesterday, but were reported to have made no progress in attempts to induce the Senator to commit himself on the gubernatorial battle.

Judge Patterson announced the ranks of his supporters had been augmented with the addition of two members of former Gov. John S. Fisher's cabinet—Charles E. Dorworth, of Centre County, who served as Secretary of Forests and Waters, and Peter Glick, of Pittsburgh, formerly Secretary of Labor and Industry.

Reed announced the appointment of Judge William E. Hirt as campaign manager in Erie, and Harold F. Reed, as campaign manager in Beaver County.

After spending two days in Mercer and Lawrence counties last week, Reed said he was confident they will remain "steadfast to the ideals and principles on which the government was founded." He added:

"That, above all, is the great issue of the present campaign."

In his second radio address over the three-station Pittsburgh-Harrisburg-Philadelphia hookup, Gov. Pinchot formally announced his 13-planked "New Deal" platform prefaced by another vitriolic attack on Reed as a spokesman for "the men who control vast accumulations of money and are not satisfied with what they have already."

Condemning concentration of wealth, the executive told listeners this was why he opposed Reed for the Senate:

"Senator Reed throughout his life in the Senate and outside it has been for the big fellows. He lives with them, he associates with them, he works for them, he votes for them. Throughout my life I have worked with, stood with, and fought for the plain people in their effort to improve their condition."

Twenty-five Western Pennsylvania counties will be included in a whirlwind tour to be made by Attorney General Schnader beginning next Monday, his headquarters here announced today.

Shannon, M'Devitt To Stay in Race

PHILADELPHIA, April 18.—(AP.)—Opposition from other candidates is greeting the report that three Republican leaders have agreed on a slate including Attorney General William A. Schnader for the nomination for Governor.

Lieut. Gov. Edward C. Shannon, of Columbia, and Judge Harry S. McDevitt, of Philadelphia, say they are still in the fight.

Shannon telephoned his headquarters in Philadelphia after hearing the report:

"I will not withdraw."

Judge McDevill declared:

"It seems that the so-called bosses of the Republican organization, Andrew W. Mellon, Joseph R. Grundy and William S. Vare, have taken it upon themselves to 'deliver' the gubernatorial nomination.

"I don't care what the Mellon-Grundy-Vare outfit does or tries to do. I'll let the people decide whether they want an unbossed Governor or the handpicked choice of the Mellons, the Grundys and the Vares."

RIVAL SCORES ELLENBOGEN

Congressman Henry Ellenbogen was scored as evading the veteran issue in a statement issued today by Walter Lincoln Bouve, candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Thirty-third District.

Ellenbogen, seeking renomination, rode into power on promises to veterans, Bouve charged, and then missed the petition to bring their bonus measure on the floor of the House for action by being ill in Pittsburgh with a cold.

Bouve continued:

"Ill and unable to get back to Washington to vote, but able to appear in a restaurant noted for its late dinner dances."

Bouve took Ellenbogen to task for "franking" out an explanation of his action, but not explaining why he left Washington.

Police Hold Youth In Beating, Robbery

Mickey Scarpino, 20, was arrested last night on a larceny charge in connection with the beating and robbery of John Ford, 35, of 8883 Frankstown road, at Washington street and Clay alley early yesterday, police said.

Ford identified Scarpino as the youth who blackened his eye and took $15 from him after the two had been together, according to police.

McSparran to Talk On Dry Drive Here

"The Next Step in the Dry Movement" will be discussed by John A. McSparran, State Secretary of Agriculture and candidate for Democratic and Republican nominations for Governor, in Pittsburgh Friday.

McSparran will speak before a gathering of temperance forces in the Downtown Y. M. C. A. at 6 p. m. Later in the evening McSparran will address the regional conference of the W. C. T. U. at the First United Presbyterian Church, Oakland.

VOTE REFORMS PROPOSED BY ELLENBOGEN

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(AP.)—Numerous changes in the laws governing elections to federal offices are proposed in a bill which Representative Ellenbogen (Dem.), Pennsylvania, prepared for introduction today in what he termed a move to "preserve the sanctity of the ballot."

The measure would authorize federal judges to appoint two supervisors of election for any election district upon petition of five electors; would appoint United States commissioners chief election supervisors for judicial districts and would permit special deputy United States marshals to assist the district supervisors on election days.

Broad powers to examine and investigate lists of voters, registrations and other records would be given the judges of election and stipulates they need not be residents of the districts in which they serve.

Commenting on the bill, Ellenbogen said:

"Pennsylvania election laws, enacted by politically-bossed Legislatures, lack teeth. There are too many loopholes that permit frauds through legal circumvention of the spirit of the law.

"The proposed federal election bill plugs up all the avenues of escape for the vote cheater and sets up the machinery for a most effective and vigorous enforcement of the election laws."

Earle Assails G. O. P. At Rally of Women

PHILADELPHIA, April 18.—(AP.)—George H. Earle, candidate for Democratic nomination for Governor of Pennsylvania, accuses Republicans of masking their fight against progressive social legislation with talk about preserving the American form of government.

Earle told Democratic women of Philadelphia at a rally last night:

"The tragedy of our times lies in acceptance of the Republican argument that if we keep children from working, if we guarantee to all workers a decent living wage, if we take care of our old folks, we are destroying Americanism."

Joseph F. Guffey, candidate for the United States Senate, and others spoke.

REED APPOINTS 2 VOTE AIDES

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(AP.)—Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, today had announced appointment of Judge William E. Hirt, of Erie, to head his campaign committee in Erie County. Harold F. Reed, of Beaver, was named chairman of the Reed volunteers of Beaver County.

Flush Poisons From Kidneys and Stop Getting Up Nights

When you can get for 25 cents a supremely efficient stimulant and diuretic that will flush from your kidneys the waste matter, poisons and acid that are now doing you harm, why continue to break your restful sleep by getting up thru the night. Just ask your druggist for Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules—but be sure and get GOLD MEDAL, which as also successfully used to drive excess uric acid from the body—the aggravation of sciatica, neuritis, lumbago and rheumatic pains.

BEAMISH URGES G.O.P. LOYALTY

BLOOMSBURG, April 18.—(AP.)—Richard J. Beamish, Secretary of the Commonwealth, last night told members of the New Republican Club of Columbia County that a Pennsylvania political campaign based only on opposition to President Roosevelt is "doomed to disaster."

Criticizing "reckless Pennsylvania leaders" who, he said, are opposing the national recovery program, Beamish asserted:

"I take my stand, in this national emergency, an emergency as great as that of war, with Ickes, Wallace, Norris and Pinchot.

"I am not counseling you to abandon your Republicanism. On the contrary I am urging you to stand more staunchly than ever before by the tenets and traditions of your party; I am asking you to stand by the real Republicans, the brand of Republicans who are always for the welfare of the American people, the men who looked to Lincoln and to Theodore Roosevelt for their inspiration."

MRS. RIGGS HITS PINCHOT COSTS

The state payroll is more than $2,000,000 higher than that prevailing when Gov. Pinchot assumed office, Mrs. Walter L. Riggs, vice chairman of the Reed campaign committee, charged yesterday, "because Pinchot failed to practice that first ideal of a public official—rigid economy."

Mrs. Riggs spoke at a meeting of the Women's Guild of the Third United Presbyterian Church at the home of Mrs. T. H. J. Lang, of 2326 Sherbrook avenue. She asked:

"If this is the case now, what could voters expect if Pinchot was lucky enough to get to the Senate?"

Advocating the candidacy of Senator David A. Reed, the speaker pictured him as an official and statesman "who fearlessly protests against wasteful policies detrimental to general welfare, and which, if continued, will lead to political and economic disaster."

VOTE MACHINES UNDER REPAIR

The 1,100 vote machines of Allegheny County are now under repair and reconstruction for the fall elections.

The County Commissioners, within a few days, will execute the contract, awarded yesterday to the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company to repair them at a cost plus, with the top price for each machine not to exceed $625. The only other bidder was the Thomas Spacing Machine Company, of Glenshaw, which bid $675.

One machine is to be ready June 1 for demonstration purposes, Commissioner C. C. McGovern stipulated in awarding the contract. The machine as repaired by the Westinghouse company was approved last February by Richard J. Beamish, secretary of the commonwealth, contingent on some minor repairs.

However, other organization men, with whom Earle had intended to tour, were to be in Butler and Beaver counties today, and will be joined tomorrow by Earle in Greene and Washington counties.

The campaigners include Thomas A. Logue, of Philadelphia, candidate for Secretary of Internal Affairs; Thomas Kennedy, of Luzerne County, candidate for Lieut. Governor, and Joseph F. Guffey, Pittsburgh candidate for United States Senator.

Huckster Accused of 'Short-Weight' Sales

David Reba, 50, a huckster, of Vickroy street, arrested yesterday in New Homestead, was to be arraigned in South Side Police Court today on charges of violating a city ordinance and larceny by trick, police reported.

Complaints that Reba was selling apples in bushel baskets that had false bottoms filled with burlap resulted in his arrest, police said. In each bushel the customers were short measured a peck, according to police.

MARGIOTTI SEES ISSUE IGNORED

James H. Duff, Western Pennsylvania manager for the gubernatorial candidacy of Charles J. Margiotti, issued this statement today:

"The reported agreement by the Mellon-Grundy-Vare interests on the candidacy for Governor of Attorney General William A. Schnader makes a clear-cut issue for the primary campaign.

"We now have in the open a candidate of Big Business.

"The campaign now becomes one between the business interests supporting Schnader, Lieut. Gov. Edward C. Shannon and one or two other candidates.

"Charles J. Margiotti's appeal is only to the people and his only obligation will be to the voters who will elect him."

Pittsburgher Freed By New York Police

When no complainant appeared against him, Franklin Meade, who gave his address as the Royal Yorke Apartments, Bigelow boulevard, was discharged in Police Court in New York yesterday.

Meade was arrested several days ago when police were told he refused to pay a $24.50 bill for himself and two friends at a club. The magistrate was informed that the bill had been paid. Meade said he was a manager at the East Pittsburgh plant of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

Reed Campaigner Raps Farm Policy

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(INS.)—President Roosevelt's agricultural policy is calculated to benefit the West and the South at the expense of the East, Claude T. Reno, of Allentown, Pa., chairman of the David A. Reed campaign committee for Pennsylvania, said here today. He asserted:

"The processing taxes are injuring our farmers as well as our consumers in Pennsylvania."

Deafened Hear Without Ear Drums New Device Is Demonstrated Here

New hope has come to scores of deafened people who, last week, received a demonstration of an entirely new type of hearing aid by Acousticon, 719 First National Bank Bldg.

For the first time since their hearing was impaired, these people took part in group conversation from all angles and at considerable distance. They heard sounds they had not been able to hear for years. Their new hearing was clear, natural, strong. And general delight was expressed at its inconspicuousness.

Even those whose middle ear mechanism is completely destroyed can hear with this device—the New, Amplified Bone Conduction Acousticon, since it uses a new auditory path—bone conduction.

Free demonstrations given at Acousticon, 719 First National Bank Bldg., 5th Ave. & Wood St., Pittsburgh—or in your home or office, by appointment. Booklet "Defeating Deafness" on request. Dept. 7-ST.

Moral Drama Not a Bore In Nixon

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Sixteen Epworth Leagues, which means the young people's societies of 16 Methodist Episcopal churches, joined efforts last night in presenting at the Nixon Theater a drama that was written years ago by Jerome K. Jerome and played by Sir Johnstone Forbes-Robertson. The drama is not inappropriate for production by a religious group, for its central character, known by the play-bill as "The Stranger," is a personification of the Christ ideal.

Mr. Seibel

To play this part requires a lofty dignity and a deep humanity, qualities which Forbes-Robertson radiated through his mature art. That a young man by the name of John J. Davis, possessing a sympathetic voice and a sincere simplicity, was able last night to create a moving illusion, is worth setting down because it was hardly to be expected. Stage Director D. M. Hall could not find a Forbes-Robertson on the South Hills, but is to be congratulated upon finding a John J. Davis.

There were other very good bits of acting in the cast of 11. Margaret Doescher as Stasia, the slavey, and Wilda Morris as the flighty Miss Kite, gave neat portrayals of character. Helen Levens as Vivian, the selfish young heroine, presented a credible portrayal of worldly youth. The three other women—the landlady, the major's wife and the top-lofty aristocrat—were acceptably rendered by Dorothy Ackley, June E. Williams and Marie Seaberg.

ONLY THE SURFACE

The fault with most of the male characters was that they were only on the surface. A few military phrases by H. B. Trautman were not enough to depict a retired major of the most retiring army. A gambler, a Jew, an artist and a cad—played by Ralph Davis, Jr., Clarence Herisko, Lionel Poulten and Charles Neilson—were hardly underscored sufficiently to be either individuals or types. As for the Cockney accent, it might have been better to forget it altogether.

Yet it must not be left out of sight that these young people were plunging into deep waters with just a few swimming lessons, and they did not drown. In fact, they reached the other shore of every important scene safely—they were generally audible, which professional players sometimes are not—and some of them caught the humor and the pathos of Jerome's old play admirably. The moral drama did not become a bore at any time.

SETTING OF ORIGINAL

The stage setting had been copied from photographs of the original production, although lacking the solidity of a costly scenic interior. But it was sufficiently real to provide an illusive background for the miracle of personality which forms the real action of the drama. As the Stranger by his kindly and winning words and ways changes every one of the sordid and tricky people into his better self, the play which is a sermon unfolds to a touching climax. The large audience, which might have been larger, enjoyed the acting and appreciated the lesson. For which D. M. Hall and his 11 disciples deserve high praise, for they labored valiantly and intelligently in "The Passing of the Third Door Back."

MUSIC

Mendelssohn Choir
Carnegie Music Hall

The Mendelssohn Choir, Ernest Lunt directing, closed its season last night with a moving performance of Bach's St. Matthew's Passion. The large audience almost filled Carnegie Music Hall, and was anxious to show its appreciation, but withheld its applause according to custom.

Mr. Lissfelt

The curtailed arrangement of the score used by the choir last night is almost a desecration of the original and it is hoped that younger students who heard this music for the first time will study the score attentively or go to Bethlehem some May to hear what marvelous music has been omitted. The chorales were mostly included but the grandest choruses and certainly some of the most stunning solo parts are entirely lost.

That was why the performance become somewhat wearisome last night. The choir itself sang beautifully, especially attaining excellent tone during the chorales.

Arthur Kraft sang the lines of the evangelist exceedingly well. Others have imbued this part with more dramatic nuance but I have never before heard it sung with such genuine pathos and reverence. Vocally it was quite comforting. Louise Lerch, another recruit from Bethlehem soloists, once again displayed her secure musicianship; her phrasing of the solo "Blute nur!" was masterful.

Alta Schultz had the contralto part, a voice whose natural quality seems made for the music. Frank Cuthbert sang the words of Jesus, but to me this voice lacks distinction. Chester Sterling had several smaller parts and sang them all creditably.

Earl Mitchell had duties in plenty at the organ and acquitted himself in his usual capable style.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Many Film Stars Formerly Vaudeville Players

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, April 18.—Hello! Vaudeville may be gone, but it's far from forgotten. Screen favorites by the dozens got their start in vaudeville. Let us, then, just for fun today—and to be slightly different—steer away from the usual chatter for a while . . .

Charles B. Middleton, who has spent his entire life to date in the entertainment field, was in vaudeville 24 years. He has old programs from the Palace, from Hammerstein's, from Keith's, from theaters all over the world. There you'll find the names of many of Hollywood's great.

Clancing down his "program lane" we hear the echoes of yesterday . . . Here's the first—Victor McLaglen was a living statue, doing four shows in Brooklyn. Between acts he rubbed off the white paint, hurried over to New York and knocked out Sailor White. Vic was also somewhat of a boxer . . . Jack Oakie worked with Lulu McConnell and Grant Simpson . . . Joe E. Brown did a bouncing aerial act, Louise Dresser sang ballads, Fred Niblo was a monologue artist, Larry Ceballos was part of the "Phantom Dancers" act with his mother and sister.

Polly Moran had a singing monologue, and part of her routine was an imitation of "Adenoid Actresses in Pictures." W. C. Fields was doing his tramp juggling act, Jesse Lasky and his sister did a musical act, Hugh Herbert, of Scotch descent, was a leading Hebrew comedian, Charley Bickford and his wife were teamed together, Eddie Cantor juggled plates in black-face.

And there are many more . . . Middleton worked on bills with them all. Five years ago he came to Hollywood. He bought a piece of property in Venice, and later two oil wells were struck there. But he keeps right on working, despite the royalties from the black gold . . . It's now 40 years for Middleton in show business . . .

Stuart Erwin and Charlie Butterworth went fishing last week and in lieu of fish brought back the newest fisherman story—

First Fisherman—This is a swell spot; we've caught over 40 fish. You'd better mark it so we can come back tomorrow.

Second Fisherman—"Okay!" and he puts an "x" on the bottom of the boat with a piece of chalk.

F. F.—You dummy! That won't do any good!

S. F.—Why?

F. F.—We may not get the same boat tomorrow!

Wanderings around Hollywood . . . Since signing with Universal, Lowell Sherman has received about $90,000 (whew) in salary, but still hasn't directed a picture. During his grand lay-off period, the studio publicity department has endeavored to get photos of Mr. Sherman, but because his voice is bad he has refused to pose. Now is than an EXCUSE, or is that an excuse? . . . Steve Ames and Raquel Torres have taken out their marriage intentions—and by the time you read this, they may be honeymooning . . .

Because he had kept them working too many hours without sufficient rest, the chorus cuties of "Murder at the Vanities" mobbed Director Mitchell Leison when he called "finish!" and in the excitement of the wrestling match, Mitch hauled off and tapped a couple for the gals.

The following day he apologized most profusely and even sent orchids to the young ladies.

Some months ago, the ladies of the ensemble pulled a similar stunt on Eddie Sutherland. But he enjoyed it, and ended up by taking his mob to a speakeasy for a night of it.

The Racket Supreme

FOR SOME years now I have been publishing racket stories of an unusual nature. This one, I think, tops them all. It has been worked with great success for some time by one of America's smoothest couples in the racket profession. And in spite of this story, they will probably go on indefinitely.

To simplify the yarn, we will call our racketeering couple Mr. and Mrs. Jones. Jones is a tall, suave gentleman with a smile to make babies coo. His wife is in her early thirties and is decidedly attractive.

When they set out to clip a sucker, Mr. and Mrs. Jones always choose a town of slightly less than average size, located preferably in the Middle West. They must have a spot where the people know each other, but not too well.

In due time, with everything in readiness, Mr. and Mrs. Jones step from the train at—let us say—the town of Meadville. They proceed at once to the leading hotel of the city, engage the best suite in the house and settle down for what appears to be a lengthy stay.

As soon as convenient, Mr. Jones meets the hotel manager and talks in his most charming manner. He mentions money names in an offhand way and, while he doesn't say too much, he hints that if he likes Meadville well enough he may invest in the town and open a large business there. Nothing definite, you understand. Just vague remarks by a suave conversationalist.

For three or four days, Mr. and Mrs. Jones do very little. They make themselves generally agreeable and they pay for everything in cash—which is a fine way to be agreeable. But they have asked many seemingly innocent questions. And by this time, they have hit upon the man they are going to fleece.

He is, in every case, a jeweler. Mr. Jones never sees the jeweler. That is strictly Mrs. Jones' business, and it is up to her to handle herself capably. She has yet to fail.

She establishes herself, first of all, by buying several small articles from the jeweler in question. She looks at some high-priced stuff, sighs and goes out. The next day she is back again for some additional small purchases. Her charm and apparent wealth have the jeweler anxious for a real sale.

One more visit, and the victim is ready for the racket. It's 10 to 1 he has already called the hotel, the name of which Mrs. Jones has obligingly supplied, and conversed with the manager about his new customer.

Meanwhile, Mr. Jones has been carrying out his portion of the entertainment. Twice he has been to see the town's leading banker—and twice he has charmed that worthy gentleman with his expert conversation.

He rattles off banking names and he speaks of money with the utmost assurance. He urges the banker to secrecy, and again drops a few hints as to his intentions about settling in Meadville. Before Jones is through the banker is convinced that this new client will some day lead him to the secretaryship of the Treasury.

Now comes the payoff—and it is strictly a matter of timing. At an appointed hour during an afternoon, Mr. Jones again visits his banker friend for a further discussion of a banking alliance. And at precisely the same moment, Mrs. Jones is picking out jewelry to the tune of some $40,000.

Follow the timing closely now. It's a beautiful piece of work. In the banker's office, at a precise moment, Mr. Jones reaches for the phone and asks if he may call his wife. The banker, of course, tells him to go ahead.

Whereupon the crook calls a dummy number and pretends that he is talking to someone.

"Mrs. Jones, please. What? Well, I'm anxious to speak to her. This is Mr. Jones. Tell her to call me back in Banker P——'s office immediately. I'll be waiting."

Over in the jeweler's office, Mrs. Jones is seemingly indignant. The jeweler wants to make the sale, of course, but how can he give her $40,000 in jewelry on approval? Not that he doesn't trust her. Such a thing is furthest from his mind. But—well, it's $40,000.

"Why," cries Mrs. Jones excitedly, "I can go into any store on Fifth avenue, and they would be glad to give me anything I want. And here, in a Meadville jewelry store, I'm not good for $40,000 until my husband sees what I've bought. I have never been so insulted in my life!"

The jeweler is frantic. He is tempted to let her have the stuff, and he dreads losing this tremendous sale. He hesitates. If she only had someone who would vouch for her. If——

"Almost anyone will vouch for me," storms Mrs. Jones. "But if you must have something definite, how about Banker P——? Is he good enough for you?"

Banker P——! The biggest banker in town! The jeweler's eyes glitter. If Banker P—— will vouch for this woman, he can turn over his entire store to her without the slightest hesitation. He reaches for the phone and calls Banker P——.

On the banker's desk, the phone rings. Mr. Jones's hand shoots out.

"That must be my wife calling back," he smiles. "I'll take it."

He holds the phone close to him. The timing has worked perfectly. The jeweler is on the other end. He wants to know from Banker P——, to whom he, of course thinks he is talking, if this Mrs. Jones is good for $40,000. Mr. Jones answers in short remarks.

"Why, certainly. Anything at all. Absolutely perfect. Take my word for it. All right, Goodby."

He hangs up. The jeweler, perfectly satisfied, gives Mrs. Jones the $40,000 in gems on approval. And an hour later, both Mr. and Mrs. Jones have left Meadville forever.

Not bad, eh? . . .

EX-KLAN CHIEF FREED OF LIENS

Judgments against Sam D. Rich, former King Kleagle of the Ku Klux Klan of Pennsylvania in Federal Court, aggregating $199,768.99 and entered as tax liens for the years 1922 to 1925, inclusive, yesterday were marked satisfied on the dockets of the clerk of court.

The judgments were on seven liens for amounts ranging from $975.15 to $42,450.53, entered March 31, 1927; May 14, 1927, and January 16, 1932. The orders for the discharge of the judgments, filed by Collector of Internal Revenue David L. Lawrence, do not disclose whether they were dropped through full settlement, compromise or abatement.

The collector's orders show that the judgments were satisfied before the collector of internal revenue in Louisville, Ky., where Rich now makes his home. Two liens for 1923 were for $84,412.46; for 1924 totaled $64,112.03; two for 1925 were for $60,269.35 and $975.15 for 1922.

FUND TO 'SELL' CITY DELAYED

A resolution providing for an appropriation for the Pittsburgh Industrial Development Commission has been held over in Finance Committee of Council for further information on possibilities of bringing new industries to Pittsburgh.

Council approved, however, a transfer of funds which makes $30,000 available to the commission. Private subscriptions are to be sought to create a fund of $100,000 to encourage specialized industries using steel as raw material to locate in this area.

The commission was active in the same sort of work about 1914 when it received financial aid from the city.

BLAME NEGLECT IN FATAL CRASH

ELYRIA, O., April 18.—(AP.)—Herbert Baker, superintendent of motor transportation for the Ohio Utilities Commission, said yesterday two safety rules were violated in the collision of a bus and truck, which killed six persons and injured 15 Sunday.

Baker said eye-witnesses' testimony indicated that the truck parked on the highway bore no lights on its rear end, and that lanterns were not placed 100 yards from the front and rear of the truck as required by commission regulations.

Herbert Schaeffer, truck driver, who denied his vehicle was parked at the scene until after the crash, pleaded not guilty to manslaughter charges and waived examination. He was held for the grand jury under $1,000 bond.

The grand jury will meet in special session tomorrow and will investigate the manslaughter charge against William Daniels, driver of the Nevins bus, which figured in the accident. He pleaded not guilty.

Johnstown Swindler Sentenced to Jail

John Siciliano, of Johnstown, convicted in Federal Court last December of attempting to defraud the government of $225 by a fake sale of morphine to a government narcotic informant, yesterday was sentenced by Judge R. M. Gibson to serve three months in the Cambria County Jail. John Roberto, of Altoona, a co-defendant, is serving a six-month jail term.

Read the remarkable love letters of a genius to his boyhood sweetheart

The LOVE LETTERS of CHARLES DICKENS

To Maria Beadnell

The publication of this series of hitherto unrevealed letters written by Charles Dickens to Maria Beadnell, whom he had loved and lost but found again after twenty years, is of profound importance to every admirer of the works of this great novelist.

Jilted by Maria Beadnell in his youth, given by her only misery and regret in his early manhood, the loss of her love drove Dickens to the fierce labors which made him the greatest novelist of his age and one of the greatest of all time.

To her coquetry—to her throwing over of the impecunious young "Shorthand Reporter," the world perhaps is deeply indebted to Maria Beadnell for being partly responsible for the success of one of the outstanding literary geniuses of modern times.

These letters reveal an intimate and personal side of Dickens not touched on in any of his biographies. They throw light on a romantic interlude of Dickens the man as well as Dickens the novelist.

Another interesting afternoon broadcast, heard over WCAE at 2:30, and again at 4 o'clock, is the christening and trial run of a new streamlined railroad train, "The Zephyr," with Graham McNamee as official observer.

* * *

Dorothy Compton, one of the "Three Little Pig" voices in Walt Disney's movie cartoon, is heard over WJAS at 10 p. m., as guest of Dick Powell and Ted Fiorito's orchestra.

Soprano

Marian Young, soprano, has joined the WCAE artists and will be heard on Friday evening, April 20, with the WCAE String Ensemble.

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

The Weston Sisters, leading trio harmony experts, fill a new schedule spot on WJAS tonight, being billed for 8 to 8:15.

Two good bets — Jimmy Bridges' music at 6:15 and Paul Gannon's songs at 6:45.

Eddie Peyton plays a medley of novelty tunes as a feature of his 11:30 Frivolities.

Fred Waring Summons Police

By AIRCASTER

If, by any chance, the Broadway racketeers are cooking up criminal jobs in the locality of the Columbia playhouse for the evening of April 26, I should like to warn them to skip it.

The fact is that the playhouse, inside and out, will be snowed under by policemen and detectives, and in one of the reserved orchestra seats will be Police Commissioner O'Ryan in person.

He will be the guest of Fred Waring, and will take part in the broadcast, during which there will be an actual demonstration of the radio patrol system in Gotham.

Mr. O'Ryan, for instance, will get upon the stage, send in a call to police headquarters and report a theoretical (I hope) disturbance in the theater.

The radio audience will hear headquarters answer. Then it will thrill to the summoning by short waves, of radio patrol cars, the immediate mobilization, and a few minutes later, the entry of squadrons of policemen inside the playhouse, while others surround the building.

CBS GOES WEST

The wireless studios have beckoned Mae West many times, but the sveldt siren hasn't been able for some reason or other, seriously, to contemplate a radio career.

Something usually happens to interfere with her proposed radio performances. But at last, if Mae feels so inclined, she's to have her night this Saturday, when CBS-WJAS stages a special show for Admiral Byrd's polarized party.

Mae is among a number of guests invited to participate.

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

No matter how busy the President of the United States may be, he always has a moment for his little friends and well-wishers.

Eleanor Freedman, of Irwin avenue, North Side, is one of Pittsburgh's happiest little girls today, because the President, not by his secretary, but personally, answered her letter and signed it "Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Here is what the letter said:

"My dear Eleanor:

"It was very nice of you to send me that nice letter and a copy of your poem. I thank you for them and send my best wishes.

"Very sincerely,

"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

* * *

If there is any other boy or girl in Pittsburgh who has had an interesting experience like Eleanor's, I wish he or she would write to me.

* * *

James Strang, North Braddock —For the same reason given in my last letter I will not be able to comply with your request. Don't give up. We'll get together yet.

* * *

C. W. Hays has a Bible that antedates the one owned by E. C. Nolt, of Warren. Mr. Hays, who lives in the West End, says that his German Bible is from 1767 and is in good condition.

* * *

Mrs. Hunker, Washington—The man you speak of is M. A. Nernberg. His office is in the Grant Building.

* * *

D. Rectenwald, Mt. Oliver—Your poem shows that you have talent. Ask your teacher to let you read it to other seventh grade pupils.

Rushmore Talk On Air Tomorrow

New entrants in the Mount Rushmore National Memorial inscription competition will share in helpful assistance tomorrow with the participants who have been studying their history for weeks if they listen for two radio programs.

The first of a series of three special broadcasts will be presented at 5:45 p. m. tomorrow afternoon from Station WCAE. This series has been arranged for the thousands of participants in the tri-state district by the Sun-Telegraph which, with associated Hearst newspapers, is conducting the nationwide competition. The contest, open to every man and woman, is in search of a 600-word text that will form the basis of the final inscription on the national monument being carved in South Dakota.

The important part of the writing of the text is that it must be based on nine specific episodes of history. The special broadcast series will offer prominent Pittsburgh educators. Dr. John W. Oliver, head of the history department, University of Pittsburgh, will be tomorrow's speaker. Dr. Oliver will discuss three of the nine episodes. The six additional episodes will be discussed on succeeding Thursdays.

The "Voice of America" program broadcast each Thursday night over the Columbia network brings to listeners on Station WJAS a dramatization of the episodes at 8:30 o'clock tonight. The sponsors, Underwood-Elliott-Fisher, will offer special awards.

Remember that a special free folder offering all details is available at the Sun-Telegraph downtown office, Fifth avenue and Market street. If a stamped, self-addressed envelope is mailed to the Pittsburgh Rushmore Editor, care Sun-Telegraph, the folder will be sent by mail.

Everyone Should Drink Hot Water in the Morning

Wash away all the stomach, liver and bowel poisons before breakfast

To feel your best day in and day out, to feel clean inside; no sour bile to coat your tongue and sicken your breath or dull your head; no constipation, bilious attacks, sick headache, colds, rheumatism or gassy, acid stomach, you must bathe on the inside like you bathe outside. This is vastly more important, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do, says a well-known physician.

To keep these poisons and toxins well flushed from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, drink before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from your pharmacist. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except a sourish tang which is not unpleasant. Drink phosphated hot water every morning to rid your system of these vile poisons and toxins; also to prevent their formation.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became saturated with an accumulation of body poisons, begin this treatment and above all keep it up! As soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and purifying, so limestone phosphate and hot water before breakfast, act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

NEW WAR PERIL FACES NATION, D. A. R. TOLD

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(AP)—The Daughters of the American Revolution, assembled in annual Congress, heard an educator assert today that America has "passed from the post-war era to a new pre-war era."

Dr. Thomas Healy, assistant dean of Georgetown University's Foreign Service School, made this statement in an address hitting repeatedly at Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, as a poor prophet on war.

He quoted Dr. Butler as saying four months after the World War started that there was no sanity in "useless armaments against nobody," and as saying more recently that some "have not heard Napoleon and Bismark are dead." Dr. Healy said.

"The ignorance of the American people is not so abysmal they are not aware of the fact Napoleon and Bismark have been replaced by modern and possibly more dangerous counterparts in Hitler, Stalin and a host of other military dictators who at this moment are ruling a large portion of the world. Unlike Napoleon and Bismark, the Nazism of Hitler and Communism of Stalin have reached over into the very heart of America in an attempt to undermine the structure of our government."

He pronounced the Far Eastern situation "at least as dangerous as the European situation," with Russia and Japan both "feverishly preparing for war," and almost ready to "fly at each other's throats."

D. A. R. to Sponsor Patriotic Pilgrimage

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(AP)—The Daughters of the American Revolution voted today to bring a school girl from each of the 48 states to Washington next spring on a patriotic pilgrimage.

Candidates will be selected on a good citizenship basis first. But final selections will be by lot.

The Daughters also adopted resolutions which would make obligatory the teaching of American history and civil government in the schools, to demand a modern American Merchant Marine; and to urge adequate appropriations for C. M. T. C. and R. O. T. C. camps.

PETITION AGAINST PARTICIPATION In the LEAGUE of NATIONS and World Court

We petition our Federal Government to keep our United States "free from foreign entanglements," as the Father of Our Country wisely enjoined.

We urge our Congress at Washington to keep our government from meddling in foreign affairs, and to keep foreign nations from meddling in our American affairs.

As loyal American citizens, we ask our loyal representatives to keep our country out of foreign conflicts and complications and to keep foreign conflicts and complications out of our country.

FRANCE SENDS ARMS THREAT TO BRITAIN

PARIS, April 18.—(AP)—France threatens in a note to Great Britain to scrap all current disarmament negotiations unless she is given something equivalent to the military alliance in the old entente cordiale, it was revealed today.

The threat is expressed in a memorandum drafted by Premier Gaston Doumergue and Foreign Minister Louis Barthou.

It supplements a previous note in which France expressed a desire for a new arms "limitation conference," on the thesis that present negotiations have failed.

The note frankly says it is "useless" to argue about conditions until the full truth of Chancellor Adolf Hitler's rearmament program in Germany is determined.

Germany's "own revelations" of rearming, the note says, make it impossible to continue discussions of an arms convention based on the idea of German moderation in rearmament.

Unemployed Protest Drug Dispensaries

Air Dictionary for Junior Birdmen to Begin In Sun-Telegraph on Monday

By J. JAMES MOORE
Pittsburgh Wing Commander.

Greetings, boys and girls. I can't call you all members yet because I am sure that there are thousands of you who have not yet affiliated yourselves with our new nation-wide organization of Junior Birdmen. Your application for membership may be in the mails right now, or perhaps you are just putting off until tomorrow what you should do today. But at any rate, you should become a member of this inspiring organization right away.

If you are from 10 to 21 years of age, inclusive, you are eligible for membership, so take advantage now of the opportunity to become an early member. All you have to do is fill out the coupon below, inclose a 10-cent piece for your wings and membership card, and send it off to the Junior Birdmen, care of this newspaper. From fledgling to ace, there will be amusement and instruction, information and fun for all!

AIR DICTIONARY TO BEGIN MONDAY

Here is good news! On Monday we will start our first regular column feature, an aviation dictionary. This will be the most complete set of definitions of aeronautical words, terms, phrases ever published. Beginning on Monday in this column, they will be published in series form every Monday, Wednesday and Friday thereafter. Ten definitions will be published on each of these days and you will all want to cut them out and keep them in your scrap book. They will be invaluable to you all during your membership in this organization, for you will come across these words and phrases in both our model building activities and aeronautical features. Of course we might publish them in book form when we have completed the series, but that will not be for many months. More than 500 definitions will be included.

Be sure that you start saving this series right from the start for it will be difficult for you to obtain back copies, if at all. Let's start our galaxy of features off with a whirlwind take-off and then watch for the second interesting feature that follows soon after—actual photographs to be published in our Junior Birdmen column of all those fine Army Air Corps insignias you find on the fuselages of Uncle Sam's Army aircraft. And by the way, there's a word might "stump" some of you right from the start. Fuselage! It is a good example of the types of words and phrases that will be defined for you beginning Monday in our air dictionary series.

The fuselage of an aircraft is the body or cabin of the plane, usually extending from the propeller clear back to the rudder or tail unit. It is often referred to as the nacelle.

So watch, too, for the interesting series of photographs and the many other fine features that will be published for you from time to time, such as the daily aviation calendar which will soon be inaugurated, articles on how to fly by famous fliers, short stories and thrilling air adventures of real life, instructions on model plane building and a "plane-load" or just the sort of aviation items you have always longed to have.

If any of you Junior Birdmen should have any special features which you might want to suggest, well send them right in to me and I will forward them to national headquarters where the feature, if of sufficient interest to all our members, will be put into shape and published not only in our own daily column, but the daily columns of all the Hearst newspapers which are sponsoring local Junior Birdmen wings in cities all over the country!

Questions and Answers

Actually, our first feature is going to start tomorrow. Yet one can hardly call it a feature of the Junior Birdmen column for it will be different in each wing city and therefore is a local item. It will be our question and answer box. In each city, of course, the question and answer box will contain answers to problems sent in by their own wing members. I already have a host of questions sent in by members and so we are ready to start ours in tomorrow's column. Perhaps the question you sent in will be one of the first to be answered. If not, just keep watching this column until it is.

But watch for the other fellow's answers, too, for they might help you in many ways, or answer some question that has been in your mind, too. And then, again, when more than one boy or girl sends in the same questions it will only be answered under the name of the first member who sent it in, so watch for your answer appearing under someone else's name as well.

The activities and features of the junior birdmen are only for members of the organization so, naturally, if you are not a member, it will be impossible for me to answer your question in our column. You see our daily meeting space is somewhat limited and as it is there will be times when we will have to hold questions for several days. Furthermore, no questions will be answered by mail, so don't enclose a stamped envelope for that purpose. All questions for members will be answered right in our daily column whether they are questions about the Junior Birdmen and its activities, junior aviation, model building, aerodynamics, navigation, technical aviation questions or any other problems relative to aeronautics.

Watch for the first set tomorrow in this column. And send in any questions you may have to ask. I will certainly be glad to answer them for you.

Some More Good News

Since no memberships have as yet been mailed out to applicants you really don't know whether you are a member or not, as yet. But every boy and girl within our age limits can consider themselves a member if their application has been properly forwarded to our local wing headquarters. So, in that capacity, you can send your queries right along and I assure you that I will answer them for you, even, at the start, without looking up our records to see if your application has been received.

And here is more good news. I have a most important announcement regarding memberships for tomorrow's column. Can you guess what it is? I'll bet you can. But let's wait. See if you are right. Watch for tomorrow's column right in this same spot and see for yourself.

And now, time and space are up so—my usual Happy Landings!

ARMY AIR CORPS CHIEF LAUDS BIRDMEN

By MAJ. GEN. BENJAMIN D. FOULOIS,
Chief U. S. Army Air Corps.
Written Expressly for the Hearst Newspapers.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—While the airplane, born in the United States some 30 years ago, has been developed greatly during this period, and is commonly used in nearly every country, a rather small percentage of our citizens have actually flown, and only a comparatively few can pilot aircraft.

Mr. William Randolph Hearst is now organizing "The Junior Birdmen of America," which I understand is similar in conception to the Boy Scouts of America. Boys and girls may become members. It is only necessary that they be keenly interested in aviation.

The members, organized into "Flight Squadrons" in communities throughout our country will have a chance to learn about aviation, and to appreciate the opportunities which aviation gives in speeding up the transportation of persons and articles through day and night flying over a network of airways.

Aviation now makes up one of the larger phases of our peacetime existence, and in case of national emergency, it will contribute even a greater portion of the effort to maintain our national integrity.

For both peacetime prosperity and for maintaining our national existence, I heartily indorse such a scheme as this, one which has the definite object not only of making the youth of our land air-minded, but one which will give them a definite opportunity to receive accurate aviation information.

G. O. P. County Chairman Favors W. A. Schnader

By MARK SHIELDS

Attorney General William A. Schnader, candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, arrives in Pittsburgh tomorrow to find himself approved by William H. Coleman, Republican county chairman, as the candidate best fitted to make a fight against a Democratic opponent next November.

Mr. Shields

Mr. Coleman, in approving the Attorney General, did not make what could with exactness be called an indorsement, but he is the first political leader of note in the county to give aid and comfort to the cause of Mr. Schnader, and it may be significant.

Yesterday Mr. Coleman said:

"There are many candidates in the field for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, but among them all I believe that Attorney General Schnader best fits the type of man who will be needed in the general election campaign to win. I believe the Republican party would be advancing its interests if the majority of its members got behind him in the May primary.

"And I don't mind being quoted to that effect."

In his statement Mr. Coleman was acting in an individual capacity and not as titular head of the party, but that does not detract from the importance of his attitude, especially as he comes from McKeesport, where there always has been an atmosphere of independence in state campaigns.

Patterson Will Open Headquarters Monday

Judge Marion D. Patterson, of Blair County, another candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, will open headquarters Monday in the Pittsburgher Hotel. Judge Patterson has reserved the entire fifth floor of the Diamond Street Inn, an indication that he intends to carry on an active campaign in this neighborhood. Judge Patterson is the first of the three or four candidates with whom the Republican organization has flirted to establish himself in this county.

Yesterday the Blair County jurist visited Philadelphia, returning in the evening to address a meeting in Altoona, and his determination to open up here is interpreted as evidence that he received some encouragement from the eastern Republican group, whatever that assistance is worth this year.

He arrives to find the candidacy of Lieut. Gov. Edward C. Shannon in full swing, with a least five county officials for him, and the Schnader candidacy showing signs of life, though as active evidence it still has only the unofficial approval of Mr. Coleman and the indorsement of a committee of lawyers who, while estimable gentlemen, will not advance the candidacy of the attorney general with the common people.

Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of the Governor, who is a candidate for the Republican senatorial nomination, arrived in Pittsburgh today to confer with County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern. The visit of the Governor's lady is designed to tie the chairman of the County Board into Mr. Pinchot's candidacy. While Col. McGovern has not recently been satisfied with all of the Pinchot motions in this vicinity, revolving as they have about Judge Ralph H. Smith, there is little doubt but what he will be energetically in the Pinchot camp because of tradition and past loyalties.

* * *

McGovern Not Warm To Schnader Ambition

However, if there is any effort by Mrs. Pinchot to influence the County Commissioner toward Attorney General Schnader for the gubernatorial nomination she will not have much luck. Perhaps nothing of that nature is in mind, for the Governor has been careful to keep himself clear of entanglement. However, the presence of his former secretary and present member of the Public Service Commission, P. S. Stahlnecker, in the Schnader camp, must presuppose at least an administration leaning toward Mr. Schnader.

But Col. McGovern will have none of him, and makes no bones about expressing himself.

John B. Sweeney, of McKeesport, evidently is to be the candidate for Democratic county chairman of the Copeland group arrayed against David L. Lawrence, incumbent. The candidates for the party post in addition to Sweeney are F. X. McCulloch, Van A. Barrickman, James Price and Lawrence. C. Gregg Llewellyn, energetic in behalf of Judge Copeland against George Earle, the Lawrence candidate for the gubernatorial nomination, withdrew yesterday with intimations that he would be for Sweeney.

The anti vote will be divided between Sweeney and McCulloch, who has been organizing Jefferson clubs, the late Mr. Jefferson being the forgotten man of Democratic politics.

Mr. Lawrence says Mr. Sweeney is a registered Republican. The anti-Lawrence crowd says Mr. Earle has been identified with the same party, so there is prospect of a fine fight among the Democrats.

And it will extend to the vice chairmanship, where Mrs. J. Wood Clark is being fought by Mrs. Annette T. Johnson, of the North Side, a candidate for nomination to the Senate as well. Mrs. Clark, whose husband is clerk of the federal court, recently got a city job, but she sees no reason to resign her party post, even though Mayor William N. McNair has said it was incompatible for party officers to work for the city—and has forced the resignation of all others holding the dual positions.

GRANDMOTHER CARRIES BABY TO SAFETY

Mother in Hospital Too Ill to Be Told Of Narrow Escapes

A mother lies ill in Magee Hospital today, not knowing that three of her nine children narrowly escaped a fire which burned out their second floor apartment-home at 2534 Fifth avenue late yesterday.

She is Mrs. Edward McConnell. Doctors say she is too ill to be told.

FATHER ON JOB HUNT

Mrs. Mary Connelly, 73, the children's grandmother, had arrived home from her work shortly before the fire broke out in the Exterminating Service Company on the floor below. At the first alarm, she carried the baby, Peggy Lorraine, 1 year old, and shepherded Lois, 5, and Dorothy, 8, to the street.

The other children were all playing out of doors at the time. The father, an unemployed truck driver, was out looking for work.

A family occupying the third floor, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Killeen and their daughter, Sally, 2, were not at home when the fire started. Killeen, an RWD employe, was at work; Mrs. Killeen was doing her washing at the Soho Bath House.

CANARY ONLY CASUALTY

A canary belonging to Mrs. Killeen was the only casualty. Firemen found him keeled over in his cage. The Killeen dog, "Whitey," escaped safely.

Deputy Chief's Aide August Schmidt and Police Lieutenant Bert Jacks suffered minor burns and cuts.

Deputy Chief Daniel Jones estimated the damage at $10,000. Milton L. Amshel, president of the Exterminating Service Company, said that $15,000 worth of chemicals, ordered by five and ten cent stores, were destroyed. He estimated his loss at $25,0000.

WOMEN'S PEACE LEAGUE HEARS SENATOR NYE

State Conference Continues With Lunch, Reception

Appointment of a Senate committee to investigate munitions makers is set for today, Senator Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota, co-author with Senator Arthur Vandenberg, of Michigan, of the resolution creating the committee, said here last night.

Addressing the state conference of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom at the Hotel Schenley, Nye hinted that the investigation may determine if the time is ripe for the federal government to make munition-making a government monopoly.

Charging that the munitions "trust" is encouraging a "preparedness" armaments race, Nye declared that adequate national defense, including an air force, could be obtained to a fraction of the present cost.

Munitions makers, Nye said, play one country against another, build up war fear and suspicion by propaganda, and sell munitions to all alike. In a war with Japan, he said, American-made shot and shell would mow down American troops.

Nye also charged that President Roosevelt, in a magazine article written several years ago, said that a naval war with Japan would come to nothing. He criticized Roosevelt for his failure to veto the Vinson billion dollar naval bill.

Other speakers last night included the Rev. Dr. Bernard C. Clausen, pastor of the First Baptist Church, and Mrs. George Bray, local chairman.

The conference continues today with a noon luncheon for the college group and an officers' reception this afternoon.

'Most Collegiate'

MISS HELEN WALKER

STUDENTS PICK HANDSOME MAN

Four Pittsburgh district students at Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa., today had been selected for distinctive honors in a poll conducted by the student newspaper.

For the title of "Most Handsome Man," William Woodward was selected. He resides at 1508 Woodward avenue, Monessen.

Helen Walker, daughter of Dr. Granville H. Walker, of 532 Lincoln avenue, Mr. Unverzagt Bellevue, was voted the most collegiate woman; Grace Ralston, daughter of John M. Ralston, of 1317 Singer place, Wilkinsburg; the wittiest and best woman athlete, and William Unverzagt, son of W. C. Unverzagt, of 7214 Winterspoon street, as most likely to succeed.

Melvin Meadowcroft, of Trafford, was awarded honors as the most popular man and best dancer. Martha Bloom, of Monessen, was named the best co-ed dancer.

SUPER-HIGHWAY ACROSS U. S. PROPOSED

Trade Group Here Asks PWA to Build Road Costing 3 Billion

Envisioning an engineer's idea of what the "super-highway" of the future should be, the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce has placed plans for such a transcontinental route with the Federal Public Works Administration, it was made known today.

The proposed high-speed, nonstop thoroughfare, with no intersecting lanes and ingress and egress by ramps only, would avoid congested cities in its stretch across the country and would be 90 feet in width, with different lanes for varied speed.

Advocates of the proposal estimated that the approximate cost of the 3,000-mile roadway would be between $300,000,000 and $400,000,000, and, under the plan submitted to Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes, PWA administrator, the cost would be borne by the government.

Tolls and other mileage charges would make the project self-liquidating and self-sustaining, its proponents declare.

States traversed under the preliminary suggestion would be New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas or Nebraska, Colorado or Wyoming, Utah, Nevada and California.

COUNTY DRUNKS GET JOBS BACK

If county employes must drink, then they ought to be careful where they drink, Commissioner C. C. McGovern commented yesterday when reinstatement of several men suspended for being drunk was ordered by the Commissioner.

But he facetiously urged Ray Sprigle, Director of Supplies:

"From the looks of things, there's been a lot of suspensions lately from drinking. You'd better investigate where they're drinking and recommend a good place for them. Maybe somebody's pulling the gun an them and they're drinking bum stuff."

Answered Sprigle:

"No, Commissioner. It's the bonus. They get their money from the bonus, and good night. But they're good men."

M'CREADY FUND RULING FOUGHT

Exceptions were filed yesterday by counsel for Harrison R. McCready, playboy, to the recent decision of Judge Frank P. Patterson, who refused to disturb a $150,000 trust fund set up in 1930 for the benefit of McCready's first wife, now Margaret L. Welfer, and their daughter, Margaret.

Attorneys Allen H. Kerr, C. J. Margiotti and John E. Evans, Sr., took issue with the court's ruling that it was "of the opinion that the plaintiff executed the trust agreement in full possession of his mental faculties, without duress, and it is a solemn obligation now binding upon him."

McCready's attorneys sought at the trial to prove him incapable of making such an agreement, and produced medical specialists as witnesses. They maintain the court erred in not taking into consideration that McCready was deprived of his reason and understanding because of his habitual drinking.

Attention also was to the testimony of Dr. C. C. Wholey, specialist, who in 1929 advised Mrs. McCready that the playboy was mentally defective and should have a guardian.

EDUCATOR HITS SCHOOL SLASH

Revenue raised mainly by a tax on real estate is a weak financial foundation for a public school system. This was the assertion yesterday of Dr. John K. Norton, professor of education, Columbia University, who addressed representatives of civic organizations at the Board of Education yesterday.

He advocated a system of state taxation, designed to levy taxes upon those able to pay.

School economies, he charged, will cause millions of children to suffer mental and physical handicaps.

Scoring those favoring lower school stands, he said:

"It seems that education is not safe in the hands of a generation that has not had to fight for free public schools."

Tom Henry Sees McNair 'Crazy As I Am'

With Magistrate J. W. McGowan as an audience, Tom Henry, well known in police circles, today will continue a speech started yesterday in the office of Mayor William N. McNair.

Said he:

"Down with the Mayor. He is as crazy as I am, and everyone should know—"

Thus began and ended the speech. Patrolman Martin Flaherty hustled Henry from the Mayor's office to Central Police Station, Henry telling the officer:

"Now, officer, you know I was only fooling."

COUNTY SCORED IN AUTO DEATHS

Two signboards to go up along state highway route 28, between West New Kensington and Tarentum, aroused the County Commissioners yesterday.

The signboards, to be sponsored by the Tarentum Kiwanis Club, would contain, the club chairman, George E. Bock, wrote, this legend:

"You are now entering the Highway of Death. State and County officials pass the buck. 110 killed—480 injured—2,775 accidents since 1925. Can we support officials who permit this?"

Commissioner C. M. Barr suggested that Charles Howe, Tarentum editor, member of the County Planning Commission, be called in and told the circumstances. The road should be widened or sidewalks built, it was stated.

Commissioner Barr explained that the route was the subject of several conferences, but that the Allegheny Railways demanded $300,000 to abandon their tracks on the roadway, and that the county hadn't the money to do this. Barr added:

"Time will wipe out those tracks. In a year or more buses will supplant them."

9,000 MORE GET RELIEF JOBS

Notices to report for work on Relief Works Division projects this week have been mailed to 9,000 workers in Allegheny County, Philip H. Lantz, deputy administrator, said today. This will bring the number now engaged on work here to 18,000.

Lantz said that he expected definite word by Thursday as to when the work may be extended to give employment to the county's quota of 23,000. Harrisburg officials assured him yesterday that they would take action this week.

PAY DELAY LAID TO RED TAPE

Red tape, especially in Washington, is the chief reason for delay in the pay checks of Relief Works Division office workers, Philip Lantz, deputy director in Federal Emergency Administration offices here, said today.

Checks due 20 men in the insurance department, covering expense accounts for car mileage, will reach them in about 10 days, according to Lantz.

The state owes some of these men, he said, more than $100. Fellow workers have been lending them money to carry on.

BUILDING JOB ABOLISHED

Mayor McNair today announced his approval of Safety Director Ralph E. Smith's recommendation for the elimination of the job of chief engineer in the Bureau of Building Inspection.

Final action rests with City Council.

The post now is held by Richard Neff, who is also city architect. The engineer's job pays $5,000 a year. There is no salary attached to the city architect's job.

The elimination of the chief engineer's post was originally suggested by various engineers, architects and building organizations, as there is little construction activity in Pittsburgh now.

COUNCIL GROUP O.K.'S NEW LOOP

A 60-day trial period for the looping of three East End car lines at Sixth street and Penn avenue instead of Ninth street and Penn avenue has been approved in Service and Surveys Committee of City Council.

The change was asked by a large committee of downtown and East Liberty businessmen. The lines affected are 86, 88 and 95.

Councilman William A. Magee, the lone vote against the plan, declared it will disrupt traffic. Council's approach to the Pittsburgh Railways Company with the request for the change will be made through the Traction Conference Board.

Teachers' Group Elects Officers

At the annual meeting of the Pittsburgh Teachers' Association in the Smithfield Street Methodist Episcopal Church yesterday Miss Esther M. Smith, of Peabody High School, was elected president; James H. Kroh, Miss Ada Van Kirk, Ada J. Johnson, vice presidents; C. H. Longenecker, recording secretary; Ida R. Wardley, financial secretary, and Florence A. Humphreys, treasurer.

Janey W. Woodside, Myrl I. Eakin, Bertha C. Mensch and Agnes M. Anderson were elected directors for two-year terms.

Closed Banks May Reveal Rare Coins, Arrows, Pottery

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Rep. McLeod is still trying to shovel a path to the closed banks. It's a big snow cleaning contract.

A couple of billion dollars makes a nice dessert if you like frozen dainties.

When the Representative gets the frost off the banking pumkin we will all have pie.

If we cannot open the banks as banks lets open 'em as museums.

They've been closed a couple of years now. By digging in we might find some rare coins, arrow heads and Indian pottery.

But open 'em and put 'em to use. Why waste a lot of good trans-continental bus terminals?

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

SANTA MONICA, Cal., April 18.

With the baseball season opened, and Washington headed for another pennant, boy, Congress better be good from now on. Baseball is in for a great year. It's our national game and will always be our national game.

We became a great nation under baseball, and commenced to flop the minute we started to take up a lot of other poor substitutes. Golf is played for conversational purposes, polo is played by us lazy ones because the horse does all the work, and we love to just go for the ride, but you have to play baseball for itself alone, for there is no clubhouse to talk it over in after the game. From an old first baseman of the Oolagah (Okla.) Giants. Yours, WILL.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

Although spring weather still is lost occasionally in a last bluster or so of winter, socialites are bethinking themselves of their summer homes, or of plans for the summer months. For although many of our smart set may stay in town the entire winter, nearly all of them spend a month at least at resorts in the summer.

News comes from picturesque Cape Cod that extensive alterations are being made on the summer residence there of the J. Frank Drakes. Their summer home is on Atlantic avenue in tree-shaded Hyannisport, overlooking Nantucket Sound.

At Wianno, near Osterville, Cape Cod, is the A. H. Chapin estate, which has been leased for the summer to the Frederic I. Mericks, of Morewood Heights.

When the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women observes Humane Week over the radio tomorrow, its guest speaker will be W. F. H. Wentzel, executive secretary of the Humane Society of Western Pennsylvania. Mr. Wentzel's subject will be "The Sting of Ingratitude."

Mrs. Hamilton Federation Speaker

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

"Take your head out of your neck, take your body out of your hips and stride along" was the originally-worded advice given by Mrs. Richard J. Hamilton, president of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, in her address to the district meeting in the William Penn Hotel yesterday. Mrs. Hamilton was speaking on "Roads," a talk in which she ingeniously likened club work to traveling, verbally drawing a "club map" of districts, counties and individual clubs, giving causes of accidents, telling that the "guide books" are the official publications of the clubs and that the various departments are the "roads" by which one travels through the club world.

According to schedule, chairmen of departments and divisions participated in the open forum led by the district president, Mrs. James Graham Chalfant, and in this were discussed the school of family relationships to be conducted in June by the home department, the art pilgrimage to Washington next month under fine arts, what the federation has done for better films, the citizenship department's contest, legislation, club institutes, public welfare, illiteracy, conservation (under the title of "Spreading the Gospel of the Backyard") and the ever-present junior age question.

The state board, by the way, has recommended that juniors, at the age of 30, organize or affiliate with an already formed evening department.

Opening the afternoon session there was music by the Allegheny County Choral, which is forging ahead under Mrs. Robert L. Finlayson's direction. Mrs. Florence McKelvie Clegg, of Youngstown, who lived in Geneva, Switzerland, for two years, told of the "forces at work for international understanding" and the Rev. Dr. Bernard C. Clausen, under the subject, "A Century of Progress," stressed "the art of anger" as a means of attaining one's objectives. Peace, for instance, might be obtained if enough people remained sufficiently angry about war.

The district, of course, indorsed the candidacy of Mrs. John M. Phillips for state president and the names of Mrs. Richard B. Perry and Mrs. H. D. Stark will go to the state nominating committee as candidates for the district presidency.

IN AMERICA, IF IT'S ORCHIDS, WE HAVE THEM

By PRUNELLA WOOD

A CONTINENTAL visitor remarked recently, as she lorgnetted the tea time crowd around her in a smart hotel: "You Americans would be known anywhere by your orchids." It seems that in Europe, according to this very orchidaceous lady, that the once rare bloom is still a mark of special occasions, and that no woman ever buys one for herself, or expects to get one from any man who is not frightfully smitten and all that sort of thing—really ready to advertise his plight, in fact.

* * *

WELL, "WE AMERICANS" have gone on the orchid path so blithely that we can don one in mid-morning with our tweed suits, and we have a science of numbers for them, besides. One orchid equals a dash of the festive spirit. Two orchids: Pretty, but nothing special. Three orchids: Now, there's a worldly, sophisticated expression! Five orchids: There goes a person of notable distinction. Bet she travels in the royal suite! And for interior effects, here is a tip: Perfect orchids will live in a vase for days and days, if treated well.

Tawny orchids, dainty as butterflies, decorate the severe line of this chartreuse gown.

Center, Athena orchids of pinkish hue, at the V neck of a formal gown.

Orchids on tweed? Why not? Tweed is no longer a country cousin, and it shows off a green orchid.

Through the Spyglass

Viewing the New

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply . . . THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

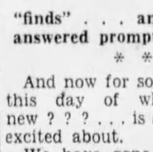
And now for some news that in this day of what's-new-what's new ? ? ? . . . is something to get excited about.

We have gone browsing about in one of the town's la-de-da nooks that lots of you know about . . . and many more, don't. And we have found that though their regular prices are uppity-up . . . they DO have some things which, today, (because they are the kind that refuse to keep anything more than a couple of minutes or so) are going to be sold at a CASH SALE for a mere bagatelle compared to their former prices.

Such as a silk and wool knitted frock with a cape that buttons all the way up one sleeve and shoulder and looks quite Garbo when on you! This being in a good daytime green . . . with all sorts of swank, Was $85 and is now $29.50. It's an 18.

And some other knits in greys or green tweedy effects . . . with starched Irish making collars and cuffs of a sophisticated prissiness that DOES things for you! Two pieces . . . formerly around $22.50 . . . and now $12.50. Sizes 14 to 20.

* * *



And anyone that has a manchild who they like to see done up in style will love the thoughts of these honest-to-goodness cashmere sweaters wearing their original made in Scotland labels . . . and selling for $5 now instead of $15 as they did! Why, it costs more than this just to land them over here now! Pullovers. Sizes 30, 32, 34.

Also . . . men please note . . . there are cardigans for you too, at $15 now instead of $24 . . . and pullovers at $11 instead of their original $19.50. Grand blues and greys, too. Direct importations from the land i' heather and all those scones you hear about!

* * *

Here's something new that left us agape! An adjustable dress . . . just out . . . and a godsend for stoutish souls or mothers-in-the-future. Such a smart-looking job too. A navy rib knit . . . with a clever banding of Elinor blue and chartreuse beginning at one shoulder and running diagonally. The whole business wraps around with a flourish and fastens with three clips in quite a Schaparelli manner. And sells for only $22.50. Which is something . . . and gets you away from that cut-and-dried version of the "surplice."

—DOROTHY RANDALL.

JUNIOR PATROL

Some candy is good for you, fellows!

It contains lots of energy and if you run around a lot and get plenty of exercise you should eat some candy or some other energy food.

But candy is like many other things. You can eat too much of it, just like you can eat too much pie or drink too much soda pop. Eat it a little at a time so as not to spoil your other meals.

It's always a good idea to get ready ahead of time, fellows. If you are going away on a little trip, it's a lot easier to pack your things for the journey the day before. That's what people call "foresight." Or if you are going to a party, you want to make sure plenty of time ahead that you have a clean shirt and clean clothes.

Some people are forgetful that way. But your wise man gets ready ahead of time. Some animals are smart too. The squirrels, for instance, store up nuts ready for the winter, and the bear eats a lot so that he can sleep all winter long and live all that time on the fat he has under his skin.

But the best thing we know of to get ready ahead of time is your school work. Some schools have tests. It's a lot better to study right through the school year, getting ready ahead of time, than it is to study real hard the night before the test trying to learn a whole year's work. We hope all our Junior Patrol members are learning their lessons right every day.

Now here are 11 pledges from Braddock. Among them are Milton Parlock, Walter Radziwon, Stanley Mendela, Louis Wit, Junior Franko and Matthew Stancrak. We hope you will elect a captain right away and let us know who he is so that we can send him an armband.

Remember, fellows, just because you have 10 members in your club is no reason to stop getting new members. When you have a big club, you can probably have more fun.

JUNIOR PATROL PLEDGE

I promise to help children less fortunate than I am.
I promise to do my best to make my parents proud of me.
I promise to watch carefully when crossing streets and to aid other children in keeping out of danger.
I promise to study hard and do errands willingly.
I promise to be a 100% Junior Patrol member.

blood will tell—

ONE of the mysteries of life is how much care a man will take of thoroughbred animals—noting when they are "off"...and toning them back to the "pink of condition" to increase their daily usefulness—yet will shamefully neglect his own run-down condition.

Certainly, there is a pardonable pride in an animal's healthy appearance...but human beings are more important than animals. Yet some people just hope when "run-down" that they will "come around."

It is just good "horse-sense" to reflect and reason that your so-called "tired feeling" may come from a lowered red-blood-cell count and the hemo-glo-bin in these cells.

There is a remedy specially designed to bring back strength to weakened blood...and no one can be strong, healthy, happy, and full of vitality when in a run-down condition.

S.S.S. Blood Tonic is a time-tested remedy for restoring deficient red-blood-cells and a low hemo-glo-bin content.

If you suspect an organic disease consult your physician...if you feel weak...lack a keen appetite...if your skin is pale and off-color...try S.S.S. as a part of your regular daily diet. Take it just before meals. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon notice a pick-up in your appetite...your color and skin should improve with increased strength and energy.

S.S.S. is not just a so-called tonic but a tonic specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood to enable you to "carry on" without exhaustion as you should naturally.

S.S.S. value has been proven by generations of use, as well as by modern scientific appraisal. It is truly a blood and body tonic. You will find it at all drug stores in two convenient sizes...the larger size is more economical.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Flowers and Cards

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Just when should cards be removed from flowers at a funeral . . . upon arrival or just before the funeral, or is the undertaker supposed to take care of this?

2—Does the same apply when the funeral is at a funeral home? K.

1—Any of these ways is correct. Many people, as the flowers arrive, carefully remove the card, indicating on the back of the cards, for reference in the note of thanks, the kind of flowers that are sent. I like this way best. Or the cards may be left on until just before the funeral, although this isn't often very convenient when there is so much to be seen to then. Or the taking off of the cards and the registering of the kinds of flowers sent may be left to the undertaker.

2—Yes.

Payless Vacation For Office-Seekers

Candidates for the public offices within the gifts of the people will get two weeks' vacation at their own expense—if they work for Allegheny County. Such was decreed yesterday by the County Commissioners.

C. C. McGovern, chairman of the board, commented:

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Poor Start Not Alarming
Meine Likely to Brace
Day of Many Features
Stengel's Step Explained
Good Jockeys Scarce
De Mar Keeps Going

The ineffectiveness of Heinie Meine in the opening game of the season is no more an indication that the veteran is going to have a bad year than is the loss of the curtain-raiser by the Pirates a sign that the local club is going to disappoint its followers. Meine, handicapped by a recent injury to his back, is just a little slow in getting started, and there is no reason to fear that he won't be as good as ever. He had to be lifted from his first game last year, too, but he turned in and won his next five. Manager Gibson was justified in starting Meine yesterday on the strength of the pitcher's record against the same club in 1933, when Heinie beat the Cards four times in five tries.

Heinie Meine

And a defeat at the hands of Dizzy Dean doesn't suggest a Pirate batting weakness, as Dizzy is one of the best pitchers in the country and will beat any opponent when he is in stride. So there is nothing to worry about from any angle in that failure to get off on the right foot. There are 153 more games to be played.

FIRST DAY UNUSUALLY RICH IN FEATURES

Hardly anything in the line of features was missing from the opening day picture. The list included a shutout, an extra-inning battle, a one-hit pitching performance, 13 strikeouts by one pitcher, two games in which the beaten club scored only one run, another in which the loser was held to two tallies, and a total of nine home runs to attest the activities of the sluggers.

Lonnie Warneke, as the hero of the day, with his 13 strikeouts and a close approach to a no-hit game, was joined in a successful hop-off by Carl Hubbell and Dizzy Dean, making it a perfect afternoon for the best three pitchers in the National League, who allowed only two runs all told in their 27 innings of hurling. Evidently, in spite of the livelier ball in the senior loop, pitching is still going to be the dominating factor.

M'MANUS SOLD FOR SAKE OF HARMONY

Ever since the Brooklyn club sold Marty McManus to the Braves for the waiver price, the wisdom of the move has been questioned by some of Casey Stengel's critics. They assert that the Dodgers needed McManus as a pinch-hitter and infield reserve; that his departure puts a crimp in Brooklyn's trading plans, as the club cannot now part with another infielder in a swap, and finally that the step plugged a gap in the Boston infield and strengthened a team that may be Brooklyn's chief rival for a place at the top of the second division.

Marty McManus

Looking under the surface, however, many baseball men see that Stengel made a smart deal for his own welfare and for the sake of harmony on the club. McManus, known to be a close friend of Business Manager Bob Quinn, was said to have joined the Dodgers because Quinn planned to have him appointed to succeed Max Carey. Trouble makers were ready to hold Marty over Stengel's head as a threat, intimating that if the Dodgers failed to play winning ball the reins would be turned over to McManus. Marty was placed in an embarrassing position, it wasn't good for Casey's peace of mind, and the players apparently didn't like the situation. Stengel cleared up everything by sending McManus elsewhere. Casey's own job isn't menaced, and there is harmony on the squad. Quinn and McManus have denied that there ever was any intention of grooming the former Red Sox pilot for the Brooklyn managerial job, yet it is understood that McManus, when a free agent, signed with the Dodgers for $4,000 less than had been offered to him by Cincinnati.

COUNT SHOWS SHORTAGE OF GOOD JOCKEYS

The fact that at one stage of the coming summer as many as 27 race tracks will be operating simultaneously in North America, has caused some turf followers to wonder as to where all the horses are going to come from, and as to whether there will be enough to go around. The experts say, however, that the shortage will be only among the horses of the upper brackets, the stake and handicap stars and the better class of platers, such as the $4,000 to $5,000 claimers. It is believed there will be plenty of the cheaper grade of runners to supply all of the tracks.

The men making the survey report that where the real shortage exists now, and will exist even more acutely during the summer, is in the ranks of the jockeys. There are not nearly enough high-grade riders to supply the need, and the fight to get the services of the best in the available field is expected to be a keen one. The count shows that approximately 300 jockeys will be riding this year, and smart turfmen express the opinion that of the entire number only 16 can be called real topnotchers. They name Mack Garner, Alfy Robertson, Sonny Workman, Johnny Bejshak, Duke Bellizzi, Gilbert Elston, Eddie Litzenberger, W. D. Wright, Earl Porter, Sylvio Coucci, Eddie Arcaro, Jackie Westrope, Don Meade, Charley Kurtsinger, Pete Walls and Tony Pascuma. The rest are termed mediocre.

DE MAR AT 45 AGAIN IN MARATHON RACE

Clarence De Mar continues to laugh at the old man with the scythe. Each succeeding year sees men much younger being stopped by time in less exacting sports, but at the age of 45 this physical marvel keeps right on making it a matter of mere play to run the marathon distance of 26 miles and 385 yards against the best distance plodders in the grueling game. The running of the thirty-ninth annual Patriots' Day marathon from Hopkinton to Boston tomorrow will find De Mar among the starters, as usual. Ever since 1929 they've been saving annually, "this probably will be his last start," but the Keene (N. Y.) printer and schoolmaster is right back in the competing field for each new race.

Clarence De Mar

De Mar tomorrow will be trying for his eighth victory in the Boston marathan. He won in 1911-22-23-24-27-28-30. Last year he finished eighth. The chances may be against his winning again at this late stage of his career, but it's something to be able to run 26 miles at 45, no matter where he finishes. At that, De Mar will not be the oldest man in the race. Another starter, as usual, will be Bill Kennedy, Portchester (N. Y.) bricklayer, who is 54, but Kennedy's record does not compare with that of De Mar, as he won only one race, and that was back in 1917. In the field also are Johnny (Cigars) Connors, who puffs at long black stogies as he plods; Jimmy Henigan, who says this will be his farewell race; Paul DeBruyn, the winner in 1932; Johnny Semple, Leslie Pawson, Dave Komonen, Whitey Michelson, Bill Molloy and other marathoners of the front rank. It is expected that the starting field will approximate 200.

MAJOR LEAGUES GET AWAY TO FINE START

Associated Press.

Major league baseball clubs today settled down to the serious business of daily games, hopeful a glorious round of opening contests had set the keynote for the entire season.

Encouraged by fine weather, the fans poured through the turnstiles in greater numbers yesterday than in either of the past two season inaugurals although the aggregate attendance fell far short of the 1931 record turnout of 249,010. In all more than 187,000 attended the eight opening games.

The World Champion New York Giants attracted a crowd befitting their high station, about 37,000, and the faithful were rewarded by seeing Carl Hubbell, last year's World Series hero, pitch four-hit ball to beat the Phillies, 6 to 1. The rebuilt Red Sox were the leading attraction of the American League as they clashed with the Champion Washington Senators. The crowd of 33,336 which filled Fenway Park was one of the best on record in Boston and it had plenty of thrills in an 11-inning struggle which Washington won, 6 to 5.

Throngs of around 30,000 also appeared at Brooklyn, where the Dodgers inaugurated Casey Stengel's managerial reign by beating the Boston Braves, 8-7, in an exciting slugfest, and at Cincinnati, where the first view of the rebuilt Reds proved mostly to be a view of Lonnie Warneke, Chicago's stellar right hander.

HUBBELL BRILLIANT

Pitching in mid-season form, Warneke missed a no-hit, no-run game by one throw as he blanked the Redlegs, 6-0, and whiffed 13 batsmen. Cincinnati didn't get a hit until after one was out in the ninth, when Adam Comorosky connected for a single. Chuck Klein, imported from Philadelphia to aid the Cubs' slugging, celebrated his debut with a home run.

Hubbell also hurled a masterful game for the Giants, who showed they were the same team of opportunists that won the world championship last year. They started out by scoring a run without a hit, then followed up with some timely batting, in which Blondy Ryan stood out. Jimmy Wilson, Phil's manager, took Hubbell's shutout away with a homer in the seventh.

Washington's triumph came on an eleventh-inning run off Henry Johnson after the Red Sox had overcome a five-run deficit to tie the score in the eighth. Manager Joe Cronin started the rally with a double that upset Johnson so he hit one batsman and walked another. Then Pinch Batter Dave Harris hit a grounder which Buck Walters juggled long enough for Cronin to score.

The Athletics staged a similar rally to defeat the highly-touted Yankees, 6-5, in a mixed-up game that saw 18 passes given out. A run behind in the ninth, the A's rallied to win when Bing Miller pasted a pinch single for the third hit of the inning.

INDIANS WIN

With 21,000 fans looking on, Cleveland's Indians made eight hits good for a 5-to-2 pictory over Rogers Hornsby's Browns as Earl Averill smacked in three tallies with a homer and a double. Mickey Cochrane and his Detroit Tigers showed a new brand of scrappiness as they converted six blows into an 8-to-3 triumph over Chicago.

The St. Louis Cardinals, with Dizzy Dean holding forth on the mound, pounded out the day's high total of 13 hits and trimmed the Pittsburgh Pirates, 7-1.

Lloyd Clements Craves Action With Top-Flight Heavies

LLOYD CLEMENTS SHOWS MANAGER BUNTACH HIS LARGE HA ND . . . . WANTS TO SOCK THE LEADING HEAVIES WITH IT

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

When a feller scores 31 knockouts in 43 fights and yells for tougher opponents—what's to be done about it?

The case in point is that of Lloyd Clements, 21-year-old miner-farmer, of Jeannette, who recently put on one of the thrillers of the Ted Yarosz-Ben Jeby show at Duquesne Garden with Carl Montebano as his opponent.

For a while Lloyd, a blond haired fighting fool, was little more than a middleweight. Now he has blossomed into a full-fledged heavyweight and he wants to take on the likes of Charley Massera, Reds Barry, Walter Neusel and others of that type. He looked up his manager, Bunny Buntach, yesterday and read the riot act to him. Maybe the success of his stablemate, Mike Barto, the southpaw lightweight, of New Kensington, has something to do with it. Lloyd doesn't want any of his stablemates to be stepping ahead of him. He wants action, action and more action.

HAS IMPOSING RECORD

Lloyd now is 6 feet tall and weighs 188 pounds. He is strictly a fighter, always crowding in close and whaling away. He has knocked out Jack Pallat, twice National amateur heavyweight champion; Carl Gross, Ray Jennings, Frank Novak, Tony Rabino and Walter Ketchel, among others. He has been fighting four years.

As an amateur Clements knocked out 18 of 24 opponents, the last 12 in a row. As a professional he has scored 13 knockouts in 19 starts. He has been stopped only once, by Warren Farrow in a bout in which he floored his foe a few times and then landed simultaneously with the blow that knocked him out, the bout almost ending in a double knockout.

FIGHTING BROTHERS

Lloyd likes to fight and he always gives the fans a run for their money. He says he doesn't take as much punishment as the onlookers appear to think. He rolls and weaves with the punches. And when he hits them they stay hit. His hands are as big as a couple of hams, as you can see from the picture above. He comes from a family of fighters. An older brother, Leo, also was a heavyweight puncher, but he has given up the game, while a younger brother, Jerry, recently has developed from a featherweight into a welterweight and soon will be as big as Lloyd himself.

Listen to the plaint of Lloyd:

"What does a fellow have to do to get recognition? I'll fight anybody from Primo Carnera on down. I know I'll be able to outpunch the men of reputation as easily as I have the run-of-mine fellows I have met so far. Get me Massera. I'll knock him out. I saw him fight Red Barry, and I know I can lick him. I don't want to be dubbing around forever. Get the good ones for me and watch me climb."

P. S.—Prof. Buntach just called to announce that he has signed Clements to box K. O. Christner at Clarksburg, W. Va., Thursday night of next week.

LONDOS VS. BROWNING

The most attractive wrestling match in years is in the making, between Jim Browning and Jim Londos, rival claimants of the world heavyweight title. It is planned for the Madison Square Garden Bowl, Long Island City, July 2.

McTIERNAN TO MARRY

It's not exactly a secret, but did you know that it's wedding bells for Buck McTiernan, the former middleweight boxing star, of Swissvale? The girl is Patricia O'Brien, of Swissvale, and the marriage will mark the culmination of a schooldays romance. Buck is a motorcycle man in the Swissvale police department now and it is doubtful if he will return to the ring.

ST. LOUIS, April 18.—The collective Pirate hope today, an aftermath of the club's sorry showing of yesterday, hinged on the question of the truth of a certain man-made adage. If a bad beginning really presages a good ending, well, the Pittsburgh boys feel they will be in for a lot of happiness in late September.

So much for the hopes and the future. The immediate past wrote this set off the Pirate slate this morning. The Buccos yesterday took part in one of the dullest openers in the long history of Pittsburgh teams. True, the weather was fine, but aside from the spring zephyrs, there wasn't a thing to give the Pirates a tinge of joy as they lost to the Cards, 7 to 1.

PIRATES LIFELESS

The Pirates didn't have any more life than a bunch of silent men, and to make matters worse the inaugural in St. Louis brought a contest that dragged almost two and one-half hours. Heine Meine and Dizzy Dean went through a lot of slow motion on the mound, the only difference being Dean had a lot of zip when he let go of the ball. Heine, who pitched comparatively few innings in the spring, didn't have enough stuff to fool a high school club.

To add to the drab picture, the 7,500 fans acted as if they came out to the park to court spring fever. Joe Medwick awakened the lethargic crowd from its day dreams in the third when he hit a home run, but the good home folks went right back to sleep and slumbered until the band brought them to with the home waltz at the end of the ninth.

Speaking technically or from the standpoint of inside strategy, Jerome the Dizzy really hurled a fine ball game as he limited the Pirates to six hits. You cannot ridicule a pitcher who winds up a ball game by stopping 12 batters in a row, and Dizzy's fast ball was smacking like a pistol in Spud Davis' big glove in the closing rounds.

Waite Hoyt also was a mark for the Cards, but Ralph Birkofer was O. K. Meine and Hoyt each worked three rounds, the young southpaw pitching the final two chapters.

P. DEAN TO HURL

Manager Frank Frisch made a sensational announcement last night when he declared that in view of Jerome's fine slab feat he would call upon the kid brother to face the Buccos today. Paul Dean, Columbus ace, therefore, will make his major league debut. It was not surprising when Manager Gibson stated that Larry French would twirl. French wanted to pitch yesterday. Perhaps it is just as well that he didn't if the Bucs were to be held to one run.

Harry Lavagetto's major league debut was successful even though you do not see any hits after the rookie's name in the box score. Just the same, Cookie hit the ball hard, his hot liner to Moore in the fourth scoring Arky Vaughan with the Pirates' only run. Dean broke the youngster's hitting streak which had gone through 18 exhibition games.

RALLY FAILS

In only one inning, the third, did the Buccos show anything unusual. In this frame, Fred Lindstrom missed a homer by a few feet when his two-out double against the left wall was delivered. L. Waner was on first at the time and a homer would have tied the score. Brother Lloyd had to stop at third.

The Cards recorded 13 hits to ride to victory. Three quick hits by Medwick, Collins and Davis produced two runs in the second. Medwick's homer into the left field seats in the third also scored Pepper Martin. The Cards nicked Hoyt for four singles and three runs in the fifth.

An so Larry French, who stopped the flock on many occasions last year, will try his stuff today. Larry is in rare form, owing to the hard work of the training season. He is rarin' to go.

INTERNATIONAL RACE OPENS

NEW YORK, April 18.—(AP.)—Hoping for the same success that marked the opening of the major circuits yesterday, the International League will start its fifty-first season today with at least five clubs rating consideration in the 154-game race for the pennant and a position in the playoffs.

Upwards of 40,000 fans are expected to turn out at Albany, Syracuse, Newark and Baltimore. The weather man promised ideal playing conditions for the two upstate cities, but his prediction for Newark and Baltimore was rain.

At Albany the Senators will entertain the Toronto Maple Leafs, while the Syracuse Chiefs, recently transferred from Jersey City, will be hosts to the Montreal Royals. The Buffalo Bisons, winners of the playoffs last season, will come south to meet the Newark Bears, which spread-eagled the field during the regular season last year only to lose in the post-season playoffs. At Baltimore the Orioles will see action against the powerful Rochester Red Wings.

A. A. FRAYS DRAW 33,000

Associated Press.

The American Association opened its thirty-third season before a total attendance which exceeded the fondest hopes of the club owners, the turnstiles clicking off more than 33,000 admissions.

The league champion Columbus Red Birds drew the biggest crowd of the day, 12,049, but disappointed their followers by losing to Louisville, 8 to 5.

Ray Phelps, former Brooklyn hurler, held Kansas City to five hits as St. Paul nipped the Blues, 1 to 0, before 9,500 customers at Kansas City.

Another former major leaguer, Earl Webb, gave 8,090 Milwaukee fans a thrill and won the ball game for the Brewers by blasting out a homer with the bases full in the seventh. The blow gave Milwaukee a 10-to-5 victory over Minneapolis.

Only at Toledo was the attendance disappointing. A meager crowd of 3,500 turned out to watch the Mud Hens take an 11-to-6 beating from Indianapolis.

Weisenbaugh May Gallop At Halfback for Pitt

By JESS CARVER

Heinie Weisenbaugh may gallop at right halfback for Pitt's football team next fall. And gallop, my good friends, is exactly the word . . . None other.

The Dutchman, who has been sharing the fullbacking with Izzy Weinstock in the Panthers' backfield for the past two campaigns, has been working out at right half since spring practice got under way a month ago. Ever since the first time Heinie broke away on one of his thrilling runs, there have been many who have hopes to see him at half rather than full. There was hope in many breasts that Dr. Sutherland would convert the Tarentum flash into a halfback last fall, using him in the spot vacated by Warren Heller.

STARRED AS FULLBACK

But the Pitt coach needed Heinie as a fullback, and besides, Howdy O'Dell was on hand to do the left halfbacking. Besides, Weisenbaugh is a swell fullback, few can appreciate how really valuable he is at the position, and the Panthers were able to shake him through the line often enough to make him a real threat. And what a threat he is once he gets into the open field.

With the passing of Sebastian and Matesic, the right halfbacks of last fall's eleven, and with Weinstock still on hand to take care of the major portion of the fullback chores, Coach Sutherland appears to have made up his mind to try Dutch at the other post, at least during the spring drills.

Blocking was the big lesson Heinie has had to learn and from all reports, he's learning it well. A good right halfback, who can run to his left, is a valuable asset to any team, and the Dutchman can run any way—even, one might suspect, sideways.

Track Coach Carl Olson continues to worry and fret over the coming inaugural meet with Temple, billed for the Pitt Stadium Saturday. Ever since he received the list of best marks sent in advance by the Owls, the Panther mentor has been sitting in a corner, talking to himself. A close perusal and study of the Temple marks and the best records of his own squad, Olson can see hope only for his pole vaulters and middle distance men, and then the hope is nothing over which to write to the home folks.

SWIM STARS SET

Lenore Kight, star girl swimming champion of Homestead, Johanna and Anna Mae Gorman and Louise Clark, Lenore's Carnegie Library Club teammates, will put in appearances at the annual aquatic clinic at Pitt Saturday. The four stars will give practical demonstrations in their favorite events.

Final tryouts for the varsity golf team will be held today and [illegible] St. Clair Country Club course, home links of the Pitt mashie wielders this year. The Pitts meet Detroit University on Saturday.

FULLBACKS PLENTIFUL

Returning for a line or two to the subject of football, it may be said that the local fullback market looks like the money as far as next fall is concerned.

If Joe Bach and Christy Flanagan, the head men at Duquesne, decide to shift big Art Strutt back to the fullback position, there will be three fine performers working at that spot. The Dukes will have Strutt, Pitt will have the powerful Weinstock, one of the best in the land last year, and Tech will have husky Joe Mihm, long-kicking redhead.

Strutt galloped about as a halfback last year for the greater part of the time, but he started as a fullbacker and figures to wind up as such. Silvio Zaninelli is through on the Bluff, but the Dukes hardly will miss the big Heidelberg Italian with Strutt on hand.

A Pittsburgh lad, Bob Grier, is after a varsity tennis berth at Westminster and stands a fine chance of landing same. The Titan netters were called out this week, and Grier, although only a freshman, has shown fine promise so far.

Two other district track and field squads, varsities, swing into action on Saturday as Waynesburg and West Virginia clash in a dual meet at Morgantown.

NEW YORK GETS RACE BILLS

ALBANY, N. Y., April 18.—(INS.)—With the bill to permit open betting at the New York race tracks already passed by the Legislature, the Assembly rules committee today reported two other racing measures.

They are a proposed amendment to the constitution to pave the way for parimutuel machines at the New York tracks in 1936 and a bill creating a new state racing commission of three members with broad powers over the sport.

Both measures already have been passed by the Senate, and the action of the rules committee in reporting them indicates they will go through the House later today with little or no opposition.

MONTREAL, April 18.—(AP.)—Alf Letourner, of France, and his Montreal partner, Henri LePage, regained undisputed possession of the lead in Montreal's six-day bike race early today.

Chillysauce

Frank Frisch is sold heavily on the Pirate club. Frank went into ecstacies over the Buccos as I sat with him in the Redbird coop before the opening battle began. I agreed with the general tone of the Fordham flash's talk, but told him I thought we might stand in need of a pitcher like Warneke or Dean to put the team over the seven barriers of the race. Unfortunately, perhaps the Buccos have no powerhouse righthander who can pour the ball over the plate. Chagnon is this type, but he is not a regular.

Frisch's club is a spotty combination in some respects, but the Redbirds appear to be instilled with the confidence that makes for success. Lloyd, Hallahan and Carleton give the Redbirds a fine pitching edge, and they have a lot of flavor when Pepper Martin, Frisch and one or two other speeders are on the sacks. Jack Rothrock, new left fielder of the Cards, fits in with the punch and speed owned by Martin and French. And Joe Medwick, Scottdale graduate, is no cleanup gent at the plate who can step over the ground at a lively clip.

Spud Davis made his Redbird debut in a manner most auspicious. The 200 pound receiver [illegible] to Chuck Klein last season made [illegible] to replace him with [illegible] and second in his first time at bat. The drive scored two runs and [illegible] Wilson's auspicious [illegible] of applause.

Lon Warneke's no performance in the Cub opener in Redland bears out what has been pointed [illegible] regarding the slender righthander. Lefty Grimm's ace and the spectacular Jerome Dean should go down into baseball history as outstanding righthand pitchers.

One swallow doesn't make a summer, but Grimm has a flag edge in having such a great pitcher at his beck and call. It may turn out to be a fine thing for the other seven clubs that the lively ball has returned in view of the skill of the Chicago mound staff. Bush, Root and Malone are all fireball artists who have a natural advantage under slow ball conditions.

Quite a few veterans of baseball are not impressed by the return of the rabbit ball to the National League. The average contest of the past two years has been run off sharply, and the umpires are among those who were pleased with the results. Meantime, the American League games where the lively ball prevailed, often dragged far over two hours.

ELLSWORTH VINES TO PLAY IN PRO NET MATCHES HERE

STARS TO SHOW AT DUQUESNE GARDEN

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Ellsworth Vines, youthful Pacific Coast sensation, will perform in Pittsburgh as co-star of Bill Tilden's barnstorming professional tennis troupe, scheduled to appear at Duquesne Garden on Tuesday, May 8. The definite alignment of Vines, champion of the United States in 1931 and 1932 and Wimbledon premier in 1932, was announced yesterday on the arrival here of Tom McKee, former Pittsburgher and present advance man of the Tilden-O'Brien interests, which control the winter exhibition tours of the leading pro net luminaries in America.

Along with Vines and Tilden will come Keith Gledhill, crack California youngster and doubles partner of Vines since junior competitive days, and Alfred Chapin, hart-hitting New England product. Neither Vines nor Gledhill has ever been seen in action locally, but Tilden has flashed his skill on Steel City courts many times, while Chapin is no stranger to fans whose memories go back to 1924, when he and Big Bill battled in the Western Pennsylvania tourney on the old P. A. A. rectangles.

PROGRAM SET

According to the program released by McKee, Gledhill will meet Chapin in the best of three singles sets in the opening number. Tilden will next take on Vines in a three-out-of-five frame contest. The seance will close with a dual engagement featuring Tilden and Chapin against Vines and Gledhill, 1932 American champions. The length of the doubles event will be governed by the amount of time consumed by its singles procedessors, the customary aim being to terminate action around 11:30 p. m.

McKee, after inspecting the facilities offered by Duquesne Garden, pronounced the Craig street arena ideal for the proposed display. The canvas floor cover on which the racqueters cavort is 128 feet long. In numerous cities it has been necessary, because of dearth of space, to erect stands upon perhaps 10 feet at each end of the tarpaulin. With the 230-foot straightaway at the Garden, this will be entirely unnecessary.

The promoters are aiming at a gallery of approximately 4,000, which can be handled comfortably by adding to the permanent seats two rows of chairs around the flat of the bike track and a temporary bleacher across the far bend of the oval.

P. A. A. CONFAB SET

The Tilden travelers are booked for Toledo on May 6 and for Mansfield, O., on the seventh.

The P. A. A. tennis committee will convene this evening at the behest of Chairman Dr. Billy McElroy for the purpose of devising means of retaining the Winged Head entry in the P. T. A. Inter-Club League. Whether or not the Red and Gray will continue this season to sponsor its usual trio of courts at the Bigelow-Ruskin corner is still problematical, but it is hoped by members of the P. A. A. squad that a favorable decision will be forthcoming for delivery at the P. T. A. executive committee conclave listed for the Harvard-Yale-Princeton Club at noon tomorrow.

UNIFORM COURT PLANNED

NEW YORK, April 18.—(AP.)—Announcement of the formation of a committee to study the possibility of a standard tennis court surface suitable for play in all sections of the country has been made by Walter Merrill Hall, president of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

At present, tennis court classifications roughly are divided into grass and clay along the Atlantic Coast; clay, crushed stone and similar composition in the Mid-west, and hard courts, such as concrete or asphalt, along the Pacific Coast. The new committee will discover, if possible, a composition court surface approximating the resiliency and other desirable qualities of a grass court which would be playable at all times, under the varying weather conditions prevailing throughout the United States.

Earl Miller Leads In Hockey Scoring

WINDSOR, Ont., April 18.—(AP.)—Earl Miller, left wing of the Syracuse Stars, nosed out Mike Brophy, of Cleveland, for the scoring leadership of the International Hockey League, the final official averages revealed.

Miller scored 21 goals and 19 assists for 40 points, one more than Brophy, who had 15 goals and 24 assists. Al Huggins, of Syracuse, was third with 14-23—37.

DI STOUT SIGNS TO PLAY AT HOMEWOOD

By TOM BIRKS

Chippy DiStout, classy East End shortstop, who was reported to be playing with one of the New York Giant farm clubs this season, is going to do his short stopping on the Homewood playgrounds as a member of Bill Dalzell's Homewood City League nine.

DiStout will be part and parcel of the keystone sack combination with Jerry Levey. That should be great news for the East End followers of the City League. Chippy is a fine ball player who has lots of natural ability. He is a great fielder, with a powerful throwing arm.

INFIELD IS SET

With DiStout putting his signature on the dotted line, Dalzell's troubles so far as his infield is concerned, are over. Ray Bond, Levey, DiStout and Jim Mitchell form as classy an infield as any team in the City circuit will be able to boast.

Whitey Latusick, who became a first-class catcher while a member of teams from the McKees Rocks district, will be the Homewood first string receiver. Whitey has lots of pep, running second only to Joe Gruber in this respect, and knows just what all of the dangerous batsmen in the City League cannot hit. Now all that Dalzell has to do is announce his outfield and pitching staff.

HADLEY, GIBSON BACK

Joe Hadley and Hoot Gibson are to be regular outfielders again for Books this season together with Soapy Heyl. Most Olympia Park fans figured that August Buch would sign Gibson and Hadley after the successful season these boys had with the City League champions last year, and the fans figured correctly.

The City League hopes to wind up its organization odds and ends at a meeting carded for the Henry Hotel this evening. The confab is scheduled to get under way at 8 o'clock. The selection of a staff of umpires and the adoption of an official ball are the more important items of business confronting the league representatives.

The Universal League, formerly known as the Iron City circuit, has completed its organization with six teams in the fold. The Acme Club, Bloomfield Collegians, Averill Indians, St. Ignatius, Kay Community and the Eiler Club will make up the loop.

Near No-Hitter

LONNIE WARNEKE

Star pitcher of the Chicago Cubs, who held the Reds hitless until Adam Comorosky, formerly of the Pirates, came through with a lone single after one was out in the ninth inning of the opening game at Cincinnati yesterday. Warneke won, 6-0. He fanned 13 batters. Chuck Klein, new Cub, hit a home run.

'EKKIE' APPEARS SET TO GO

BALTIMORE, April 18.—(AP.)—C. V. Whitney's Equipose, preparing for his 1934 debut in the Philadelphia handicap Saturday, showed that he was fit for the start of his assault on Sun Beau's money-winning record in a speedy public workout at Havre De Grace, Md., yesterday.

With Raymond (Sonny) Workman in the saddle, the little chestnut broke in front of the stands between the first and second races. He went the first furlong in 13 3-5 seconds and dashed around the turn going to the quarter-mile post in 25 seconds flat. The three furlongs were turned in 37 2-5 seconds, and the half mile in 51 seconds.

Still running well within himself, the six-year-old son of Pennant hit the five-furlong pole in 1:03 2-5. Then he turned on the steam. He was clocked in 1:16 2-5 for the six furlongs and 1:31 for seven furlongs, finishing out the mile in 1:44.

Steve Walters Bows To Johnny Geidl

Steve Walters, former Pittsburgh Lyceum welterweight star, was defeated in three rounds of hectic action by Johnny Geidl, of the Duerr A. C., of McKees Rocks, in the feature bout of the amateur ring show staged by the Progressive League, of Dormont, at Boylan Hall, Beechview, last night. The summary:

112-pound class—Jimmy Fortunati, Frawley A. C., defeated Eddie Tuschek, Krah A. C.

118-pound class—Joe Sulk, Willow Club, defeated Felix Sashietta, Pittsburgh Lyceum.

126-pound class—Billy Miller, Pittsburgh Boys' Club, defeated G. G. Carrabba, J. L. Thomas Club; Frankie Winzo, Willow Club, defeated Joe Pohaska, Duerr A. C., McKees Rocks.

135-pound class—Jackie Walls, Frawley A. C., defeated Patsy Contillo, Willow Club; Fritz Waldrick, Willow Club, defeated Frank Rickard, St. John's Lyceum.

147-pound class—Johnny Geidl, Duerr A. C., defeated Steve Walters, Pittsburgh Boys' Club.

Rios was unmarked from his battle with Yarosz and said he would like to return here to box Anson Green again. He recently won a decision over Green in Motor Square Garden.

DOUBLE KNOCKOUT

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18.—(INS.)—Bonnie Muir, Australian wrestling champion, and George Wilson, Seattle, formerly a Washington football star, collided head-on in a wrestling bout here last night, scoring a double knockout. Referee George Gardenfield called the bout a draw, as the grapplers were unable to continue.

RALPH CARSON WINS

Defeating Jim Fulton, 15-12, 8-15, 15-13 and 15-11, Ralph Carson won the class C squash title of the Keystone A. C. yesterday. In a class B preliminary, D. K. Kennedy put out J. Rogers Flannery, 18-16, 16-18, 18-16, 12-15 and 15-12.

DORMONT NINE WINS SCHOOL OPENER

By JULIUS LEVIN

Dormont, Trinity, of Washington, Pa., Edgewood and Burgettstown turned in victories as the W. P. I. A. L. baseball championship race got under way yesterday.

Dormont's heavy hitting aggregation compiled the most sensational and decisive score, walloping Findlay, 23 to 3, in six and one-half innings of action. The Dormonters, with McMillan leading the attack with three safe blows, made 16 hits account for the 23 runs. The victors scored 11 runs in the first inning.

The Trinity nine, defending W. P. I. A. L. champions, collected only six hits from the delivery of Dhayer, Hickory hurler, but bunched them so effectively that they tallied seven runs. Hickory was held to four blows by McComb, on the slab for the champions.

Edgewood found East McKeesport comparatively easy, winning 15 to 1. A nine-run attack in the third inning put the game on ice. Hughes, Edgewood first sacker, banged out three of his team's 16 hits. Garbark, Edgewood hurler, limited East McKeesport to one hit, a single by Hodder that accounted for the losers' lone tally in the final inning.

Union High of Burgettstown and Avella staged a slugfest at Avella, with Union winning out, 13 to 8. Avella got off to an early lead but failed to hold it.

Jim Stevenson, of Norwin, has been named captain of the Norwin High School golf team, chiefly because he scored a hole-in-one yesterday in the final day of qualifying play for the team. He scored his ace on the 150-yard No. 5 hole at the Irwin Country Club.

Herman, Mahaffey, Herron, Morse and George have captured the five positions on the Peabody High School team, Section I entry in the Interscholastic Golf Conference.

Dartmouth Honors Dead Sport Star

HANOVER, N. H., April 18.—(AP.)—Bob Michelet, Washington, D. C., who died of pneumonia March 14, was nominated by 33 of the most prominent members of the senior class for the presidency in a petition which appeared in the Dartmouth, undergraduate daily. It said:

"We, the undersigned, wish to honor the memory of Robert Michelet by nominating him for the presidency of the senior class."

Michelet was a football and track star and had been appointed a Rhodes scholar shortly before he died.

PHILS' PITCHER DISAPPEARS

PHILADELPHIA, April 18.—(AP.)—Police have been asked to search for Frank Pearce, pitcher of the Philadelphia National League Baseball Club, who has been missing more than 24 hours.

Officials of the club said Pearce packed his bag to accompany the Phillies to New York for the opening game of the season yesterday and left it with his roommate, Curt Davis. They thought he had missed the train, but on their return to this city last night found no trace of him.

Pearce, who comes from Anchorage, Ky., was with the Phillies for his second season. In the middle of last summer he suffered an attack of heat prostration, cutting short a good star as a major league hurler.

Pearce, according to Jimmy Wilson, the Phillies' manager, has always adhered strictly to training rules. He has been subject to weakness in extreme heat, and it was believed a recurrence of the trouble has made him an amnesia victim.

MARSHALL AHEAD

'Insurance' That Means Big Orders

By B. C. FORBES

POINTER FOR manufacturers, merchants and other advertisers:

Dodge Brothers Corporation sales this month have broken all boom-time records.

Mr. Forbes

The explanation?

General Sales Manager Van Der Zee tells me that, whereas most other manufacturers curtailed their advertising when orders first began to expand notably, Dodge maintained full steam ahead. It figured that this would prove ideal "insurance" against undue diminution in orders if and when a lull overtook the country. The results have abundantly proved the wisdom of this far-sighted policy.

For the first 14 weeks of this year Dodge dealers delivered to consumers more than 55,000 Dodge cars, trucks and Plymouths, an increase of 156 per cent over last year.

Not many business organizations in America can match such a record.

Too many adopt the short-sighted policy that they can cut down on advertising and other sales promotion when business is rolling in satisfactorily. They neglect to take out "business insurance" in the form of vigorously-maintained sales efforts against the day when consumption becomes less zestful.

When I was a boy one of the most successful firms in Britain was Day & Martin, manufacturers of shoe polish. Their advertising was as prominent and universal as sunlight soap. The Day & Martin management, however, concluded that they could save millions by stopping or drastically cutting down their advertising seeing that they had almost a monopoly. They did—and went broke.

Sunlight soap, owned by the late Lord Leverhulme, originally William Hasketh Lever, was too much of a business statesman to adopt any such suicidal policy. The result was that when he died he left a flourishing business.

No need to moralize on the moral.

RUMORS CONTINUE to trickle in from Washington that President Roosevelt has concluded that the time has come to let up in springing new experiments on the country, to expedite the adoption of legislation (reasonably tempered) already proposed and to permit the mind of America to concentrate mainly upon making economic progress.

GENERAL JOHNSON is militaristic to his finger-tips. While he was table-thumping in advocacy of measures designed to help the American Federation of Labor to bring about a "closed" America the general was asked: "Would you accept the responsible generalship over an army if you knew that the soldiers had been enlisted on the 'collective bargaining basis'? How far could you get if the rank-and-file demanded the right to tell you what to do and to inform you under just what conditions they would carry out your plans and orders?"

The general's reply is not recorded.

MUDDLING STILL abounds at Washington, according to communications received by this column. Here is a sample cited by the president of one nationally-known company:

"Are you aware of the large proportion of construction jobs on which the government rejects all bids and frequently abandons the work entirely after having put a lot of people to considerable trouble and expense in making bids? One recent instance is the air corps shop, hangars and operations building at Middletown, Pa.

"It has gotten so that we look for a rejection of all bids instead of looking for an award. The government is thus setting a very bad example. If it doesn't want the work done, why ask for bids?

"On the Milwaukee post-office it has rejected all bids for certain work three times.

"Of course you understand that, like most business concerns, we cannot complain directly to the officials, and, also, you must not reveal our identity."

Any business managed as unbusinesslike as many Washington bodies are managed would move steadily and inevitably towards hopeless bankruptcy.

It is high time for a new leaf.

Crucible Steel Head Looks To Payment of Back Dividends on Preferred

H. S. Wilkinson, chairman of Crucible Steel Company, stated that with continuation of present volume of business the management will recommend to the directors that they give consideration to the payment of the accumulated dividends on the preferred stock. The company has paid all outstanding obligations except bonds and has redeemed and retired all maturing bonds together with all interest. In addition it has more than a million dollars in cash which is gradually increasing.

"I think it is safe to say that for the first time in more than four years, the railroad skies are distinctly clearing and traffic and earnings are on a definite up-grade," George D. Ogden, assistant vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, said today. "These are cheering developments," he continued, "not only for the security holders of the railroad properties and for their employes, but for the country as a whole, because railroad traffic is still the best measure we have of business activity and our relative degree of national prosperity."

Loadings of revenue freight for the week ended April 14, to be published Friday by the American Railways Association, are expected to approximate 575,000 cars, which would compare with 557,887 in the week preceding and 494,215 in the like week in 1933.

Dow, Jones & Co. said today it was understood that a tentative reorganization plan for the Studebaker Corporation had been submitted to creditors following negotiations between creditor interests and other interested parties. Details of the plan, the agency said, have not been disclosed, nor has any indication been given how soon definite action on reorganization will be taken. Studebaker's business, it was reported, has shown a substantial expansion recently.

Strength of preferred stocks was again a feature of the market today. With high-grade bonds now at a distinctly speculative category. Reasons for buying the highly speculative preferred issues were obscure in some cases, but it was explained in brokerage quarters that since dividends must come first on preferred stocks, and holders of the preferred issues expect to fare better than holders of common shares in reorganizations, chances of sharing in recovery might be better in the preferred's in several situations.

Although subject to irregular variations at this season the weekly electric output figures showed a better than seasonal gain against the last couple of years and a larger percentage increase over 1933 than was reported in the previous week. Thus the report looked to Wall street like confirmation of some other indices pointing to further improvement in industrial activity.

A. T. T. DEFENDS BIG SALARIES

NEW YORK, April 18.—(AP.)—A vigorous defense of policies governing executives' salaries was presented by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company board at the annual stockholders' meeting today.

In a formal statement, which was read after a few stockholders had protested against the amount of compensation paid to some of the higher executives, the directors asserted that "if we would get better men by paying more money, it would be wise to do so."

The statement said in part:

"The company has to compete with opportunities for talent in all other fields. It is necessary, therefore, to pay management adequately, for unless this is done the business will not retain or draw to it in the future the ability it needs. If we could get better men by paying more money it would be wise to do so.

"On the other hand, to have it understood that first-class talent can hope for but relatively poor reward in the Bell system would be the most certain way to breed decay in this great enterprise."

POWER OUTPUT GAIN LARGER

The increase over a year ago was 16.5 per cent, compared with an increase of 15.5 per cent recorded for the previous week.

STOCKS FOLLOW PREFERRED RISE

NEW YORK, April 18.—The upward pace of stocks was accelerated today under the leadership of preferred and specialty issues and numerous gains of 1 to 2 or more points were recorded.

Equities were again inclined to ignore grains, although the latter displayed rallying tendencies. Better business and industrial news, together with brighter Washington prospects, were generally credited with the improvement in sentiment.

Wheat dipped and recovered a bit nervously. Cotton, rubber and silver futures took a step or so forward. A number of bonds again established "new highs." The dollar exhibited strength in foreign exchange markets on the belief that the administration was pointing to the "right."

LEAD GAINS

Shares of National Lead spurted 8 points and Crucible Steel preferred jumped 7. Preferred stocks, up 1 to around 2, included Postal Telegraph, Republic Steel, Armour of Illinois, Gillette, Budd Manufacturing, Radio, United States Rubber, Mullins Manufacturing, Commonwealth and Southern and International Paper and Power. United States Smelting, American Telephone, United States Industrial Alcohol and Liggett and Myers B advanced about 2 each. Such stocks as United States Steel, Western Union, American Can, Case, du Pont, Johns-Manville, Santa Fe, Montgomery Ward, Chrysler, Auburn, Schenley and Consolidated Gas were up around a point. Mohawk Carpet and California Packing were in demand at a point or more advance.

The activity in Crucible Steel followed the chairman's statement at the annual stockholders' meeting that, if business volume continues, the management would recommend payment of accumulated preferred dividends. Radio common was especially lively, one block of 19,000 shares changing hands at a small advance. Interest in some of the preferred shares reflected reports of reorganization plans and probable adjustment of back dividends.

DISCUSS SILVER

While the speculative ardor for silver was somewhat cooled, the fact that the silver bloc in Washington will confer with the chief executive tomorrow gave rise to hopes that administrative opposition to legislation at this session favoring the metal might be softened. Just how far an effort to override a veto on a remonitization bill might get was a matter of conjecture. It was understood that Mr. Roosevelt believed that nothing would be gained by a silver statement from him at this time.

DOLLAR RISES, POUND OFF

NEW YORK, April 18.—(AP.)—The dollar was strong in terms of the British pound sterling in foreign exchange markets today and maintained a steady tone in relation to others.

In London, where reports from Washington stating that President Roosevelt elected to make no comment on pending silver legislation were construed as indicating no further inflationary measures were to be taken by the American government at this time, the dollar gained 2½ cents to close at 5.13 to the pound. In New York the British unit sagged 17/8 cents in later trading to $5.13½.

In Paris the dollar held steady at an equivalent of 6.60 cents to the franc, while in New York the French currency remained unchanged in later trading at 6.60¼ cents.

The London gold market was again active, approximately $2,756,587 in metal being purchased at an equivalent of $34.87 a fine ounce, compared with yesterday's rate of $34.74 an ounce.

JOBS, PAYROLLS SHOW GAINS

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Continued gains in employment and payrolls in private industry are reported by Secretary of Labor Perkins. The index of employment represents the highest point recorded since December, 1930, and payrolls advanced to the highest level since August, 1931.

This means, Miss Perkins said, a return to private industry of 2,750,000 workers since March, 1933, an estimated increase of $79,000,000 in weekly wages.

Employment in the manufacturing industries increased 4 per cent and weekly payrolls rose by 6.9 per cent during March.

'EASY' MONEY WON'T HELP INDUSTRIES

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, April 18.— Two mistaken ideas are doing considerable harm. One is that the "capital goods industries," or "heavy industries," need some special sort of treatment. The other is that they can be stimulated by making money "easy."

It is true that machinery and building industries are depressed, and that they show much unemployment.

Is it because there is not enough money or credit? Is it because bankers and investors are discriminating against industries? Certainly not.

The whole trouble is that these industries make products which (1) last a long time, and which (2) have to be used along with labor in producing finished goods for sale. Thus these industries require long-term investments. These are subject to the uncertainties of the future, such as changing the value of the dollar, new deal reforms and taxes. And investors fear that organized labor may take so much of the earnings that their capital would get little return.

REMOVE UNCERTAINTIES

The only thing than can possibly be accomplished by government policies is to remove uncertainties as to money, regulation, taxes and labor. Then, and not till then, will all the investment funds that are required flow freely into the capital goods industries.

Money or bank credit is not now seeking investment in industrial plant and equipment. It is seeking to avoid being tied up in such instruments of production. Those who have funds have two great objects: One is liquidity. The other is escape from tax burdens. Thus funds go into tax-exempt bonds which are readily saleable.

The only way to induce investment funds to go into building and machinery is as follows: (1) Restore confidence in the dollar. (2) make long-term business plans possible. (3) make long-term investments safe.

How foolish, then, is the notion that by loading the banks with government debt and forcing short-term credit rates down to record lows, the capital goods industries can be helped! All this does is to stimulate speculation and make a market for government bonds. In fact, by increasing the fear of inflation and high taxes, it actually retards investment in fixed capital.

ILL-CONSIDERED STATEMENT

Seldom have I seen a more ill-considered statement than the following: We should "continue to finance the government deficit out of bank credit and not out of the people's savings, so that the deficit represents a net addition to the national purchasing power."

How can anyone imagine that a national deficit is a net addition to national purchasing power? Only by forgetting the future, which is the essence of capital and investment.

What does it mean to "finance" a government deficit out of bank credit, when bank credit is largely government debt? The chief "asset" of the banks is the government's deficit! (The prostitution of our banks to the government's fiscal purposes is today one of our great dangers.)

The plain fact is that the demand for capital goods comes from the demand for consumer's goods. When business men can see reasonable assurance of earnings by producing shoes, textiles, automobiles, business and residential floor space, and transportation of freight and passengers, then there will be no trouble with the machinery, building and railway equipment industries.

But as long as such notions about government debt and bank credit prevail, these industries will languish. There will be no real investment demand. Funds will continue to seek tax escapes and liquidity.

National Steel Net Profit Increases

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor.

NATIONAL STEEL CORPORATION will report net profit of at least $1,500,000 for the first quarter, according to official sources. This would be equivalent to about 70 cents a share on the capital stock. The report for the quarter will be made public within a few weeks.

Earnings for the period greatly exceeded those reported for the previous quarter and for the corresponding period a year ago. They were at least equal to, and may have exceeded, profit for the second quarter of 1933, the best of last year.

National's results for the first quarter of this year were considerably better than those of most other steel companies, few of which are expected to report any such marked upturn in earnings.

Earned 11 Cents In Fourth Quarter

PROFIT OF OVER $1,500,000, or 70 cents a share, in the first quarter compared with $242,530, or 11 cents a share, in the fourth quarter of last year and with $280,844, or 13 cents a share, in the corresponding period of 1933.

A table of earnings for the four quarters of 1933 and of earnings per share follows:

Quarter ended.	Net profit.	Per share.
March 31	$ 280,844	$.13
June 30	1,532,466	.71
September 30	756,565	.35
December 31	242,530	.11
Total for year	$2,812,407	$1.30

High Output To Continue

THE COMPANY is the only large steel company with production facilities at Detroit. The high rate of automobile output has materially helped production and sales. Detroit plants have been running at practically a capacity basis.

Orders on hand and the desire of consumers to build up stocks before old contracts expire and new ones must be made at higher prices is expected to keep production at a fairly high rate during the present quarter.

STEEL OUTLOOK FAVORABLE

NEW YORK, April 18.—Iron Age says: "With iron and steel makers heavily booked for the second quarter and with higher prices about to go into effect on most products, the outlook in the industry is most favorable. Some mills have such heavy commitments that they will be pressed to turn out the tonnage if buyers specify fully against their contracts. To prevent an accumulation of releases toward the end of the quarter, a number of producers are already pressing their customers for shipping instructions. Under the most popular form of control buyers are required to order out material in approximately equal monthly quantities.

"The anxiety of mills to obtain releases is matched by the desire of most buyers to build up maximum stocks of materials at pre-advance prices.

"Steel ingots output has made another gain, rising from 49½ per cent to 52 per cent of capacity, the highest rate since mid-August, 1933.

CAROL TO VISIT MAGDA IN EXILE

International News Service.

VIENNA, April 18.—Acceding to the demands of his subjects that Mme. Magda Lupescu leave Rumania, but still being ruled himself by the dictates of his heart, King Carol, of Rumania, has arranged to spend several months of each year abroad with his titian-haired sweetheart, it was understood to have advised Carol to take a vacation abroad with his beautiful friend in May.

Carol, it was reported, intends to purchase a castle in France which he would visit several months of each year and thus be near Mme. Lupescu.

This would obviate the necessity of "breaking off" with his old friend, and yet would permit her to leave Rumania as demanded by a large portion of the Rumanian public.

SCHWARTZ JOB APPEAL LOST

City Solicitor Cornelius D. Scully has ruled that Louis A. Schwartz, former employe in the Bureau of Building Inspection, lost his claim for 15 days' salary when he failed to take an appeal from his dismissal to the Civil Service Commission.

Schwartz's job was later eliminated from the budget by Council. A copy of Scully's opinion has been sent to Schwartz's attorney, Benjamin L. Steinberg.

Schwartz was first dismissed by Safety Director Ralph E. Smith, and, according to Scully, the Civil Service Commission has ruled the Director was within his rights in so acting.

Other committee heads include Frank A. Willison, George Ketchum, George Swinton, A. M. Maloney, Howard S. Samson, W. W. Martin, Fred C. Haller, J. B. Crane, George Ludebuehl, Hugh H. Woods, Joseph Buffington, Jr., F. A. Cass, S. E. Bowman, E. Wayne Stoker and Walter J. Miller.

Pair 'Fired' May Be Paid for Help

A resolution authorizing payment of $15 each to Louis Glesenkamp, former city paymaster, and Harry Sikov, former paymaster's clerk, for extra time they worked in instructing their successors, has been referred by Council to Mayor McNair. The Mayor had dismissed the two men after the Civil Service Commission had changed their jobs to an unprotected classification.

Monks Going Nuts Trying to Ape Zoo Visitors

CHICAGO, April 18.—(Universal.)—Hereafter there'll be no monkey business before the monkey cage at the Lincoln Park Zoo.

The ancient adage, "monkey sees, monkey does," resulted today in two policemen and a sign being placed in front of the cage, the sign reading:

"Kindly refrain from clapping—or exciting the animals."

A man recently butted his head against a wall. The monkeys did likewise and knocked himself out.

Another zoo patron removed his false teeth and the poor monkey nearly went crazy trying to remove his own teeth. An attendant said:

"Now he's suffering from an inferiority complex, so these cops are here to stop those stunts, or the monks will go nuts."

Bank of England Re-elects Norman

LONDON, April 18.—Montagu Norman has been re-elected governor of the Bank of England for the ensuing year, and Sir Ernest Musgrave Harvey has been reappointed deputy governor.

DEFICIT TOPS 3 BILLION

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Uncle Sam's deficit jumped about $300,000,000 to a total of $3,072,988,000 April 16, the Treasury announced today.

This was principally a result of placing $300,000,000 in securities in the sinking fund which is employed by law to retire the public debt.

Public debt transactions April 16 resulted in new issues of $988,206,000 and retirements of $1,032,508,000. This brought total debt transactions for the year to $18,655,000,000, including new issues of $11,131,000,000 and retirements of $7,524,000,000 breaking all records for a similar length of time.

Receipts for the July 1-April 16 period were $2,420,000,000, compared with $1,588,000,000 for the same period last year. Expenditures were $5,493,000,000, against $3,955,000,000, and emergency expenditures totaled $3,107,000,000, as compared with $943,000,000 last year.

BRAKE ORDERS INCREASE

The value of orders received for the first quarter of this year is approximately four times greater than that of the corresponding period of the previous year, A. L. Humphrey, chairman of the board of the Westinghouse Air Brake Company, said at the annual meeting yesterday. He continued:

"It is gratifying to report that the Westinghouse Air Brake Company has continued its dividend for the year, notwithstanding the fact that it was not earned. This dividend, maintained on the basis of the past three years, was made possible due to the fact that the company fortunately possessed sufficient liquid assets, together with a liberal earned surplus. This itself is direct evidence of the favorable position our company enjoys."

Bank Executives Note Slump's End

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., April 18.—(AP.)—The executive council of the American Bankers' Association in convention here, heard its president, Francis M. Law, of Houston, report there was "substantial evidence that we are beginning at least, to emerge from the depth of depression."

Reporting on the banking situation, Law said he felt "in a very cheerful and hopeful frame of mind."

Various other bankers expressed confidence that the turn in economic affairs had been reached.

WHEAT CONFAB ADJOURNS

ROME, April 18.—(AP.)—Delegates to the Rome meeting of the world wheat advisory commission went home today with a lot of work done but with a new unsolved problem awaiting their attention when they meet again at London in June.

A suggestion of the United States that fruther reduction of wheat acreage would be necessary to eliminate surpluses among wheat-exporting nations was favorably received last night by representatives of the major producers with the exception of Australia.

The commission placed consideration of the question on the agenda for its June meeting in London.

In the meantime interested governments will be asked to instruct their delegates on any definite action they are prepared to take to eliminate surpluses in the next biennium.

The commission gave approval last night to the final text of recommendations to governments calling for world wheat export minimum prices, denaturing wheat to render it unfit for human consumption and reducing the amount of flour to be extracted from wheat.

Chickie's Daughter

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER XLVII.

She stood motionless, her eyes closed. The world dropped away. Nothing remained but this moment and they two together—alone in the beautiful isolation of the mountain top.

She was aware of his face touching hers. She said softly, "Kevin," and found his eyes, warm, flushed, meeting hers.

"Hello, dear."

She thought his eyes looked at her with love. Only a moment they stood there in this breathless unity, only a moment his arm supported her. She was lost in it.

They watched Dadee and Bruce on an adjacent hill, practising the turns and swings Kevin had taught them. The young, bright recklessness of their flying bodies filled Pippin with delight. Already the two boys were becoming very proficient. Now Dadee tried a little jumping. They could hear him shouting to his younger brother that it was easy, so Bruce tried it.

Pippin looked up at Kevin. "I think I'd like to do that, too. Will you teach me?"

"Anything you want to know."

Proud of Chickie

Kathleen and Chickie were coming sideways up the long gradual slope of the mountain. Pippin was proud of her mother's suppleness, proud that Chickie was slender and, in Pippin's opinion, very beautiful. She looked up to Kevin and said warmly:

"She doesn't look any older than Kathleen from here."

At that moment Chickie stumbled.

"Oh, dear," said Pippin, suddenly anxious, "that's about the fortieth time."

"She's all right. She'll make it on her own. See! I've taught you one thing, anyway. You all know how to get to your feet again."

But Pippin was worried lest the trip prove too much for her mother. An hour ago she had gone along at Chickie's side. Several times when Chickie fell she lay in the snow, laughing and resting before getting to her feet. This frightened Pippin, so she said out loud to dissipate her fears that her mother was strong—she was young—she was beautiful.

She drew a long, harsh sigh.

"Why?" Kevin asked.

"We've come too far—she's tired!"

"She's all right. The return is very easy."

Ski Together

He took Pippin's left hand, locked it in his:

"Come along. We're going down the mountain together."

"Oh, not on this steep side, Kevin! It's almost as sheer as a wall."

"Don't be afraid. Get yourself set. Lean toward me a little. Come on, now! You'll make it."

She let all her muscles relax—only poised and balanced, her shoulder and her forearm pressed hard against his.

They went skimming miles down the mighty, precipitous incline. The dazzling mountains made a flash; the trees dwindled; it seemed to her they went winging in this beautiful unity like birds through the blue space. They were above the world and free.

Suddenly, abruptly the slope ended. Pippin clutched at his hand — frightened, her knees rigid.

"Kevin!"

"You're all right! Don't stiffen. We're not jumping over that—swinging—there you are!"

They made a wide, rhythmic, exciting curve and came gently, magically to a stop.

Kevin said happily: "You did that perfectly."

She looked up with a laugh, nervous, excited, every nerve tingling.

Loves Kevin

She said: "Oh, wonderful!" and longed to add: "I love you!"

When she was alone in the little hotel bedroom, she stood at the window looking out at the white blinding snow. It obliterated the land marks. Far to the right a fugitive post and the top of a little cottage were visible, but all the rest was a level dazzling meadow of white. Pippin whispered to it: "I love him" and gained a great satisfaction from repeating these words. She longed to fling her heart out; he was strong, he was beautiful and she loved him.

The snow was so still, so vast, so unified. There was something mysterious in its dream-like quiet. She had a wish to move out and be one with that silence where forever this moment, this dream, this wild beautiful happiness would be perpetuated. She knew she was mad to give way to her feelings, to put such emphasis on a moment of impulsive tenderness. Other men had kissed her. She thought nothing of it. Kevin had kissed other girls. He would forget about this—

She went back to college. Over the week-ends there were dances. There were the final rehearsals for the play. But she managed to come up on Saturdays. She went to David's office.

Wants to Be Near

She wanted to see Kevin. Just to know he was working in the small laboratory across the narrow passage. She didn't have to touch him. She would have been content to work on, knowing he was there, knowing he was caring; years she would have been content. But she could not endure not knowing. She had to wonder and speculate. Did he think of her? Did he remember that he kissed her? Did it mean anything to him?

He seemed always glad to see her. He saved up the interesting things that happened during the week. He helped her with her studies. Sometimes she would turn suddenly and find his eyes dwelling on her face and then again she thought: "He loves me."

They went to the theater and several times quite late on a Saturday night he took her dancing. Then he leaned across the table as he had that first time and took her hand.

One night he said: "I didn't dream, Pippin, you'd turn out as you have."

"Am I better or worse, Kevin?"

He said simply: "You're lovely. You're dear and lovely."

He kept hold of her hand; he kept looking in her eyes until her whole face stained and she felt weak against his power.

Makes Him Kiss Her

But he never kissed her even when they said good-night. She wanted this. She found her thoughts dwelling on his face, on his words, on his strong, beautiful hand clasping hers. She was ashamed of her preoccupation.

Once when they were dancing and the whole world seemed flowing on in sweet, uplifting rhythm and she was so piercingly aware of his arm about her; so glad because of this momentary chiming of their two separate beings, he drew her close and said softly: "You're happy, sweetheart?"

She hummed and nodded, yet kept her head down and her face hidden.

He stood at the door.

"Now I won't see you for another week, Pippin—a whole week."

"That IS a long time, Kevin—a very long time."

Impulsively her hand fluttered to the lapel of his coat.

He covered her hand. He swept an arm about her with a quick, warm: "Yes—it's a long time!" and kissed her.

She was full of agitation. She thought: "I made him do that! He did it because I asked."

The play was staged. Neither David nor Kevin could get free to see it, but Chickie and Janina with Mary and all the McPike family sat in the front row. They were very proud.

Afterwards she and Gregg parked the car on a lonely hill that overlooked the dark purple Santa Clara valley. Eastward they saw the mountains and the lights of the cities sparkling like diamonds in the black fields of the night.

Will Miss Gregg

Gregg kept his arm about her but he didn't talk. Pippin was aware of his deep, brooding unhappiness.

"It went over big, Gregg. Aren't you thrilled?"

"Oh sure—it was a success. Nothing to kick about there."

"You have a great talent, Gregg."

"I'm not sure about that—but I'll plug along, of course. I don't do as well alone, Pippin. Even with plots, and they've always been my strength, I do much better when you're working with me. You stimulate me. You make me better than I am. In many ways.

"But why are you sad tonight, Gregg?"

"Well—I rather realize this is the last play we'll do together. In a few more months, you'll be finished here. You'll be busy with your own plans. I'll have to go on without you. And even wandering, with you not along, won't be much fun. I don't like to think about it."

She had a sharp vision of Gregg gone — the tang of his brusque, invigorating companionship removed. And all the gay, fantastic worlds they had builded together, toppling. She felt suddenly a great lonely ache. Life wouldn't be as sweet and it wouldn't be as rich with Gregg gone. She didn't want him to go.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Fashions are feminine, but not fussy. The fluffy girl is tempted on every hand to add bows and ruffles and what-nots. She must watch a leetle out. Overdressing is no minor sartorial crime— it is an offense. Coiffures must be ladylike to conform to the dress edicts of the moment. That does not mean careless arrangement or fluttering curls. The pattern of the wave is inclined to be formal. Tendrils are lovely only when they serve a purpose, to finish the rear line of the hairdress or to fill in not-so-nice spaces back of the ears.

BATTLE OF BUNKER HILL, CHARLESTOWN DISTRICT OF BOSTON (June 17, 1775)

The news of the hasty retreat of the British troops from Concord, summoned about 20,000 patriots to the vicinity of Boston, besieging the British. The Second Continental Congress assembled at Philadelphia and appointed George Washington Commander in Chief of the army to be formed (June 15). A British fleet arriving with reinforcements, attacked the Continentals' positions on Bunker Hill. British Gen. Howe finally succeeded in taking the hill, but suffered heavy losses. Although forced by lack of powder to give up their positions, the colonists won a moral victory demonstrating they could face heavy bombardments and gallant attacks of trained troops. THE GRACCHI—MARTYRS TO LIBERALISM

Roman aristocrats leased the conquered lands from the government "for a song" and with slave labor, they supplied the market with grain ,ruining the farmers. Tiberius Gracchus, elected tribune (133 B. C.), revived old land laws (limiting possession to 300 acres of each citizen), canceled leases, divided land among people. Senators, with their hirelings, killed him and many followers same year.

Gaius Gracchus, becoming tribune (123 B. C.) continued his brother's policy, curtailed Senate powers, but lost popularity when attempting to facilitate acquiring Roman citizenship. Gaius was defeated in the election for a third term; his reforms were abolished and he was killed in the ensuing tumult. (121 B. C.). (World History)

EXPULSION OF TEUTONS—MARIUS, SULLA

Marius Caius (155-86 B. C.) rising from farmer to consul, was victorious against Jugurtha in Africa; he also expelled invading Teutons who fled from Northern Italy into Gaul (102 B. C., above). In the Social War (Socii wanted equality with Cives) Marius was replaced by Sulla (138-78 B. C.). Enmity caused Marius to flee to Africa. He returned with an army and seized power of Rome with the help of Cinna. The massacre of the supporters of Sulla, who was in Asia campaigning against Mithridates, king of Pontus, followed. Marius died shortly after assuming power. Victorious, Sulla returned 83 B. C., defeated Cinna, entered Rome, made himself perpetual dictator, abolished tribuneship. After satisfying his vengeance by murder or proscriptions of thousands, 79 B. C. Sulla retired giving himself to debauchery; he died 78 B. C. (World History)

IONIC THEORY—ELECTROLYSIS (Chemistry)

Electricity, the flow of free electrons (from the negative pole toward the positive) heats, but chemically does not change first class conductors (metals, alloys, carbon, many sulphides.)

Salts, acids and bases dissolved in water, ethyl-methyl alcohol, etc., conduct electricity (second class or electrolytic conductors) but undergo chemical changes (electrolysis). The cause is explained by Arrhenius' (1859-1927) theory of ionization: Molecules of acids, bases and salts, dissociate in presence of water (and some other solvents) into electrically charged particles (which lost or gained electrons), called ions; these serve as transports of electricity. Atoms or groups of atoms losing electrons are positively charged (cations) like atoms of hydrogen and metals and are deposited on the cathode. Those gaining electrons (anions) like acid radicals and hydroxyl are negatively charged and deposited at anode (above left). The number of electrical charges (gained or lost electrons) is equal with chemical valence. Above right: Electrolysis of ($CuCl_2$). Weight of ions deposited by current in given time is proportional to intensity; those of different ions also to chemical equivalents (Faraday's laws). 57—III—B

PORIFERA, COELENTERATA-AQUATIC ANIMALS

Porifera, sponges, 2d phylum of animal kingdom comprise about 2,500 species, thriving mostly in warmer oceans, few in fresh water. They are a mass of cells, working more or less as one organism, which may break up into living pieces. When young they become attached to some substance and develop into vase-shaped adults, dotted by pores through which tiny cilia drive the water (from which they capture food), passing out at top through central cavity. They have no muscle—or nerve tissues, no excretory or respiratory systems, no sense organs and react sluggishly to stimulation. Our bath sponges are their horny skeletons.

Coelenterata, the 3rd animal phylum (about 4,500 species), consist of polyps (above right), medusae (the jelly fish belongs to latter), which are simple bags of living material, with central cavity, through which food, waste and reproductive cells are carried by water. Their thread-like tentacles, capable of quick movement, are equipped with poisonous stings, with which they kill rather large animals.

Corals (above left), also of this phylum, have hard skeletons ($CaCO_3$) with which they build up reefs and islands. Polyps and corals are attached, medusae swimming. (Gen. Science)

COOLING CHECKS BACTERIA IN MILK

Milk has to be strained and cooled right after milking and kept refrigerated until consumed. Low temperature checks growth of bacteria as shown above. Besides balanced food (proteins, carbohydrates, fats) a dairy cow must have abundant fresh, pure water and clean, well ventilated, light barn. Milking must be done under sanitary conditions. (Gen. LEARN HOW TO STOP BLEEDING TO SAVE LIFE

Bleeding from an artery (blood spurts) can be stopped by pressing a spot (marked above) where artery crosses a bone; apply tourniquet in such a spot between bleeding point and heart. When bleeding is from a vein (steady flow) pressure must be made on side away from heart. This knowledge may save yourself or others in an emergency.

She Walks in Beauty

New York beauticians have decided that beauty is more important than health.

They figure if you ain't pretty you might as well be in an ambulance. And, correctly enough, their clients figure the same way. Which is all right in a town where you can have both beauty and health and lose 'em all in a week.

This will get a shrill protest from the doctors and the life extension bureaus. But will fail to stop the ladies in their quest of the elusive complexion.

All a woman wants to do is fool the public. When she is standing alone in front of her boudoir mirror she is perfectly honest about herself.

"Let's see," she says, "If dents were dimples I'd be Miss America and all the territories.

"My complexion looks like a cow's seventh stomach. But I can slap on three coats of beauty clay and top it off with a stucco finish.

"Those ears can be pinned back with adhesive tape. My hair is stringier than an angel's harp.

"That NRA didn't do me any favor. I need much more than 40 hours a week in a beauty shop."

But she trundles into the beautician's abattoir just the same. They smack her around, thump her and dovetail her expression.

When she struts out in the twilight she is a different woman. She is thoroughly landscaped.

The only way you could recognize her is by her fingerprints. And she's got them varnished. All she requires is a couple of hours in the operating chair and she makes the Venus of Milo look like a horned toad.

She considers health secondary to beauty. And until society gets a new system of values she will be right.

Beauty is as beauty does. But the jury will always decide it didn't.

A pretty girl gets away with anything. In fact, they're getting away with so much these days they have to ship by train and truck.

Other Hospitals Available

Vacant Beds Elsewhere Can Be Used for the Excess Patients at Mayview.

Mayor W. N. McNair is not, of course, responsible for the bad conditions found at the municipal hospitals by an investigating committee. They are a heritage from previous administrations, and he deserves credit for the interest that he has shown in bettering things.

A simple remedy for the congestion in the general hospital at Mayview would be to transfer the excess patients to the voluntary no-profit hospitals in Pittsburgh and pay for them as the Commonwealth pays for charity patients in these institutions.

Miss Jessie Turnbull, one of the investigating committee, states that the general hospital at Mayview is 50 per cent overcrowded and the beds so close together and the number of nurses so inadequate that the patients cannot receive proper care.

There are a thousand vacant beds in Pittsburgh's hospitals. While many of the beds are in private rooms, there is also ample accommodation for hundreds of additional patients in the wards.

Patients suffering with chronic diseases might be kept at Mayview and the others transferred to the hospitals in the city until cured.

This might add something to the expenses of the city, but the amount certainty would fall far short of the annual cost of the new five million dollar municipal hospital that has been proposed by one of the members of the committee as the proper solution of the problem.

Abating Cruelty

Progress Is Being Made, But Much Remains To Be Done.

Posters drawn by 2,000 Pittsburgh school children under the auspices of the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society are being judged today. This competition is the principal feature of the local observance of "Be Kind to Animals" Week.

Adults, too, should give some consideration to this subject. They cannot do better than to use their influence to put a stop to two kinds of cruelty to which the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals directs attention in its annual report.

One of the evils is thus described:

"Little two and three-day-old calves, that cannot eat hay or drink water, are loaded into cattle cars by dairy farmers and shipped to markets . . . At the point of arrival it is no uncommon thing to find from 10 to 50 of these calves dead in a car. The actual commercial value of the shipment is low, but they are shipped by the farmer in order to gain a little financial salvage from surplus stock that would otherwise have to be destroyed in order to conserve the milk supply."

The other evil is that of steel traps in which millions of fur-bearing animals are tortured for hours or even days while awaiting the coming of the trapper. What is needed is either traps that will catch the animals alive and unhurt or traps that will kill them in a humane manner.

It is gratifying to learn that steady progress is being made in the campaign against cruelty. The Institute of American Meat Packers is assisting, for example, in the movement to equip slaughter houses with "electric stunners" instead of the old hammer "which frequently causes an animal untold suffering."

The civilization of a nation can be measured by its attitude towards animals. There are no countries in which cruelty is frowned upon more severely than in the United States. But we are still far from perfect.

A Democratic University

The Pitt Cathedral Deserves Popular Support Because It Serves the People.

The Relief Works Division is to continue the work of the Civil Works Administration on the Cathedral of Learning until April 30.

But government grants of $734,000 must be supplemented with $1,650,000 of contributions from the men and women of Pittsburgh if the Cathedral is to be finished.

Every Pittsburgher with a spark of pride in the city would like to see the Cathedral completed if only to remove the reproach of an unfinished job, if only to beautify the civic center which, with the tall stately structure incomplete, has an irritating effect.

But there is a more impelling, a more noble motive for coming to Pitt's aid, in the democratic character of the university. Pitt is peculiarly a university of and for the people, and as such deserves popular support. Few of the students come from wealthy families. According to the Pitt News, half of the students either carry their lunch to school or do not eat lunch. The majority have difficulty in paying their tuition fees.

They deserve help, and they can be helped by gifts that will permit the Cathedral to be finished, and thus furnish adequate classrooms and an inspiring atmosphere.

Sentiment on Sunday Movies

That the People of Pittsburgh Are in Favor of Them Is Beyond Question

Mayor W. N. McNair talks of taking a postcard poll to see how the people of Pittsburgh feel about Sunday movies. It seems like a waste of time and money.

Can any open-minded person, familiar with the way in which the people have expressed themselves on kindred questions in recent years, be in doubt as to what the Mayor's proposed poll would show?

The Sun-Telegraph took a postcard poll in 1930 of the registered voters of Pittsburgh to see how they felt about the Blue Law. Of 39,605 who marked the cards and returned them, 30,816 voted for repeal of the law, 2,967 for modification, and 5,822 for its retention.

This vote of more than five to one in favor of doing away with the ban on Sunday amusements was more than confirmed when Pittsburghers voted in 1932 on the question of Sunday baseball.

It is certain that any fair poll would show the people overwhelmingly in favor of Sunday movies.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 18.—At least one oldtimer, in the worst depression the theater has ever known, has wiggled to a safety isle. Referring, of course, to the fairly sizeable hit scored six weeks ago by Charles B. Dillingham. Ill winds had almost blown the veteran down when the gale shifted.

Not perhaps the smartest revue in town, it did, however, offer a distinct novelty in an array of absolutely new faces—the title was "New Faces"—and a potpourri of fresh ideas. Even hardened critics were unable to brush lightly over the loveliness of the gang of zestful youngsters, mostly from California.

To watch a new generation of players exploring their heritage was a delicious treat in itself. The Manhattan stage has too long been surfeited with the same personalities doing the same thing. And that an old-timer should give them their chance speaks volumes for the gallantry of years.

Dillingham's didoes also brought back to the legitimate the well-liked Elsie Janis. This time, not as the winsome hoyden, but as the director. So excellent was her job that cheerers, standing up, brought her from the wings, to take a sedate and middle-aged bow. She was once Dillingham's bright particular star.

* * *

Within the year I have seen three men, all vigorous, who years ago were given up to die and whose doom was foretold in headlines, I refer to Frank Vanderlip, the octogenarian; Perry Belmont, I think it is, and Jack Norworth. Vanderlip has long been an idol of the newspaper fraternity. With the orthodox poor country boy start he rose to head one of New York's largest banks, but still likes to be classed a newspaperman.

* * *

Henry Sell came across an old Tony Pastor program which announces the opening of the bill with: "The Great Zaro—ball juggling with bouncing and plate manipulations." A favorite of the helter-skelter variety days was Tikko, who did a Japanese perch act and often opened the show at Hammerstein's. At the finish of his act when he slid down the pole he reached at the base for his chewing gum and then took his bow, chewing madly.

* * *

I often wonder about people who go to the movies at 10 in the morning. In the larger temples along Broadway there are distinct audiences of this sort. I joined one the other morning. Mostly men, middle-aged and older. Out of the parade, it struck me as their method of chasing the bluebird through branches of life. The George Arliss looking gentleman next to me, slight and with white vest edging, might have been a mincing professor of the minuet in the long ago. His derby was flat-topped and tie an Ascot, a type rarely seen these days unless one drops into a morning movie. I hear, although I saw none I recognized, that many actors, enjoying engagements, are also attendees, their only opportunity to indulge a sort of busman's holiday.

* * *

But I have not as yet been able to arise in time or stay up late enough to join the Tenderloin gamblers, who, quitting their tables, have a snack around 6 a. m. These unsmiling patrons are the grimmest in the land outside a penal institution. Win, lose or draw, the professional gambler never betrays his emotions. They clip out their conversation in monosyllables, drinking cauldrons of hot coffee and puffing fiercely black cigars.

* * *

Beefsteak Charlie's, about five pipe whiffs from Broadway, has since the days of Maud S been the hangout for followers of the race track. Walls are lined with many Currier and Ives of past thoroughbreds. Horsey men in loud ties are always at the tables with their suspiciously golden ladies. Every unaccompanied gentleman is pouring over a dope sheet. The only restaurant that hasn't changed since I came to New York. It and Luchow's.

* * *

O yes, among the bright sophisticates Dillingham recruited for his comeback revue was James Shelton, another Paducah, Ky., boy, who seems a budding Noel Coward. The words to one of his songs concern the champion gutter girl. She rests in gutters because she loves them. Beds simply do not appease her any more. She is out to meet all comers for a gutter resting record, tee ta-teedum te dee! But Walter Catlett, during the long run of "Sally," was first to make Broadway gutter conscious In lifting his beaker of shandygaff, he would always cry: "Choose your gutter!"

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

What Is an Efficient Life in 1934?

You admire efficient people.

You envy them, too. Particularly if you are unsuccessful. Then you are always comparing their cleverness with your clumsiness—their popularity with your obscurity. It crawls through you all the time, like a secret poison.

It doesn't seem fair that some people should be efficient and others not. Look how hard you've worked! You've worked as hard as anyone; yet you never seem to do anything right. If you were capable, like some people, then everything would have been different.

You wonder about efficiency, wistfully, in bewilderment. Just what is efficiency, anyway? You think you know. You think efficiency means doing things right. If you'd had your chance—a better education, a different family—you could do things right, too.

No; you are wrong! Efficiency doesn't just mean doing things right. It means something much more difficult than that.

IT MEANS KNOWING WHAT IS THE RIGHT THING TO DO.

IT MEANS CHOOSING WHAT IS THE RIGHT THING TO DO.

AND IT MEANS DELIBERATELY LEAVING A GREAT MANY THINGS UNDONE

Every day that becomes harder. Every day human life becomes more crowded—crowded with people, things, interests, chores, all calling for your time and attention.

HOW ARE YOU GOING TO LIVE EFFICIENTLY, IN SUCH A CROWDED, CLAMORING WORLD?

HOW ARE YOU GOING TO GET ANYWHERE, ACCOMPLISH ANYTHING, IN THE SHORT YEARS, THE ROUGH SCRAMBLE WHICH LIES AHEAD?

Some of the things which crowd your days are plainly worthless. It is easy enough to reject them. Some are plainly valuable. Surely you should accept them. But most people and interests are neither good nor bad. They are all mixed up. What are you going to do when people and things are like that?

You could do, maybe, any one of a dozen jobs. You like them all. There are scores of people you like, too. You could make money at the jobs. You could have fun visiting with the people. You could be helpful to them, too, and learn things from them.

Wherever you turn, you see something you might do. Often something that needs to be done. Someone you might know, someone you feel you ought to know. You want to do the right thing—choose the right thing.

So you rush here, there—from this person to that person—from one interest to another.

And at first, when you're young, it all seems very thrilling. Such a glorious world! Such glamorous adventures! Such endless opportunities! You dash about in a sort of delighted frenzy—or abandon yourself to equally delightful dreaming, toying with this or that possibility, building castles in Spain.

But presently comes an ugly day. You wake to the grim realization that you're getting nowhere. You've acomplished nothing. But why not?

Haven't you been serious, conscientious? You have. Haven't you worked hard, taken chances, made some brave gambles? You have. Then why is your life such a mess? Why have you actually gone no further than some lazy loafer, some stupid waster? Was it because you didn't do enough things?

NO—IT WAS BECAUSE YOU DIDN'T LEAVE ENOUGH THINGS UNDONE.

YOU DIDN'T KNOW WHEN OR HOW TO SAY "NO!"

It takes strength and wisdom to choose the one thing out of a hundred which is right and necessary for you to do.

BUT IT TAKES FAR MORE STRENGTH AND WISDOM TO REFUSE TO DO THE OTHER NINETY-NINE!

What's the secret of efficiency in 1934? A lively imagination? A gambling spirit? A clever hand? NO.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

'Led by the Nose!'

Whether you know it or not, you are practically led around by your NOSE in this world. You spend most of your time, either living up to it or trying to live it DOWN.

* * *

Your nose, whether you are a man or a woman, can be a prime asset or one of your biggest handicaps in life. It may practically decide your whole career for you.

The great difference between Cyrano de Bergerac, and Jimmy Durante, is merely that Cyrano scorned his nose and apologized for it while the popular comedian has featured his nose and capitalized it.

* * *

Many a successful actor would never have thought of going on the stage or into pictures, if his perfect nose and his classic profile had not pointed the way. And, by that same token, many a Great Lover of the theater has had to battle his way up to fame, in SPITE of his nose.

* * *

The most striking example of the triumph of ART over a nose is that of the peerless George Arliss in some of his best roles. With nothing but the poise of the chin and the expression of the eyes, he manages to make a thoroughly British tip-tilted retrousse nose look powerful and almost aquiline!

* * *

Most crooners appear to have good profiles, which leads you to wonder if they would have been jazz singers and wisecrackers, if they had not been "led by the nose" to become warblers of love songs.

* * *

And doubtless, many of our best playwrights, our most popular poets, our biggest financial wizards and our wealthiest bootleggers might have yielded to that impulse and been only thrid-rate actors, if they had been born with cameo-profiles and a nose for Romeo-parts.

* * *

John Barrymore, it is said, wanted to be a comedian; but, like his father, Maurice, and his uncle, John Drew, he simply HAD to revert to type and play lover-hero roles, with a profile like that! Whereas, I haven't a doubt that the part, impudent, up-tilted, little noses of Mae West and Marie Dressler saved those two gals from trying to play Juliet and turned them to comedy. Led by the noses! * * *

Almost any kind of retrousse nose is an asset to a woman. It helps to put her in the class with the "cuties." But, no matter how beautiful a girl's profile, men simply won't forgive her for being foolish or helpless, if she is handicapped by a dignified, classic nose.

A man may fall in love with a pair of languorous eyes or a glamorous smile or a perfect figure—but it's much safer to choose a wife by her NOSE. Because a dominant nose or a pugnacious nose was not just pasted on by Nature, as an afterthought. It is a war-banner; and the man who marries the girl behind it, had better make sure that he "can take it!"

* * *

Let your judgment be led by HER nose, Romeo—or you may be led around for the rest of your life by YOURS!

Long Term Credit Needed To End Unemployment

By James T. Williams, Jr.

REDUCTION of unemployment was the paramount problem which the Roosevelt administration inherited from the Hoover administration.

It is still the foremost problem before the Roosevelt administration as the President begins his second year in the White House.

A recent survey of unemployment in this country reveals the following conclusions:

Of the ten million Americans still unemployed, it is estimated that four and a half million are, when employed, engaged in the production of what is known as durable goods.

Five hundred thousand of these ten million unemployed are in normal times producers of consumers' goods.

A little less than five million of the unemployed today are normally engaged in providing services of various sorts.

According to this survey, only 10 per cent of the workmen in this country now employed are producers of goods that are quickly consumed. The remaining unemployed are almost equally divided between the producers of durable goods and those who provide services.

* * *

Revival in Building Would Benefit Many

FOR this reason, the Roosevelt administration is being urged to concentrate its efforts during the months ahead upon ways and means of reviving activity in the durable goods industries—in new construction by private enterprises, including the building, furnishing and renovation of homes. By starting the wheels of production in the durable goods industry, it is argued that such a revival would provide employment also for many of the jobless who in normal times earn their livelihood by providing services of various sorts.

There were approximately forty-nine million persons, according to the census of 1930, engaged in the continental United States in gainful occupations. Of this number, twenty-six million produced goods, either durable or goods quickly consumed. The remaining twenty-three million were for the most part providers of services.

Because consumers' goods are quickly consumed after they are distributed, the quantity produced does not vary greatly in good times or bad. In good times, of course, a better quality of consumers' goods is purchased, and when bad times come, the sale of cheaper brands increases.

It was hoped that a vast public works program would provide employment for millions of jobless who were thrown out of employment when the depression reduced the demand for durable goods. This would doubtless have been the case had the Hoover administration launched such a program in the early years of the depression.

But the public works program, which the Roosevelt administration is carrying out, has not been sufficiently large or fast enough in execution to bring the revival in the durable goods industries that was hoped for.

* * *

Durable Goods To Receive Attention

MEANTIME, the tremendous expenditures for the relief of unemployment and the resultant increase in taxation are adding heavy burdens to business and retarding the speed of national recovery.

On this account, the Roosevelt administration is under increasing pressure from all parts of the country to encourage, in every way possible, easier facilities for long-term credit in order that with a return of confidence, capital investments in the production of durable goods may be expanded and employment provided where it is now most needed—among unemployed workers in the production of durable goods and the providers of services that such increased production always requires.

The road ahead for the New Deal will probably run in this direction when President Roosevelt gets Congress off his hands and concentrates the efforts of his administration on the reduction of unemployment.

Home Economics Recommended for Boys—Children's Misbehavior Blamed on Their Parents

By Edwin C. Hill

SINCE "the modern home is ceasing to be a place in which a girl may learn homemaking," husbands of the future are going to have a hard time of it unless they know how to cook their own meals and sew a fine seam, according to Ida Ellsworth Sunderlin, head of the Home Economics Department of Inglewood (Cal.) High School.

Miss Sunderlin, in an article published in the Journal of the National Education Association, advances the idea that "Home Economics for Boys" is a course which should be included in the compulsory list of every high school curriculum. Such a course, Miss Sunderlin says, would include a study of the fundamentals of nutrition, preparation of meals, table service, etiquette, care of children, food costs, family budgeting and cleaning, pressing and repairing of clothing.

Miss Sunderlin says:

"In the past, education for homemaking has been limited largely to training for girls. Since homemaking is one of the greatest professions, and since to be maintained adequately it needs a partnership, should not every boy be prepared to appreciate and cope with the responsibilities of family life?"

Parents Blamed for Naughty Children

WHEN a child misbehaves in school, the fault usually should not be attributed to him or his teacher, but to his parents, according to Dr. Leoh Goldrich, head of the Bureau of Child Guidance in the public schools of New York City. As Dr. Goldrich explained, the relationship which exists at home between a child and his parents is usually carried over to the classroom and asserted in the child's relationship with his teacher.

"If a boy or girl is a problem in the classroom," Dr. Goldrich said, "the chances are he is having trouble, consciously or subconsciously, at home. It may be that he is misunderstood, unwanted, or pampered. His reactionary hostility to his home situation is then expressed in his school misbehavior."

Dr. Goldrich pointed out that in cases of treatment of problem children, it is the parents who need education.

"Where parents are willing to co-operate with the Guidance directors," he said, "many difficult cases of child misbehavior and delinquency can be solved."

Dr. Goldrich also pointed out the fallacy of forcing a left-handed child to become right-handed.

"It is a scientific fact," he said, "that in left-handed persons, the left side of the brain is dominant. When such a child is forced to use his right hand, there results a confusion of dominance in the brain, which often creates great mental disturbance in a child. This disturbance usually asserts itself in the form of restlessness, misbehavior, and disinterest in work."

Music Called Sedative for Women

"MUSIC hath charms to sooth the savage beast—and woman," said Dr. Wolf Adler, noted lecturer, psychiatrist and writer, addressing a forum of the American Creative League of Music Students at the Washington Irving High School in the City of New York.

"Music," Dr. Adler explained, "acts like a sedative on women. It quiets their nerves, preserves their mental and physical equilibrium—and acts as a leash on their tongues . . . A sure cure for women who talk too much, is music, music and then more music."

According to Dr. Adler, marvelous results can be achieved with music, even to converting a chattering magpie of a woman into a veritable Sphinx. His advice to husbands whose wives' tongues wag at both ends, is to send their "better halves" to concerts three times a week, and encourage them to play one or more musical instruments.
